CLOAK ARBITRATORS SEEK PEACE TODAY

Decision in Strike Expected by Monday—Lockout Ended by Submanufacturers.

EMPLOYERS TO ASK INQUIRY

Want Grand Jury to Sift Activities of Union Heads—Will Tell Duties of Shop Invasions.

Arbitrators chosen jointly by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Association and the American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers' Association will meet for the first time today in an endeavor to arrive at an early solution of the combination strike and lockout which resulted in idleness for 30,000 cloakmakers. A decision is expected not later than Monday. The arbitrators are Judge Bernard L. Shientag, Professor Lindsay Rogers of Columbia University and Herbert Lehman.

Formal control of the strike was voted into the hands of the right wing group last night at a meeting in Beethoven Hall when Morris Sigman was named Chairman of the General Strike Committee. Salvatore Ninfo was named Vice Chairman and Max Schoenfeld was elected Secretary. Various sub-committees were appointed and it was also decided to put the control of the strike into the hands of an executive committee composed of the strike committee and representatives from each of the locals. About 300 persons attended the meeting which was extremely peaceful.

The submanufacturers opened their shops yesterday in conformity with their promise to the international union leaders who superseded the Left Wing and Communist General Strike Committee. It was reported that most of the employes who had been at work on independent settlements returned to the contractors' shops yesterday.

Louis Hyman, Chairman of the deposed General Strike Committee, announced last night that at a meeting of shop chairmen called by the Left Wing and Communists leaders who formerly led the strike, it had been decided not to return to the shops except on orders from the deposed officials. He asserted that the international union officials, headed by President Sigman had agreed to arbitration but that the Communist leaders had rejected arbitration. He said he was sure that Mr. Sigman would not get any more than he and his associates had been able to get for the workers.

On his part, Mr. Sigman said the Left Wing and Communist leaders no longer had any voice in the strike, that there was a provisional strike committee which was handling the situation and that he was confident the new leaders would obtain better terms than the extreme radicals had been able to obtain.

President Sigman said that as soon as the present issues between the union and the employers were settled the union would start a general housecleaning and "purge itself of gangsterism and graft of a Red complexion introduced by Communists while in office."

"All the dark forces of the Communists have been amalgamated to terrorize all those who generally disagree with them," said Mr. Sigman. "We will get the support not only of labor but of the community at large in our fight to get rid of this undesirable element which has come into prominence with the Communist dictatorship in our unions."

George W. Wickersham of Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft and Samuel Blumberg of 200 Fifth Avenue, counsel in the Merchants Ladies' Garment Association, the jobbers, will call on District Attorney Banton at 2:30 this afternoon and formally request a Grand Jury investigation into the activities of union officials in connection with the strike. They will call the attention of the District Attorney to numerous cases of invasion of shops by vandals alleged to have destroyed $100,000 worth of cloaks with acid.

Complaint will be made that half a dozen jobbers' shops have been invaded recently by men with pistols, some of whom have beaten employes with blackjacks. The jobbers said they commended the police for arresting some of the lawbreakers, but they were anxious to see the instigators of the outrages punished.

Abraham Cahan, editor in chief of The Jewish Daily Forward, 175 East Broadway, commenting editorially yesterday on the riot in front of the newspaper office on Tuesday, said that cloakmakers had absolutely nothing to do with the demonstration as "the crowd was made up of members of the Communist Party and their Left Wing followers" and also included one of the important Communist leaders of the last furriers' strike, "together with a large number of young Communists who are enrolled in the furriers' union, although they are not members of the trade."

COTTON ADVANCES IN ACTIVE MARKET

Unfavorable Weather in South and Ginning Report Due Monday Develop Spirited Trading.

The combination of bad weather in the South and uncertainty over Monday's ginning report developed an active advancing cotton market yesterday. Following the professional covering early in the week, the buying movement broadened considerably, lifting prices quarter of a cent, and closing the list at the top 22 to 26 points higher than Tuesday. The volume of business increased at higher levels, and after crossing high records made on last week's Government report, quotations moved upward more easily than for some time. Southern spot markets advanced a quarter of a cent at nearly all points during the day.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

THE BUSINESS WORLD

Commercial Paper.

Yesterday—6¼ per cent. for the best names. Tuesday—6¼ per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Gain in Glove Orders.

While the early business in men's gloves was not as good as was expected, retail turnover during the last few weeks has been brisk. Reorders reaching manufacturers stress not only the staple capeskin and suede gloves but more so than ever merchandise made of the more novel leathers which have been introduced by leading firms. Lined gloves have been doing well in many sections, several makers conducting a special drive on these types, which was particularly aimed at automobilists. Knitted materials, sheepswool and furs are three featured kinds of linings.

***

Denim Action Came Quickly.

Buyers of denims lost little time in taking advantage of the substantially lower prices that were made on denims in this market on Tuesday. Considering the shortness of the time which the new figures had been in their hands the response up to the closing hour yesterday was of really notable proportions. Incidentally, attention was called to the fact that the new prices on the goods, based on 13½ cents for the 2.20-yard white-back indigo fabrics, are lower than any others issued since 1914, with one exception. This was during the depression of 1921, when, just for a day or two, the 2.20-yard cloths were priced at 12½ cents.

Novelty Trend Is Dominant.

Wholesalers in apparel and textile lines agree on one outstanding feature of Spring merchandising—the undiminished strength of the novelty trend in pattern, color and design. This is the basic characteristic in lines of merchandise from men's neckwear to women's shoes. It is held to be a direct reflection of consumer taste, as neither manufacturers nor retailers are desirous of having novelties and fancies so dominant as to shut out nearly everything of a staple character. Leading wholesalers also see no evidence of any departure from hand-to-mouth buying by retailers. By some the novelty trend is considered a strong contributing factor to the continuance of such buying. Retailers are unwilling to place forward orders for fancy patterned and novelty merchandise in which the risk of loss, because of quick changes, is substantial.

Raw Silk Situation.

A fair amount of buying has raised raw silk prices in Japan to the level of 1,680 yen. Dealers are maintaining a firm attitude and there are prospects that the market will adhere to the present basis for a while at least, according to E. Gerli & Co., Inc. The price quoted on crack XX yesterday was $6.10 and on XX, $5.95. The Canton market remains firm, with reeling operations being curtailed. Yesterday's quotations on 14-16s and 20-22s were $4.15 and $3.85, respectively. Coarse size Cantons are not plentiful in the primary market. Steam filatures, tussahs and Italian silks have continued very quiet.

To Increase Cooperation.

A special committee has been appointed by W. G. M. Howse, President of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association, to confer with manufacturers, commission house executives and selling agents on plans to create greater cooperation in their business relations. The committee is made up of S. M. Bond, Cleveland; M. G. Cooper, Los Angeles; James Rae, Pittsburgh; W. F. Munger, Kansas City, and E. W. Stix, St. Louis. President Howse will also serve ex officio. The appointment of the committee followed a conference of members of the Executive Committee and Advisory Board of the association with representative manufacturers and selling agents in this city about a month ago. It was the sense of the conference that a great deal could be accomplished in a commercial way by the increased cooperation which is now planned.

Men's Wear Woolens Quiet.

Aside from a small volume of new business the men's wear woolen trade is in a quiet period that selling agents expect will continue into early next year. Spot overcoatings are now being liquidated throughout the market, and clothing manufacturers are also winding up their late Fall activities. Production of Spring suits and topcoats is steadily increasing. Mill representatives still count on considerable business in lightweights to come. By Feb. 1 a start will be had by the mills on heavyweight lines, according to present expectations.

Gray Goods Were Dull.

Although the rise in cotton yesterday produced a slightly firmer undertone in the local gray goods market, it did not result in any increase in trading. In the printcloth end the best that could be done on spot 39-inch 68-72s was 7⅝ cents. Actual spot business was done in 38½-inch 48-squares and 44-40s at 5¼ and 4¼ cents, respectively. Sheeting sales were few, but among them were spot 36-inch 6.15s (40-squares) at 4¾ cents and January 36-inch 5.50s at 6¼ cents. Drills and other coarse-yarn cloths were quiet throughout the day, and there was very little snap to the call for fine-yarn cloths. In the specialties there was some trading in spot Eastern sateens (37½-inch 4.37s) at 11 cents.

***

Plain Cloths May Have Inning.

While novelty woolens dominate in the coatings and suitings bought by the women's wear trade for early Spring, not a few selling agents think that the later demand will be for the more staple fabrics. This has happened during the past two Spring seasons, which have wound up with a particularly good call for plain coatings and the sheen dress cloths. New types of cashmere coatings are mentioned as likely to have a good call for later Spring garments. With a suit revival indicated this Spring, the outlook for sheen worsteds in the high shades is much better.

Northern Underwear Priced.

The first of the Northern lines of heavyweight ribbed underwear were priced in this market yesterday, when quotations on the products of the Blood Knitting Company were given to the trade. The new figures are $1 a dozen below the opening prices for shirts and drawers for the 1926 season and $1.50 a dozen lower for union suits. The quotations given out yesterday were as follows: Ten-pound ribbed shirts and drawers, $4.75 a dozen; 11-pound shirts and drawers, $5; 14-pound ribbed union suits, $8 a dozen, and 16-pound union suits, $8.50. "Randoms" in 11-pound shirts and drawers were quoted at $5.12½ a dozen, and in 14-pound union suits at $8.25 a dozen. The union suits are packed two-twelfths to the box. The prices given cover all deliveries throughout the year, selling terms being net, 10, 30.

Novel Display of Cotton Models.

Twelve French dolls, in a tropical setting with a background of fabrics, are used to show the style possibilities of the new lines of wash goods made by the Pacific Mills, the display having just been installed in the offices of Lawrence & Co. here. Among the "high spots" of the display are models showing the combination of three similar hues of one fabric and the union of prints with matching plain materials. The blazer jacket with a tennis frock of piqué, the shirting dress idea in broadcloth, the use of crisp cottons and the pajama ensemble for beach wear are other interesting points. Another feature of the display is the accent it places on blue and on blue and white combinations for the new season.

3 Brothers Sentenced for Fraud.

Leon, Joseph and Max Kenner, brothers, were sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge Meekins to the Atlanta Penitentiary for a year and a day for having concealed assets in the bankruptcy of their firm, which dealt in textiles. The bankruptcy occurred in June, 1922, and the liabilities amounted to $150,000. Carrying out of the sentence was deferred until Jan. 2, to enable the three to spend Christmas at home.

At the same time, it was said, power will be increased from 100 to 1,000 watts.

SCENES ON DRESS FABRICS.

Mailinson & Co. Show Materials for Frocks and Underthings.

Color triumphed in almost every instance at the comprehensive display of models shown last night at the offices of H. R. Mallinson & Co. The fabric designs were clever interpretations of various scenes taken from the American National Parks series. These fabrics, according to the textures, were used in dainty underthings, sports dresses, afternoon and street frocks. In many cases plain materials were used with them either as trimming or for contrast. Such places as Yellowstone Park, Hot Springs, Bryce Canyon and Bridal Veil Falls were among those shown. The colors in all were perfectly blended and had motifs of good proportions, so that in no way could the figure appear distorted.

In a sports dress of two-piece theme, the jumper was made of khaki-kool in a design of the Bridal Veil Falls, here the predominant color was green. A skirt of fine pleats to go with it was also of the plain material.

A dainty set of underthings, step-ins and gown, was made of indestructible chiffon voile in a design of scatter roses. Both garments were trimmed with ecru lace and fancy ribbons.

Hats, parasols, shoes and scarfs matched various costumes worn. Many of the scenes on all, and especially those of the shoes, were minutely copied.

Although some coats were of the printed silks, Rodier's woolens were conspicuous both in cut and color. Rich soft colors were beautifully woven in odd designs that formed a border and gradually tapered off toward the shoulders onto the plain backgrounds.

Face Arrest for Firing on Motorists.

Special to The New York Times.

CAPE CHARLES, Va., Dec. 15.—Warrants for the arrest of O. A. Handy Jr., a State prohibition inspector, and William Bloxom, a county constable, who are alleged to have fired on motorists near here last Friday night will be sworn out tomorrow. Both have resigned. Armed with pistols they stationed themselves at a crossroad and ordered all passing automobiles to halt while they searched the machines for liquor.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—High prices were paid at Sotheby's sale today for two unrecorded copies of books by William Blake. The most important of the two was Alfred G. For this little volume, seven by five inches, £1,350 was paid by a London collector.

This is a record for this book, the Beverley Chew copy having been sold in New York in 1924 for $8,800.

The second Blake, a beautiful copy of "Songs of Innocence" alone, fetched £450.

DOWNTOWN REALTY IN $9,000,000 DEAL

A 25-STORY LANDMARK

C. W. Hansen, for the New Owners, Says It Will Continue to Be Used for Office Purposes.

The Bowling Green Building, one of lower Broadway's landmarks, changed ownership yesterday when an investing syndicate, headed by Chester W. Hansen, purchased it from the Broadway Realty Company. The price is said to have been about $9,000,000.

The property, which is also known as 11 Broadway, is a twenty-five story office building on a plot of about 35,000 square feet, with a frontage of 165 feet on Broadway. It runs through the block with an average depth of 163.3 feet to Greenwich Street, where it has a frontage of 151.10 feet. It is directly opposite the Standard Oil Building, fronts on Bowling Green Park and adjoins the Cunard Building on the south and the International Mercantile Marine Building on the north.

The Bowling Green Building was built in 1901 by the Spencer Trask Company and this is its first change of ownership since its erection. It was originally a twenty-story office building, but five stories were added in 1921. It contains a rentable area of about [illegible] square feet. It was carried on the tax rolls for 1926 at an assessed valuation for land and building of $4,500,000, of which $2,150,000 represented the land value for taxation purposes.

Among the firms occupying space in the building are the Tidewater Oil Company, the Ingersoll-Rand Company, Henry Clews & Sons, bankers, the Mariand Refining Company, the Moore & McCormack Steamship Company and Max D. Steuer.

"Negotiations for the purchase of this property have been pending over a considerable period," Mr. Hansen said. "They were successfully culminated yesterday and we expect to take title to our new holding early in February. The building will be held solely for investment. We plan to renovate it entirely and it is our intention to maintain the high standard of tenancy as at present."

Mr. Hansen also has negotiations under way for the purchase of the Brunswick Building, at 225 Fifth Avenue. He is President of the Cedar-William Street Corporation, owners of the Wadsworth Building, recently completed at 48 Cedar Street. He also heads the 19 John Street Corporation, owners of the fifteen-story Tyler Building, which was erected on the site of the old John Street Theatre, said to have been the first theatre in America. The building was named in honor of Royall Tyler, author of the first American comedy, "The Contrast." It was built by Starrett Brothers in what is believed to be a world's record time of four months from the breaking of ground to occupancy.

OPPOSES VACCINATION OF DAUGHTER; JAILED

Chiropractor Refuses to Pay $2 Fine—Says He Is Not 'the Owner' of His Child.

Rather than pay a $2 fine for refusing to have his 9-year-old daughter vaccinated, Dr. Louis S. Siegfried, a chiropractor and magazine editor, of 243 Sunnyside Avenue, Brooklyn, went to jail yesterday for two days.

He was arraigned before Magistrate Alfred E. Steers in the Schermerhorn Street Court, Brooklyn, charged with not sending his child, Belema, to school. Testimony showed he had sent Belema to Public School 108, in her district, several times in September and October, but that she had been ejected because she had not been vaccinated.

When Magistrate Steers announced he would have to fine Dr. Siegfried the latter said his principles forbade his paying.

"I have committed no wrong," he said. "I am opposed to vaccination. I am not the owner of this child. I am merely her natural and legal guardian for the present. I have no right to do anything which may interfere with her future happiness."

According to his attorney, Rutherford W. Kathan of 2,670 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, Dr. Siegfried is prepared to maintain his stand against vaccination "even if he has to spend the rest of his life in jail." The chiropractor is editor of Quest, a magazine opposed to vaccination.

TABLET FOR MORRIS CANAL.

Man Who Drove Mules There for Half a Century Unveils Plaque.

Daniel P. Winters, 90 years old, of Port Murray, N. J., went to Newark yesterday afternoon and unveiled a tablet on the bank of the Morris Canal. For half a century he led the mules which pulled the canalboats from the Delaware to the Hudson and back, but yesterday as he stood on the spot over which he had so often tramped he had nothing to say.

The bronze tablet, which tells of the history and route of the canal before it was given up a few years ago, was placed on the canal side of the Kresge Department Store by the Faculty and students of Central High School. It declares that for more than a century the waterway was used for the development of the State and at one time was the longest canal in the vicinity. Howard McConnell of the State Board of Conservation and Development spoke.

The St. Nicholas Club of the City of New York, founded in 1875, opened last night its new clubhouse at 29 East Fifty-first Street, an old New York residence to which has been added a roof garden. The club has been for thirty-three years at 7 West Forty-fourth Street.

The St. Nicholas Club was founded by Cornelius Vanderbilt and others to preserve the history and traditions of the city and State.

THREE GROUPS PLAN AMUSEMENT MERGER

Keith Corporation, Pathe and Producers' Distributing Will Hold Conference Soon.

A consolidation involving three important enterprises in the amusement field is in prospect as a result of negotiations being carried on by the B. F. Keith Corporation, the Pathé Exchange, Inc., and the Producers' Distributing Corporation. A conference looking to the amalgamation of these groups will be held here in a few days, informal conferences having established that the controlling interests are in general agreement as to a basis for a merger.

E. F. Albee, President of the B. F. Keith Corporation, said yesterday that no consolidation had been arranged. He declined to discuss the reports current in the financial district. The reports, he said, had been circulated for some time. Banking interests understood to be concerned in the negotiations admitted that there had been some "conversations" but were not prepared to say what the result would be.

Preliminary terms for a merger are understood to have been arranged at a recent conference on the Pacific Coast in which Cecil B. De Mille and John Flinn of the Producers' Distributing Corporation, E. R. Pearson of Pathé and J. J. Murdock of the Keith-Albee organization participated. These representatives, it is understood here, have presented the results of their discussions to their companies with the view to having another conference called to reach a definite agreement.

The Keith-Albee enterprise and the Orpheum Circuit purchased a half interest last May in the Producers' Distributing Corporation. Blair & Co., Inc., New York bankers, a few weeks ago bought from Merrill, Lynch & Co. and other holders of Pathé Class B stock a majority interest, which gave them the privilege of selecting six of the company's nine directors.

FIRESTONE FORECASTS RISE IN PRICE OF RUBBER

Reviews Conditions Under British Regulatory Act in Message to Stockholders.

Likelihood of wide fluctuations and higher price levels in crude rubber was forecast yesterday by Harvey S. Firestone, President of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, in a statement issued to stockholders in connection with the company's report of earnings for the year ended on Oct. 31.

"At our last annual meeting I advised you that during the year rubber had ranged in price from a low of 36 cents to a high of $1.23, and that the price on that date was around $1 per pound," Mr. Firestone stated. "The operation of the British Rubber Restriction act gave 100 per cent. releases on Feb. 1 this year and rubber again dropped to 36 cents a pound.

"It was claimed by the framers of the British Restriction act of November, 1922, that one of the great benefits to be derived from the act would be to stabilize the price of rubber at a fair level for both producer and consumer. The act called for restriction of exportation when the price fell below 12d, and releases for exportation when the price went above 15d. Restriction and releases were adjusted only quarterly and the entire plan was not sufficiently elastic to stabilize prices.

"The restriction policy has since been changed to much higher levels. Announcement was made on April 26, 1926, that if in any quarter, beginning May 1, the London price failed to average 21d, a 20 per cent. restriction would become effective. The price in the quarter ended Oct. 31 failed to average 21d and the restriction went into effect on Nov. 1. On Oct. 25 the restriction policy of April 26 was confirmed and a further provision made that if the price failed to average 21d for any quarter a further restriction of 10 per cent. would go into effect, and there would be no additional releases until the average price was 21d for three consecutive quarters, or 24d for one quarter. You will see, therefore, that we are again likely to have wide fluctuations and higher price levels."

The Firestone Tire and Rubber Company and subsidiaries report for the twelve months ended on Oct. 31 a net income of $7,622,339, after depreciation, interest and Federal taxes, which compares with $12,800,412 in the preceding year. After preferred dividends this was equal to $12.94 a share, par $10, earned on 358,026 shares of common stock, as against $32 a share in the preceding year. Sales of the company totaled $144,397,000, against $125,598,000 in the preceding year.

WEATHER INTERRUPTS PICKING OF COTTON

Conditions in the Winter Wheat Belt Only Fair for the Growing Crops.

The weekly weather report of the Department of Agriculture, released yesterday at Washington, reads in part as follows:

"Frequent rains in the northeastern and northwestern portions of the cotton belt caused further interruption to picking the ungathered crop and there was further damage to staple, particularly in the Northwest. Some picking was reported from South Carolina but the remaining cotton is of low grade. Damage by rain was reported from the far Southwest.

"In the middle Atlantic and Ohio Valley States, husking and cribbing corn continued to advance slowly because of moist weather and soft fields, while there was some hindrance by sleet and ice in the northern portions of the State, bordering on the north bank of the Ohio River. There was also some interruption in the western portion of the corn belt, where considerable of the crop remains in the field in some sections, although housing is well along in most districts.

"The weather in the Winter wheat belt continued generally favorable for grain crops until near the close of the week, when a cold wave overspread the area, with very little snow cover for protection. There was a moderate cover in the northwestern portions of the belt, but elsewhere the ground is practically bare. In more northern States, a good covering had been deposited before the cold wave, except in parts of the interior of the Pacific Northwest, where the ground was bare with the advent of zero temperatures. In the west central Great Plains, including western Kansas and eastern Colorado, and also in Oklahoma and Texas, precipitation was beneficial for Winter wheat, while the mild, moist weather in the South and Middle Atlantic area was helpful.

"The weather in Argentina for the week ended Dec. 13 is reported as warm and wet. In the corn and northern wheat zone, the mean temperature of 79 degrees was 6 degrees above normal, and the total precipitation of 1.5 inch was 0.6 above normal. In the southern wheat district, the temperature averaged five degrees above normal and the precipitation 0.5 inch above."

O'DONNELL RESELLS AMSTERDAM AV. SITE

Operator Disposes of Flats He Bought From the Brown Estate.

WERE HELD AT $1,250,000

Houses Occupy Block Front and Were Sold to John W. Herbert, Investor.

Joseph F. A. O'Donnell, operator, has taken a substantial profit in the resale of a large site on the upper west side. The transaction involves the blockfront on the west side of Amsterdam Avenue, between Seventy-eighth and Seventy-ninth Streets, held at $1,250,000 by the seller.

Mr. O'Donnell recently acquired the property under contract from R. Fulton Cutting, executor of the estate of McEvers Bayard Brown, and resold it yesterday to John W. Herbert, capitalist and director on many corporations, who has purchased the property for investment. George H. Chivvis, as broker, negotiated the resale of the blockfront.

Present improvements on the site consist of two seven-story and two five-story apartment houses, containing eleven stores. The buildings are known as 380 to 394 Amsterdam Avenue, 21 to 25 West Seventy-eighth Street and 200 to 204 West Seventy-ninth Street. The land has a frontage running along the avenue blockfront of 204 feet, with a depth on the side streets of 100 feet.

The present structures on the property bring in an annual rental of approximately $105,000. The holding is the only complete blockfront on Amsterdam Avenue from Seventy-second Street to 106th Street under an individual ownership, according to Mr. O'Donnell, the seller. It is near the Seventy-ninth Street subway station.

Mr. O'Donnell recently figured in the purchase from Cornelius Mitchell, as trustee of an estate, of 442 Broadway and 36 Howard Street, two loft buildings forming an "L" from Broadway to Howard Street, with frontages of 30 feet on Broadway and 25 feet on Howard Street. There is approximately 6,000 feet of ground in this property, which is valued at $150,000. Mr. O'Donnell has obtained possession of the holding, and architects are now studying whether the present buildings should be thrown into one and extensive improvements made, or an individual building erected for a leading firm of restaurateurs. The operator paid all cash for the property, which was in the possession of the estate selling for more than fifty years.

The Amsterdam Avenue blockfront is one of many real estate holdings in Manhattan recently disposed of by the estate of McEvers Bayard Brown, millionaire recluse, who spent thirty-six years of his life aboard his yacht, the Valfreya, anchored off the coast near Essex, England. Mr. Brown died on the yacht last April, and his heirs have recently been selling off his real estate holdings here.

ATTENTION RETAILERS!

AN intensive retail centre is springing up almost overnight along East 59th St., Lexington and Third Aves., in properties surrounding and adjacent to Bloomingdale Bros. Department Store. The sales of property which our organization has recently made in this vicinity for immediate improvement into modern stores and offices, as well as the projected second Roxy Theatre, have to some extent stimulated this activity. Several large retail organizations have, within the last week, either signed up for location or shown the intention of so doing, recognizing that this is the centre of a highly populated and fast growing section of New York, as well as the entrance to Manhattan from Long Island City and Queens. Every live retail chain store should locate in this section before all the available store frontage disappears. We have complete information on all this property and would like to work with you.

$203,321,000 STOCK BONUS IS VOTED BY U. S. STEEL TO 86,000 SHAREHOLDERS

HEAVY DEALINGS IN SHARES

Sales on Stock Market Total 4,425,300—Wall Street Is Excited by Rumors.

Confidence in Continuation of General Business Prosperity Seen in Its Action.

A Christmas present of $203,321,000 to stockholders of the United States Steel Corporation was unexpectedly determined upon by the Board of Directors yesterday afternoon. The distribution, which will come in the form of a 40 per cent. stock dividend, takes rank with the most famous melon-cuttings in Wall Street history. The decision to recommend to stockholders the necessary increase in the corporation's capital, which in effect is a capitalization of a part of its tremendous surplus, was announced by E. H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors, in a brief, matter-of-fact statement after the close of the stock market and after the financial community had passed through a day of suspense.

"On the unanimous recommendation of the Finance Committee," Chairman Gary's announcement read, "the Board of Directors has unanimously voted to recommend to the stockholders at the regular annual meeting of the corporation to be held on the third Monday of April, 1927, that the common capital shares of the corporation be increased by 2,068,210 shares, which is equivalent to 40 per cent. of the present outstanding common shares, for the purpose of distributing the same as an extra special dividend to the common stockholders. It is believed the property conditions and earning capacity of the corporation justify the proposed action at this time."

Rumors Precede Action.

This formal announcement was made in the offices of the corporation on the seventeenth floor of 71 Broadway without particular attention to the dramatic possibilities of the situation. In Wall Street all day rumors of all sorts had been flying thick and fast. They were accentuated by a rumor printed by tickers that an important announcement would be made by the Steel Corporation and by Mr. Gary's remark in questions that nothing would be said "until after 3 o'clock."

Reporters who were ushered into Mr. Gary's office just as the clock on Trinity Church, near by, struck the hour of 3:00 found an impressive assemblage of America's leading financiers grouped around the Chairman's big mahogany desk. J. Pierpont Morgan sat near it and on the lefthand side of the corporation's chairman sat George F. Baker, the venerable financier who, with Mr. Morgan, was credited later by Wall Street with having had most to do with the declaration of the dividend. All the corporation's directors except Nathan L. Miller, Robert L. Winsor of Boston and George F. Baker Jr. were present. In the group, all of whom had acquiesced in the voting, were William J. Filbert, controller of the company; Samuel Mather of Cleveland, Thomas Morrison of Pittsburgh, who runs the Carnegie Steel Company; John S. Phipps of New York, William P. Palmer of Cleveland, Percival Roberts Jr. of Philadelphia, Myron C. Taylor of New York, Eugene J. Buffington, who manages the Illinois Steel Company, and James A. Farrell, President of the corporation and second in command to Mr. Gary.

Gary Reads Statement.

There were no ceremonies at all. Mr. Gary, who took charge of the proceedings, merely announced that he had a statement to read and that he wanted the directors of the corporation to meet the newspaper reporters and the reporters to meet the directors. He read the statement announcing the dividend and a member of his staff passed out typewritten copies of what he had read. He remarked that it had been a unanimous decision of the members of the board.

Five minutes later, so well had the telephone connections been arranged between the corporation's office and the newspaper offices, the news tickers were tapping out the message of the big stock dividend by the world's largest corporation.

All the directors appeared to be in an unusually cheerful frame of mind. Mr. Baker and Mr. Morgan hobnobbed with Mr. Gary after the formalities of the meeting ended, and all three seemed to be well pleased at the happenings of the day.

This action of the board, which none but the most optimistic of stockholders had expected until the rumors reached Wall Street yesterday morning, means an increase in the corporation's common share capital from $508,302,500 to $712,305,578. Already rated as the largest industrial corporation in existence, the United States Steel Corporation will now have a capitalization of $1,420,611,156, including $708,305,578 of preferred shares.

Revolt Starts in Portugal; Troops Sent to the South

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 16 (AP).—Measures have been taken by President Carmona and his Government either to prevent serious disturbances threatened in Southern Portugal or to put down an uprising, rumors of which have reached the capital.

Trouble was reported to have started in the South, where the railway men either were on strike or have threatened to tie up the lines. It is announced that military dispositions have been effected wherever necessary and that the Government is determined to suppress vigorously all subversive attempts and that it guarantees tranquility throughout the country.

LONDON, Dec. 16 (AP).—Another military rising is reported today from Portugal. Probably owing to the censorship no independent details have been received, but the Portuguese Government has issued a statement to reassure the public mind.

It admits that some kind of subversive movement has occurred in the southern part of the country, and announces that necessary military measures have been taken to insure public order.

VOTE $65,000 SALARY TO BASEBALL CZAR

FEUD WITH JOHNSON BURIED

American League President Is First to Extend Congratulations at the Joint Session.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16 (AP).—With peace and good-will reigning, the major league club owners, in joint session today, re-elected Kenesaw Mountain Landis to a second term of seven years as Commissioner and gave him a Christmas present of a $15,000 increase in salary, making it $65,000 a year.

Ban Johnson, President of the American League, who was put off the Advisory Council two years ago and rebuked by his club owners for criticising Landis, today was the first to extend his congratulations to the fiery, white-haired ruler of the diamond. They shook hands and the formal felicitations of the American League were presented to the Commissioner.

The magnates were in session, with Landis presiding, about three hours, and in contrast with the stormy sessions of the past, when sounds of loud talks and bangs of the gavel emanated from the conference room, today there was only the hum of friendly conversation. To celebrate the burial of the hatchet Landis invited all the club owners to a dinner tonight at the Chicago Athletic Association.

Colonel Jacob Ruppert of the New York Yankees made the motion to reelect Landis and William Veeck of the Chicago Cubs seconded the motion. Then Frank Navin of Detroit rose to cast the unanimous vote of the American League and President John Heydler of the National League added the joint endorsement of his circuit.

Advisory Board Elected.

The Advisory Board, over which Landis presides, although he has ignored it for the past two years because of the Johnson controversy, then was elected, with Heydler and Johnson as the major league representatives and M. H. Sexton, President, and John H. Farrell, Secretary, of the minor leagues representing those organizations.

With these two problems, Landis's re-election and the Advisory Board, settled harmoniously, the magnates then met the draft dispute in the same manner. The clause in the major-minor

GOV. SMITH TO REVIVE DEMAND THAT STATE BACK HOUSING BANK

Program to End Slums Will Fail Without Such Financial Aid, He Is Said to Believe.

HIS FIRST PROPOSAL KILLED

TWO PLANS PUSHED HERE

City Corporation and the Brooklyn Commerce Chamber Will Form Companies to Build Low Rent Homes.

There is good reason to believe that when the new Legislature meets—possibly in his annual message to that body—Governor Smith will revive his proposal for the creation of a State housing bank to finance housing projects.

In his first message dealing exclusively with housing and slum clearance which was sent to the Legislature at this year's session, the Governor recommended that a State housing bank be created. A bill, drafted by Julius Henry Cohen and submitted with the message to carry out the recommendations, contained provision for a housing bank as its central feature. The Republicans, who then—as they will be next year—were in control of both branches of the Legislature would not hear of the housing bank, which they pronounced socialistic and tending to drag the State, into housing projects through the moral responsibility it tacitly must accept for securities issued by the bank.

The housing law, now on the statute books, is a compromise measure. It is the best thing the Governor could get out of the 1926 Legislature. He was frankly dubious of the usefulness of any housing legislation that left the housing bank out. Now he is said to be convinced that the housing program will fail unless provision is made for financing housing projects through a bank such as had been suggested. Governor Smith has the success of his house program more closely at heart even than his water power project.

Republicans Drew the Law.

The Republicans who actually drew the present housing law and at the time of its passage expressed great pride in their performance as demonstrating—as they professed to believe they had—that the Governor was in the wrong for once, urged that the legislation they had sponsored would tend to encourage private philanthropists to come to the front and provide the necessary capital to wipe out the slums and erect modern low-priced dwellings on a large scale.

The Governor made his appeal for support for the housing program at the housing dinner at the Biltmore on Wednesday, and from now on supporters of his housing program will wait for the response, which is not yet in evidence.

The housing bank proposed by the Governor would, like the New York Port Authority, be a quasi-public corporation, empowered to issue its own bonds, which would be exempt from State and Federal taxation, and market them to raise the necessary funds for housing projects undertaken by corporations whose dividends would be strictly limited to 5 per cent. The limited dividend corporations would go to the bank for the necessary capital which that institution would lend on mortgages secured by the properties involved. As originally drafted, the Housing bill provided that the limited dividend corporations would be required to raise one-third of the necessary capital among their own members, whereupon loans could be obtained from the housing bank for the remaining two-thirds.

Two Projects To Be Launched.

Two large housing projects under the new State Housing law, aimed at the elimination of old-law tenements, will almost certainly be undertaken in the near future, one in Manhattan and the other in Brooklyn, as a result of the preliminary report of the State Housing Board made public on Wednesday.

In addition to the activity of the City Housing Corporation, whose desire to undertake the replacement of old tenements was announced at the dinner by Alexander Bing, it was ascertained

Dakota-Like Blizzard Blinds Buffalo; Gale and Fire Accompany Peculiar Storm

BUFFALO, Dec. 16 (AP).—A howling blizzard raged in Buffalo all day today. The downtown section, which bore the brunt of the storm sweeping in off Lake Erie, was in semi-darkness most of the time.

Meanwhile in the outskirts of the city and in suburbs to the north the snow fell gently to a depth of eight or ten inches, and 22 miles north of Niagara Falls there was no storm. Through the vagaries of the elements Buffalo proper was storm-bound while nearby communities escaped.

A fire which started in the Union Dock Company's warehouse on the Blackwell Canal threatened the whole grain elevator district but was extinguished, despite the storm, after about $300,000 of damage had been done. Most of the loss was due to the destruction of flour and feed stored.

Embers started numerous small fires across the canal, but each was extinguished before much damage was done.

One man died from natural causes after struggling through the storm to work. Several persons were treated in hospitals for frozen hands. One man was injured by an automobile when the snow obscured him from the driver's vision.

A train containing a juror in the James C. Voelker poison alcohol trial was stuck in the drifts long enough to cause a postponement of the trial for a day. Thousands of workers were late at their places of employment as the storm slowed down trolley and automobile traffic.

The local weather bureau termed the storm a blizzard such as is experienced in the Dakotas and Nebraska. It was caused by a strong southwest wind off the lake striking an extremely low temperature over the city. The wind blew at 30 to 50 miles an hour all day.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Dec. 16 (AP).—A blanket of snow twelve inches deep covered Watertown today. The storm reached near blizzard proportions, and, after the snowfall had ceased, the wind piled up huge drifts.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16 (AP).—Fatalities from the week's storm ascended to twenty-four today, with another death from cold here and deaths at Sheridan, Wyo., and Saginaw, Mich. Navigation on the Great Lakes was declared ended for the season.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP).—Vienna Mine, Idaho, has the thickest snow covering, sixty-six inches, of any spot in the country, the Weather Bureau reported today.

HECKSCHER MILLION FOR CENTRAL PARK

W. B. Roulstone Tells Estimate Board Group Is Ready to Match Like Sum by City.

FUND TO PRESERVE BEAUTY

Park Defender Also Urges the Conversion of Old Lower Reservoir Into a Parking Space.

An item which has stood upon the calendar for months for an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the rehabilitation of Central Park gave opportunity to William B. Roulstone, President of the Central Park Association and counsel to the Parks and Playgrounds Association, to renew his plea before the Board of Estimate yesterday for the preservation and improvement of the city's greatest central playground.

Mr. Roulstone announced that August Heckscher and a group of other philanthropists had assured Mayor Walker that if the city would appropriate the required $1,000,000 toward saving the trees and otherwise rehabilitating the park Mr. Heckscher and his associates would match the sum with another $1,000,000 or any part thereof for the same purpose.

Mayor Walker nodded affirmation of the statement and remarked: "That is quite true, Mr. Roulstone."

Mayor Counsels a Delay.

The Mayor, however, urged the park champion to be patient until the first week in January, when the city authorities would again have taken stock of the financial resources of the city and would be in better position to recommend public improvements in the order of their importance. The present Administration, the Mayor said, was burdened with requests for improvements that have been neglected for the last twenty years.

Mr. Roulstone recommended that a special advisory park committee of citizens be appointed by the Mayor to advise in connection with the proposed park improvement plan.

In the course of his address Mr. Roulstone made a new suggestion for the utilisation of the old lower reservoir in the park. It was a pet project of the Hylan Administration to make the old reservoir base the site for an elaborate World War memorial, but the several park protective associations, rallied their forces against it as an encroachment which did not properly belong in the city's breathing place and as one which would be foreign to legitimate park purposes.

Mr. Roulstone said yesterday that some of his friends and associates in the park preservation movement had suggested that the old reservoir, which now plays no important part in the city's water system, be drained, that it then be roofed or covered over, the cover resting upon the reservoir's present retaining walls; that the upper space be utilized for supplementary park purposes and recreation and that the large space beneath the roof or cover be converted into a commodious parking place for automobiles.

Mayor Walker, who appeared to be somewhat impressed by the suggestion, referred it to Arthur S. Tuttle, Chief Engineer of the Board of Estimate, who was directed to investigate and report upon the feasibility and desirability of the project.

Parking Troublesome Problem.

The problem of what disposition to make of the hundreds of cars which need parking space in the vicinity of Fifth Avenue and which now encumber and congest traffic by standing along the side streets is one which has long been a subject of study by the city authorities. Dr. John S. Harriss, who was a Deputy Commissioner of the Police Department in the Hylan Administration and a recognized authority upon city traffic regulation, was the author of a suggestion made some months ago. His idea was to excavate an extensive subterranean garage in some part of the park area conveniently close to Fifth Avenue and to accommodate cars therein.

This project met with such a storm of opposition that it never made substantial progress. Mr. Roulstone and his associates were among its active opponents.

RADIO TAKES VOICE TO LIGHT ST. LOUIS

Mayor Miller Speaks, Streets Blaze and Throng Cheers Feat in Transmission.

VOCAL IMPULSE FLASHED

Sent Through Pittsburgh Station, It Actuates Relays to Open $8,000,000 System.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 16.—Before a crowd of about 2,000 tonight, Mayor Victor J. Miller stepped across the improvised speakers' stand erected at Broadway and Convent Street and spoke distinctly into the transmitter of a telephone.

"Gentlemen, we are ready."

Exactly twenty-five seconds later darkened Broadway and all the district included in the first completed portion of the $8,000,000 bond issue street lighting project was flooded with a soft, distributive illumination.

No levers had been touched, no switches thrown. Traveling by telephone wire, the Mayor's voice entered the microphone of a radio instrument at the KDKA studio in Pittsburgh and was broadcast on an extremely short wave length through five relays to a station set up at the Westinghouse plant in St. Louis. Here the radio impulse made connections with the circuit and the lights flashed on.

Mayor Miller had just time to return from the instrument and clap his hat on his head before the vocal impulse of the words he had uttered had actuated relays that threw into operation the 3,579 lights comprising the first unit of the system.

This was the first time in the history of radio such a feat had been attempted. It was arranged for by engineers of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, which furnished the materials for the new installation. Engineers declared it was a striking example of the great progress made in the control and utilization of radio waves during the six years of broadcast history.

The facilities of the Westinghouse company involved in the operation included its transmitting equipment in East Pittsburgh, where its international short-wave station is located, and special receiving equipment in St. Louis, which was arranged so as to actuate extremely sensitive relays. These, in turn, threw into operation the substation controlling the street lighting system.

Transmitting from East Pittsburgh to St. Louis was on a sixty-three-meter wave-length.

Here in St. Louis tonight the wide street along Broadway at Convent was filled with men, women and many children in spite of the biting cold. They listened and sang, clapped and shouted enthusiastically as they were told briefly about the new lights.

The Mayor spoke for about five minutes, prefacing his talk with the seasoned yarn of old Mayor Ziegenheim, who answered a complaint about the city lights with the blythe observation: "Well, we got a moon yet, ain't it?"

Mayor Miller said that St. Louis could now satisfactorily supplement the moon and possibly go it one step better in street lighting.

"The eyes of all the large cities of the United States were first focused on St. Louis because of the $87,000,000 bond issue for municipal improvements," he said, "and tonight marks the greatest achievement accomplished under the bond issue—the beginning of an electric street lighting system on a more comprehensive and larger scale than heretofore attempted anywhere in the world."

"Tonight we feel it only proper that the modern wonder of the century, the radio, is the only fitting agency to turn on a system of this magnitude.

"I am informed that at exactly 8 o'clock this evening a word spoken by me into this telephone will travel over wires to the world's first broadcasting station, KDKA, at East Pittsburgh, and at that point will set into motion the powerful radio impulse which will travel through the air back to St. Louis almost with the speed of light."

Later, when the radio feat had been accomplished, the Mayor said:

"As we look about us and see the lights that were dark a moment ago burning to their full brilliancy it is hard to comprehend the man-made miracle and to visualize the magnitude of the undertaking.

"We have required in part 9,367 concrete lamp standards, 515 miles of parkway cable, 8 miles of primary conduits, 19 carloads of glassware and electrical equipment, 3,600 bags of cement, 10,800 tons of sand, 7,200 tons of crushed stone and 3,000,000 sidewalk paving bricks."

COL. SMITH APPOINTED SENATOR BUT FACES CERTAIN REJECTION

Ashurst Puts In Resolution Barring Him Pending Action on Insull Donations.

REED GIVES GIFT FIGURES

Fewer Than Ten Senators Are Likely to Vote for Smith Should He Present Himself.

ACCEPTANCE IN ABEYANCE

Senator-Designate in Chicago Says He Will Announce His Decision Today or Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Scarcely had the news reached Washington today of the appointment by Gov. Small of Illinois of Colonel Frank L. Smith as United States Senator to fill the unexpired term of the late William B. McKinley than mutterings were heard of the storm which will engulf the new member designate of the upper house of Congress if he should disregard party warnings and present himself to be sworn in.

Senator Ashurst of Arizona took the lead by offering a resolution to deny a seat to Mr. Smith. This went over for debate tomorrow.

Almost certain rejection faces Mr. Smith if he does present his credentials, notwithstanding his election in November to the full term as Senator beginning on March 4 next. Mr. Smith, it was said by outstanding Senate Republicans, could muster fewer than ten votes in the upper house for the unexpired term.

Whether he is actually seated and his right to sit then contested, or whether his credentials are referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections before he has a chance to take the oath, it now appears definite that he will not be permitted to be a member of the present Senate. Republicans who pleaded with him not to force his way here are enraged at him and at Governor Small, because they realize that Smith's appearance at the Senate door may result in an extra session, something the "farm bloc" wants and which leaders are doing their best to prevent.

Utility Contributions.

A report that he had accepted the appointment immediately set in motion plans to bar Smith, to whom objection is made because he accepted large campaign contributions from public utility men at a time when he was Chairman of the Illinois Commerce Commission, which regulated the rates charged by the public utilities.

Senator Reed and other members of his investigating committee rushed out a partial report of their inquiry into the Smith campaign. Although this report made no recommendations, it emphasized that nearly $300,000 of the $458,782 spent for Smith came from owners of traction, power and other public utility concerns.

The resolution offered by Senator Ashurst that Smith be not permitted to take the oath also instructed the Reed committee to submit early recommendations. The resolution went over by agreement until tomorrow, when its consideration is expected to provoke a vigorous debate. The resolution read:

Resolved, That the qualifying oath be not administered to Hon. Frank L. Smith, the member designate, and that the special committee appointed under and by authority of Senate Resolution 195, Sixty-ninth Congress, first session, be and hereby is directed to report to the Senate at the earliest convenient date such recommendations in the premises as may to said special committee seem warranted.

Divided as to Methods.

Sentiment regarding the course to take toward Smith was divided tonight, even among Southerners, who had generally insisted, on the principle of State's rights, the credentials of a State must be recognized and their holder seated, no matter what action might be taken afterward. Such stalwart Democrats as Bruce of Maryland and Glass of Virginia wished to stop Smith at the Senate door, but Overman of North Carolina and Blease of South Carolina staunchly maintained Smith's right to be seated, his credentials then to be referred to a committee.

In all probability, nothing will be done tomorrow except to discuss the Ashurst resolution, without disposing

Live Christmas Tree Arrives Today for Times Square Fete

Broadway's living Christmas tree, 35 feet high, with its roots encased in soil, is expected to arrive in Times Square at 11 o'clock this morning and be placed on the revolving platform it will occupy throughout the holiday season. It will be dressed up with gay trinkets and multicolored lights and be dedicated next Wednesday.

SENATOR DENOUNCES THE JUDGE AND JURY

Heflin Asserts Fall Would Not Have Gone on Trial Unless Assured of Result.

JESS SMITH SLAIN, HE SAYS

Walsh Defends Justice Hoehling Declaring Criminal Guilt Is Hard to Prove.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—In a bitter speech in the Senate this afternoon soon after the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty" in the Fall-Doheny oil lease conspiracy case, Senator Thomas J. Heflin, Democrat, of Alabama, attacked Justice Hoehling for presiding in the case, although a Harding appointee, and charged that the jury had been tampered with. He asserted that in his belief former Secretary Fall would not have gone on trial unless assured of a mistrial or acquittal.

He declared that the jury on being locked up last night sang "Bye-bye, Blackbird." This he interpreted as a signal, "one perhaps agreed upon by somebody who was to sit in that solemn sanctum of justice and undertake to whitewash and turn out two of the vilest criminals that ever came this way."

The Alabama Senator also attacked the New York trial of former Attorney General Daugherty, and stated his belief that Mr. Daugherty also would not have gone on trial "unless he had known somebody on the jury would hang there until doomsday or acquit him or make a mistrial."

He expressed the opinion that Jess Smith, the friend of the former Attorney General, did not commit suicide, but was murdered in Mr. Daugherty's apartment in Washington during the Harding Administration, hinting that he knew too much and somebody was afraid of disclosures.

Other Senators Are Amazed.

Senator Heflin's entire speech occupied half an hour and was delivered in such a vehement manner that other Senators were amazed. Later, Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, took the floor to say that he thought his colleague had erred in criticizing Justice Hoehling. Earlier in the day Senator Walsh, commenting on the trial, had said:

"It is to be borne in mind that conviction in a criminal case can be had only when the evidence removes all reasonable doubt of the guilt of the defendant. The verdict will scarcely remove the widespread view that the transaction was reprehensible in character."

After Mr. Walsh spoke in defense of Justice Hoehling, Mr. Heflin made the statement that he had been misled by a report about the trial in a Washington newspaper. He reiterated, however, that he thought Justice Hoehling, having been appointed by President Harding, should have refused to preside over the case.

Gives His Version of Smith's Death.

It was in the midst of his denouncement of the Court and jury that Mr. Heflin expressed his opinion of the manner of Mr. Smith's death. He had declared that Justice Hoehling had Defendants Express Gratitude, Seeing Full Vindication in Their Oil Transactions.

STILL FACE BRIBE CHARGE

Trial on This Indictment Not Yet Decided—Fall-Sinclair Case Will Be Pressed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Albert B. Fall, who was Secretary of the Interior in the Cabinet of President Harding, and Edward L. Doheny, the Los Angeles oil operator, were acquitted today on the charge of having entered into a conspiracy the culmination of which was the leasing to the Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company of the rich oil fields in the Elk Hills naval oil reserve of California. The verdict came after the jury had been out nineteen hours, the delay in arriving at a decision being due, it is understood, to the reluctance of two members of the jury to vote "not guilty."

What happened today may mean the end of Mr. Doheny's troubles, so far as the naval reserve criminal cases are concerned, but not those of Mr. Fall, who will probably go on trial next month with Harry F. Sinclair as co-defendant on a similar charge involving the lease of the Teapot Dome to the Sinclair interests.

In this action the Government will charge that Fall received in Liberty bonds, or their cash equivalent, at least $320,000, the money being part of the alleged "skim-off" in the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., of Canada deal, in which Mr. Sinclair had a prominent part. Others interested in it, according to the Government, were James O'Neil, then President of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company; H. M. Blackmer, at the time Chairman of the Board of Mid-Western Refining Company; Colonel Robert Stewart of the Standard of Indiana and H. M. Osler, a lawyer, of Toronto.

Jury at First Sharply Divided.

The verdict today came as a surprise to most of those who had closely followed the trial of the ex-Cabinet officer and the man who is credited with the discovery of the Southern California oil fields. The general impression was that the case would end in a deadlock and that a mistrial would be directed by the Court, for at 10 o'clock last night all the signs were that a sharp division of opinion existed and that the jurymen were far apart.

In the course of the night, however, the "doubters" were won over and the verdict was ready when Justice Hoehling convened court at 10 o'clock this morning. Mr. Doheny and Mr. Fall were in their seats surrounded by their array of counsel when Justice Hoehling entered the chamber.

A minute later the jury, which had been locked up during the twenty-two days of the trial, filed into the court room. Harry B. Dertsbaugh, clerk of the court, faced Alphonso E. Parker, the foreman, and inquired if a verdict had been reached.

"We have," Mr. Parker replied.

"Do you find the defendants Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny guilty or not guilty?" Mr. Dertsbaugh asked.

"Not guilty," replied Mr. Parker, and the families and close friends of the defendants in the back of the room, unable to suppress their joy, gave way to a demonstration that was quieted only after the marshal had very nearly wrecked his gaval banging for order. Then the jury was asked if the verdict represented the views of each and every member of it and the dead silence that followed was the affirmative answer.

Friends Surround Acquitted Men.

There was no question of the joy with which Mr. Doheny received the verdict. Happiness fairly radiated from his face and the same was true, but it seemed to a somewhat less extent, of Mr. Fall. The two elderly men were quickly surrounded by counsel, relatives and friends. Doheny grasped the hand of Fall and after that they held a reception during which chairs were overturned, papers and books which littered the long tables behind which counsel had sat were thrown about the room while the well-wishers of the acquitted men scrambled and tugged at one another in the effort to be among the first to shake the hands of Fall and Doheny.

Frank J. Hogan, chief counsel for Mr. Doheny, shared in the demonstration, as did to a lesser degree the other legal lights of the defense.

Mrs. Fall, her daughter, Mrs. C. C. Chase, and Edward L. Doheny Jr. were among the first to reach Mr. Fall and Mr. Doheny. Tears were in the eyes of the two women, while young Doheny was all smiles. There was a trace of tears, it seemed, in the eyes of Doheny, but Fall remained the grim, stern-faced man Washington had known when he was a Senator and in

District Attorney and Aide Convicted Of Selling Justice in San Diego Murder

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 16 (AP).—District Attorney Chester C. Kempley and his chief assistant, C. Guy Selleck, were found guilty by a jury today of asking and receiving a bribe to misconduct a murder trial.

They were charged with accepting $40,000 from William R. Johnson of Chicago, to misconduct the trial of Thomas A. Johnson and Hugh McGovern, charged with the murder of George McMahon. McMahon's body, bearing gunshot and knife wounds, was found on a highway near here.

Johnson and McGovern were acquitted at their murder trial. The District Attorney and his assistant prosecuted the case.

A knife bearing the symbol of a Chicago club was found plunged in McMahon's body. It was brought out that Johnson and McGovern had been his companions, all three having come to California from Chicago. No motive for the slaying was developed.

Agnes Keller, a convict in San Quentin Penitentiary, was the principal witness against the attorneys. She testified that Kempley on his return from a trip to Chicago told her that $40,000 was ready for payment to him when Johnson and McGovern were acquitted. She testified that she acted as a go-between for William R. Johnson of Chicago, the alleged bribegiver, and had paid $300 to Selleck and $100 or $200 to Kempley.

Kempley and his assistant announced that they would appeal. They were released on bond of $5,000 each.

At the November election Kempley was defeated for another term. A special prosecutor was appointed by the State Attorney General to conduct the case against the officials.

Cap'n Gil, Blind, Dies on Land He Shunned; Hulk of His Beloved Ship Will Be Sunk at Sea

PATCHOGUE, L. I., Dec. 16.—Cap'n Gil Moger, skipper of the oyster boat Black Swan, died today on land, and he was glad to go. Cap'n Gil was 93 years old, blind and feeble, and land was no place for him when, against his will, he was taken last Spring from his beloved Black Swan to the almshouse.

Cap'n Gil was not one of those deep water sailors, who knew every seabut, man and boy, he knew all about sail and loved the water. Even the blindness, which came upon him forty years ago, would not make him leave it or the Black Swan, in which he roved over Oyster Bay for his living.

Cap'n Gil had relatives and friends, and they urged him to come ashore, but he refused. At first it was all right. There were other persons working with Cap'n Gil, and they helped him. He got along. But, one by one, they left. Others replaced them, and they left. And then Cap'n Gil was alone.

The Black Swan was tied to a pier in the Patchogue River. Cap'n Gil lived there. He'd send ashore for food, cook it himself in the cabin and he was content, although many persons insisted he should leave for "his own good."

Last Spring the Black Swan caught fire. Most of the cabin was burned out before the firemen rescued him and extinguished the flames. They left him ashore, but he went back. Some one found him later in the day trying to bail water from the charred cabin. The authorities were told. Cap'n Gil was taken to the almshouse.

He died at 3 A. M., and his last words were that the Black Swan's hulk should be taken out to sea and sunk. But Cap'n Gil's body will be buried in Cedar Grove Cemetery.

the days when Warren G. Harding was in the White House.

Mr. Doheny turned to the newspaper correspondents. Some of them he shook by the hand. At the others he smiled happily.

Defendants Express Gratitude.

"Boys, I am mighty glad," he said. "It's what I deserved and what I expected, but if the verdict had been different I could have stood it."

Subsequently counsel for Mr. Doheny handed out a brief statement, which, it was said, would be all that Mr. Doheny would have to say today. It read:

"I am gratified by the result. The ordeal has been a terrible one. After a lifetime of honorable effort I have seen my principal work, which was to make a good name to hand on to my son and my grandchildren, almost destroyed. I hope that the American people, whose belief in trial by jury amounts almost to a religion, will accept the verdict of this typically American jury."

Mr. Fall said there was no question of his happiness, but he was not ready to do much talking, realizing that his ordeal was not yet at an end.

"My confidence in the court, a confidence never shaken, was justified," said Mr. Fall, "and the reason I have not said anything until now is because I have always taken the position the place to try cases is in the courts and not in the newspapers. I was always certain of vindication and all I can say at this time is that I am satisfied, happy that justice has been done."

Mrs. Doheny was not in court, being unable to be present because of a cold. From her sickroom, however, she sent a brief message—"a message of thanksgiving"—as one of her friends expressed it.

"My joy is inexpressible," Mrs. Doheny sent word. "My prayers have been answered, as I knew they would be. My heart is full of gratitude to the jury and the countless people, many of them unknown to us, who, from all parts of the country have sent us messages of encouragement and have joined their prayers to ours."

"We have had our day in court," said Edward L. Doheny Jr., "and after a fair trial have received the only verdict which justice permitted."

Mr. Hogan, who had shouldered the biggest part of the defense burden, smilingly admitted how happy he was over the outcome, but insisted he had done enough talking in court.

Lambert Sees Complete Victory.

Wilton J. Lambert, who was chief of the Fall staff, was not so reticent and he spoke, he explained, for the defense of both of the men who had stood before the bar of Justice Hoehling's court.

"As one of the counsel for the defense, I am naturally greatly pleased by the sweeping exoneration won in the trial of Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny for conspiracy to defraud the Government of the United States," said Mr. Lambert. "It is particularly gratifying in the light of the civil cases in California and Wyoming, because it marks the first and I hope final victory for these defendants. It comes after Government counsel admitted in argument they had produced the fullest evidence possible.

"Every bit of evidence bearing upon the oil contracts and leases was submitted to and considered by the Court and the jury, and this evidence proved conclusively the contention of the defense in every particular.

"In the early stages receivers were appointed for both the Elk Hills naval reserve No. 1, leased to the Pan-American Company and the Teapot Dome naval reserve No. 3, leased to the Mammoth Oil Company. In the first of the equity suits tried by the Government in Los Angeles in October, 1924, Judge Paul F. McCormick rendered a decision canceling the Elk Hills lease but awarding to the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company the approximately $12,000,000 it had expended for construction of storage facilities and oil at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

"On appeal by both Government and the Pan-American Company the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at San Francisco denied the authority of the Secretary of the Navy to make the contracts and lease and refused reimbursement to the company of the money expended. A review of both of these decisions by the United States Supreme Court is now pending upon certiorari.

Says Sinclair Is Vindicated.

"In the Sinclair case Judge Kennedy in the District Court at Cheyenne gave a decision for Sinclair, finding that the Secretary of the Navy had ample authority to make the contract and lease, that there was no evidence of fraud, and he dismissed the case, but upon appeal by the Government Judge Kenyon at St. Paul, Minn., for the United States Court of Appeals, reversed the lower court, holding that the lease must be canceled.

"This case is also before the United States Supreme Court now.

"I am confident that the verdict of acquittal of Fall and Doheny will be accepted by the public as proof, not only of the legality of the contracts and leases and the absence of fraud but also as proof that neither Fall nor Doheny nor Sinclair was in any way involved in any questionable transaction designed to defraud the Government of the United States.

"So far as the indictment for bribery is concerned, which is pending against the two Dohenys and Fall, I cannot believe that trial will be attempted in view of the fact that it is based solely upon the $100,000 loan transaction and that the jury has in effect pronounced it legal in the present case.

Both Messrs. Pomerene and Roberts displayed rare skill, as well as courtesy, in the presentation of evidence, which greatly lightened the burden of the trial."

Ex-Senator Atlee Pomerene of Cleveland and Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia, counsel for the Government, had no comment.

The jury has rendered its verdict and that is all there is to it," said Mr. Roberts, and his colleague indicated he had nothing to add.

Will Press Fall-Sinclair Case.

Mr. Roberts was asked if today's verdict meant the quashing of the indictment which charges Fall with accepting a bribe and the Dohenys—father and son—with having given and transmitted the bribe to Fall. He replied that the Government had arrived at no such decision, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

The attorney added that tomorrow when Fall and Harry F. Sinclair are arraigned in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia he would urge a speedy trial, and he seemed to be of the opinion that the trial date would be set for late in January or early in February.

When Fall and Sinclair are arraigned before Justice Bailey tomorrow morning counsel for Sinclair are expected to seek to delay the trial by a motion to quash the conspiracy indictment on the ground that Messrs. Roberts and Pomerene were acting under an authority which Congress had no right to vote and also on the plea that the Walsh law, which will be applied in this case, is not constitutional.

The Walsh law gives authority to subpoena witnesses who are out of the country through Consulates, and a failure to answer on the part of those subpoenaed renders their property in the United States subject to confiscation up to a maximum value of $100,000. This law is to be invoked in an effort to force the return of Blackmer and O'Neil, two of the men said to have been active in the Continental Trading Company transaction. Blackmer and O'Neil have been in Europe since January, 1924.

Mr. and Mrs. Doheny and their son expect to leave for Los Angeles tomorrow afternoon. Up to 6 o'clock this afternoon it was said Mr. Doheny had received between 800 and 1,000 telegrams congratulating him on his acquittal. Mr. Fall, it was said, had also received a considerable number of similar messages. Just when Mr. Fall will return to New Mexico is not known. He may remain in Washington to aid his lawyers to prepare for the criminal action involving himself and Mr. Sinclair.

Calls It Worst Thing That Has Happened to Free People Since Runnymede.

Special to The New York Times.

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 16.—The verdict of the Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial was denounced in an interview here today by Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy, as the "worst thing that has happened to free people" since the barons obtained Magna Charta at Runnymede.

Mr. Daniels added that "the real thing I would like to say on the Fall-Doheny verdict would have to be printed on asbestos as it would burn up any newspaper." He said that all the efforts he had made during his service as Secretary of the Navy and those of others had been sacrificed by the oil-leasing policies of the Administration which followed.

"The verdict showed the inferiority complex of the jury," he said. "In order to acquit, they had to believe that Japan was about to capture the United States and that 110,000,000 people had no protection from Japanese conquest except for Fall to turn over the naval reserves to Doheny so that the California oil man might make $100,000,000.

"I didn't think there were any twelve men in America stupid enough to believe such an absurdity.

"There is a crying need, certainly in the District of Columbia, for a jury system that will exclude from the jury box such mental inepts as constituted that jury."

CASE FOR GOVERNOR'S SON

Alfred E. Smith Jr. Assigned to Defend Alleged Murderer.

Alfred E. Smith Jr., Governor Smith's son, who was admitted to the bar a few days ago, was assigned by Judge William Allen in General Sessions yesterday as one of three attorneys to defend Albert Lazar, who is under indictment for the murder on Nov. 1 of Samuel Feldman, a cabaret owner of 64 Rivington Street, known to his friends as "Principe." Daniel J. Carmody and Assemblyman Maurice Bloch also were assigned to the defense.

Lazar lived at 206 Eldridge Street with Ada Wolff, who sang in Feldman's cabaret. Feldman, it is alleged, took the woman to Lazar's apartment to tell Lazar that she wanted to leave him and to live with Feldman at 107 Attorney Street. Joseph Greenberg of 32 Walton Street, a law clerk in the office of his brother Abraham at 1,457 Broadway, is said to have accompanied them. It is alleged that they found Lazar and Nathan Cohen in bed.

Lazar and the Wolff woman first told the police that they found Feldman's body in a hallway. Later she said Greenberg shot Feldman. Greenberg was found in a funeral parlor with the body. He said Lazar had killed Feldman. The Grand Jury indicted Lazar and held Greenberg as a material witness.

DEFENDS HONEST FLAPPERS

Bradley Martin Says They Have Taken a Great Step Forward.

Girls of today, the so-called flappers, are more honest in their attitude toward life than their mothers were and much more honest than their grandmothers dared to be, said Bradley Martin in an interview with James Kevin McGuinness in the current issue of McClure's, and, Mr. Martin added, he approved of flappers for that reason.

"Honesty is the most important virtue when it is honesty of thought and attitude," he said. "Many people who are rigidly honest in the conventional sense of the term are still lacking in the courage to face the facts of life. The flapper is not. Whatever her faults may be, she is ready to accept and acknowledge the truth of loving, which is the greatest social step forward any generation has taken. I say social here in the broader meaning.

"I do not contend that the flapper has not done things which deserve censure," he continued. "She has indubitably exaggerated sex to some extent. Her language and her actions have not been without unnecessary crudities. Her honesty is cruel, frequently, and she has too little regard for parental guidance."

Verdict in the Oil Trial Disappoints the Press

Editorial expressions of the newspapers of the country on the result of the oil conspiracy trial tend to be critical of the verdict as not entirely in accord with public opinion as to the facts in the case. Disappointment is voiced by many papers. Following are extracts from editorials:

NEW YORK.

Points to Conflicting Decisions.

From The World.

The World had urged that when Doheny and Fall were tried on a criminal indictment they be tried promptly, and first on the charge of bribery rather than the complex and difficult charge of conspiracy to defraud. They were not so tried. They were tried years late, and on the charge of conspiracy they have been acquitted. Let us not forget that beside yesterday's decision in the District of Columbia must be put the decision of the District Court depriving Doheny of this property he acquired—a decision a year and a half nearer the fact, a decision upheld by the Court of Appeals and now pending before the Supreme Court of the United States.

No Clean Bill for Fall.

From The Herald Tribune.

After the tumult and the shouting of the summations in the Fall-Doheny trial the common sense verdict of the twelve jurors comes as a relief to the general public which has been reading the testimony with mingled sentiments. The entire prosecution of these defendants has been enveloped in partisanship and sensationalism. The result is a wholesome corrective and a triumph for the jury system.

No one will conceive that the jury's decision is a clean bill of health for Mr. Fall. This former Secretary in a Republican Cabinet had amply demonstrated before his trial a total unfitness for public office.

Sees Doheny's Generosity a Factor.

From The American.

Two factors undoubtedly influenced the jury in the oil case to acquit: One was Edward L. Doheny's known character for extraordinary generosity to friends and to causes exciting his interest. * * * If there was impropriety in lending or giving money to a Cabinet officer, there was greater impropriety in its acceptance by a Cabinet officer in the circumstances surrounding Fall.

CLEVELAND.

Press the Bribery Charge.

From The Plain Dealer.

There is no appeal from a jury's vote of acquittal, and in this case no wish to appeal. It would be unfortunate, however, if this decision were to encourage the thought in any mind that punishment for crime is reserved for the poor and friendless alone, that the wealthy and powerful are not answerable to justice. Were courts to weigh one's purse against one's misdeeds it would mean the end of order.

Meanwhile let the Government press the bribery charge.

PHILADELPHIA.

Many Not "Satisfied."

(From The Public Ledger.)

All those everywhere who felt an honest doubt about the Government's position will be satisfied, but the country, the man in the street, the conservationists, all those who felt that the atmosphere of Washington was wrong and dangerous when the leases were made, are they quite satisfied? After all, the oil inquiry was so much "sound and fury, signifying nothing" for that is one of the implications of yesterday's verdict.

ST. PAUL.

Says Verdict Is Clean Bill.

(From The Pioneer Press.)

It is unlikely that the jury would have acquitted Fall and Doheny of conspiracy had the Government established that there was bribery. It therefore would seem that the verdict comes very close to giving Fall and Doheny a clean bill, so far as criminal guilt is concerned. But this in no way alters the fact that the leasing program was ill-advised and contrary to public interest.

KANSAS CITY.

Not "Acquitted" by Public Opinion.

From The Star.

Ex-Secretary Fall and Edward L. Doheny have been acquitted by a jury. They have not been acquitted at the bar of public opinion. Evidently the jury accepted the view that the oil leases obtained by Doheny were turned over at the instigation of the Navy Department. This is not the public's view.

The public sees an astute oil man taking advantage of the attitude of naval officials. It sees a Secretary of the Interior so anxious to favor a friend that the deal is carried out secretly. * * *

The jury perhaps felt the evidence of a conspiracy was not sufficiently definite. The public knows at least if there was not a conspiracy that Fall demonstrated his gross unworthiness to hold a public trust and that Doheny proved his lack of any sense of decency in dealing with a public official.

WASHINGTON.

Commends Conduct of Case.

From The Post.

The Government has reason to feel proud of the fact that its case was presented most thoroughly and faithfully by two of the best equipped members of the American bar. The public has good reason to feel that if any jury could have been convinced of the guilt of Edward L. Doheny and Albert B. Fall, this jury would have been so convinced by Messrs. Roberts and Pomerene.

BOSTON.

Wants Other Cases Pressed.

From the Herald.

Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny have been acquitted in the first of the criminal trials in the oil cases. They had a fair trial and the defense won. There are six other oil cases pending. It is gratifying to hear that the special counsel, Atlee Pomerene and Owen Roberts, have no intention of abandoning them.

DENVER.

"Greater Jury" Disagrees.

From The News.

The greater jury throughout the United States disagrees with the verdict of the petit jury at Washington in the case of the sovereign people versus Fall and Doheny. * * * The verdict turned in is not as the unwritten verdict of the many who reach conclusions more by a process of intuition than of ratiocination or reasoning from cause to effect.

BALTIMORE.

Verdict Does Not Remove Reproach.

From The Sun.

The acquittal does not, of course, relieve Fall and Doheny of the most severe reproach. The jury has found, after prolonged discussion, that they were not guilty of criminal action.

It has not found, and it could not find, that they were not guilty of the grossest misconduct.

DETROIT.

Doubts Change in Public Opinion.

From The Free Press.

Even those who have most insistently affirmed the guilt of Mr. Fall and Mr. Doheny possess no reasonable ground for surprise at the acquittal of the two men. * * * A conspiracy such as the one the defendants were accused of is always exceedingly difficult to prove.

As far as the public vindication of which the recent defendants speak is concerned, it is unlikely that the opinions of many people will be altered by the verdict. Those who have considered Mr. Fall and Mr. Doheny guilty probably will continue to believe them culpable, and those who have considered them innocent will of course be confirmed in their opinions.

ATLANTA.

Thinks Skepticism Will Prevail.

From The Constitution.

The verdict of a jury of twelve, after a long and fair presentation of evidence, should not be assailed. * * * But the fact, so well known to the American people, that a trusted servant of the people, acting as an agent for the people, so administered its naval reserve oil lands that they dropped into the hands of private operators, who saw a "hundred million in sight," coupled with the further fact that a hundred-thousand-dollar "loan" was made at the same time by that millionaire operator to that "trusted servant" will live in the minds of the people through the generations. And the skepticism that the circumstances have created, despite the jury verdict, will rise up to haunt the Republican Party. For certainly the former Secretary of the Interior, acting officially in that capacity at the time, was so flagrantly unethical that a jury verdict can not excuse him in public opinion.

NEW ORLEANS.

Doubts "Vindication."

From the Times Picayune.

The verdict of not guilty in the Fall-Doheny case will disappoint thousands who followed the Senate investigation of the oil lease scandal. Doheny's hundred thousand dollar "loan" to Fall, handled "confidentially" while the embattled oil leases were under negotiation and frankly confessed by the oil man during the latter investigation, was sufficient of itself to bring that remarkable deal under suspicion. * * *

Fall and Doheny go clear in so far as the "conspiracy" matter is concerned. But with the facts regarding the loan and its sensational attendant circumstances admitted, the episode retains its ugly aspect and their claim to "vindication" is not likely to be accepted at its face value by the public.

MINNEAPOLIS.

Does Not Close Case.

From The Tribune.

The general public had rather well made up its mind about Fall and Doheny, and the common judgment was

The jury's verdict does not close the case in the forum of popular opinion, wherein it is written indelibly that, knaves or not, the accused were self-convicted fools who trifled inexcusably with human credulity and suspicion.

GALVESTON.

Calls Result Hard to Explain.

From The News.

Making all due allowances for the fallibility of laymen, confused by emotional appeals and struggling to analyze a mass of intricate testimony, the verdict is still somewhat difficult to explain. * * * Mr. Doheny will hope in vain that the verdict will be accepted by the American people. Along with Mr. Fall he will continue to suffer the punishment of public contumely against which he so bitterly complains.

ST. LOUIS.

"What the People Know."

From The Globe-Democrat.

What the people know about this case is that they woke up one morning to find that immensely valuable property of theirs, delegated to a purpose of importance and high patriotism, had been lost to them in secret manipulation, and that a number of upright judges who cannot be mistaken are agreed on how it was done and why it was done.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

Holds Men "Not Innocent."

From the Republican.

We refuse to accept the jury's verdict on the moral aspects of the case. These defendants stand legally acquitted, but they are not innocent men. The jury's verdict dies in the face of every moral concept to which public administration can be reduced; and for this reason Government counsel should bring these defendants again to trial on the distinct bribery charge.

SAN FRANCISCO.

Getting Out Easily.

From The Chronicle.

Doheny, even with the cleanest motives in the world, couldn't possibly loan Fall anything with propriety. * * The loan that Doheny couldn't make with propriety, Fall, the Cabinet officer, couldn't receive honestly. Accepting the jury's verdict that there was nothing criminal in the dealings of the two old pards, Fall gets out of it very easily.

"forestalled" the jury by the nature of his charge. Then suddenly he exclaimed:

"Oh, Mr. President, it is a sad, sad situation that we have. What happened over here in New York? I want to refer to that for a moment. Mr. Daugherty, another one of the arch criminals who had Jess Smith and his man Friday, the go-between between himself and the blind tigers of the nation, the bootleggers, and who was murdered in Daugherty's apartment, was placed on trial.

"I said on this floor before and I repeat that Jess Smith never killed himself. He was shot back of the ear and there were no powder marks on his hair. I was told by a very reliable person in Washington that Jess Smith was at a dinner a night or two before he was killed and some one asked him at the party why he was a little blue or gloomy about something. He said: 'It is all up with me. They are going to get me.' In two days thereafter he was dead and dead in Daugherty's apartment. The man who had the key to the whole situation, the man who threatened to make a clean breast of it as Jess Smith had, was dead in Daugherty's apartment. Nobody knew what he knew and with him the story was closed.

Criticizes Daugherty Trial

"When Daugherty went over to New York to be tried, tried by a District Attorney appointed out of the same régime, he was tried before a Judge who was appointed by Chief Justice Taft while he was President. Chief Justice Taft, a clever and good man, was appointed to his office by President Harding, so that all around we can connect up the influences. Whether it has any effect or not, I am just giving the inside facts about it.

"I know that in my State if a juror is related by blood or marriage to any of the parties to a suit, or if he has a fixed opinion, or if there is any circumstance that would influence his judgment, he can be excused and told to stand aside. Yet here nobody seemed to ask a question about the connection of these Judges and these court officials who were to try this man for a crime committed in the Administration out of which they came.

Says He Expected a Mistrial.

"When Daugherty announced that he was ready for trial over there I said, 'They will make a mistrial or acquit him.' He never would go to trial until he knew somebody on the jury would hang there until doomsday or acquit him or make a mistrial, and that is what happened over there.

"My God, have we reached the point where criminals in high places cannot be convicted in the courts of justice? Have we reached the point where men with millions walk about the country defying all those who love law and order and defying the courts and trampling upon the statutes? It looks like we have reached that time.

"I have heard people here in Washington while this trial was going on say, 'They will be acquitted.' I said, 'Do you think the evidence warrants it?' 'Oh, no, I think they ought to be convicted. I think they are very guilty, but they are not going to be convicted. Doheny is a millionaire.'

"Doheny contributed to the campaign fund of the Republican Party largely both times. He quit the Democratic Party, and went into the Republican Party. He could not carry on his performances in the Democratic Party and he went where he could. He has gone over to the Republicans and he and Albert Fall have pulled off one of the greatest crimes ever committed in the country, and they are getting away with it."

Wants to Speak for Public.

In opening his first speech Senator Heflin said he did not want to let the day pass "without saying a word about a farcical trial that has taken place in the City of Washington." Then he declared that the people of the country were entitled "to have some one say that justice has been insulted, that an outrage has been perpetrated in the name of law and order here in the capital of the nation."

"I have read the gruesome story of Nero fiddling while Rome burned," continued Mr. Heflin. "This is the first time I ever heard of jurors, solemnly charged with a grave and responsible duty, going merrily about their work and singing as they turned loose two of the most high-handed highwaymen the country has ever produced.

"Doheny conspired with Fall to obtain the nation's oil reserve. They had been set aside by a Republican President, Mr. Roosevelt, to be used some day in national defense, may be in an hour of the nation's peril. These reserves were preserved by President Wilson and turned over to the Republican Administration, Mr. Harding then being President, and this man Doheny, oil king of the West, conspired with a member of the Republican Cabinet, one Alfred B. Fall, and bought outright his consent to barter these oil reserves of the nation.

"The story of the black satchel in which he lugged to Three Rivers, N. M., $100,000 in cash, is known to every law-abiding citizen in the nation, and he and his story have become a stench in the nostrils of decency.

"Mr. President, there have been assembled in this city to try this case before a Judge—I do not know this man; I presume that he is a very clever gentleman, but he was appointed by President Harding, and President Harding's Administration has been assailed on this floor and in every nook and corner of the nation. In this very case it was brought out in the evidence, as they said as a fact, that Harding had approved the awful deal of smuggling away and selling the oil reserves of the nation—and this man who tried the case was appointed by Harding.

"This case should not have been tried by him under the circumstances. Fall was a member of the Harding Cabinet, and Doheny, the close conspirator, friend of this member of the Cabinet being tried before this judge here in the District of Columbia, with a jury to be selected by the machinery established in that court in that environment and in that particular atmosphere.

"God help the country! The United States Attorney who was to help prosecute, was also appointed by Harding to his position. The United States Marshall, the machinery, was born of the Harding Administration. This crime was committed in the Harding Administration.

"I speak of this matter because I burn with righteous indignation when I contemplate what has occurred here. The poor unfortunate man and woman anywhere in the country uninfluential, in the common walks of life, are herded like cattle and are sent to the penitentiary, and they are in there now by the hundreds of thousands. But a rich man cannot be convicted under this Administration. If a man has money he has the passport to his freedom. If he has money, he can defy your courts. If he has money, he can stay his proceedings and continue his case until he is ready for trial.

"I am going to make a confession, a conviction that came to me and I have not given expression to it before. As soon as the defense announced that it was ready for trial I believed already that it had had an arrangement made by which it knew there would be an acquittal or a mistrial. That is a serious statement to make, but as God is my judge and in my place and on my responsibility as a Senator, I dare to make it in this place.

"I thank God that there is a place in the Republic where the representatives of the people can make their statements and declare their convictions without being fined by a court for contempt of that court, and here is one of those places.

Calls Proceedings Farcical.

"All law-abiding citizens will hang their heads with shame as they read of this farcical proceeding in the capital of the nation. God help us and God help the nation! These men, who raveled in high places; these men, who occupied a place in the Cabinet, who held high responsible positions in the greatest Government of the globe, walk about the country now freed of their treasonable performance—treason to their country!"

After making the charge concerning Jess Smith's death, Mr. Heflin resumed:

"There has been a little note sounded in the press every now and then about the trial that indicated that Fall knew what was going to happen. They have told how he sat back and did not seem to be disturbed. The paper this morning said that after the Judge's charge had been made he expressed gratification that a clear and fearless statement of the case had been made to Fall's countrymen. If his countrymen had a chance at him—I mean those away from Washington in a real court—they would put a necktie on him that would be a yellow one in the shape of a grass rope. He ought to be punished."

Referring to the possible effect of the verdict, Senator Heflin said:

"The greatest crime wave that has ever come on the country has come now, and how they will be encouraged when they read that the biggest criminals of the nation have gone out of the court house with a verdict of approval on their backs and with the Court smiling his approval. I judge so from the expressions that Mr. Fall is quoted as having made. He was highly pleased with the charge. I wish I could have charged that jury."

"Mr. President, the country had better wake up. When they tamper with the ballot box, this ark of the covenant in our civic affairs, and then tamper with the jury box, the poor man's hope and salvation, the country's city of refuge and stronghold—when they pollute and corrupt these two our Government is gone.

"As far as Admiral Robison is concerned, I put him in the same class with Doheny and Fall. I think he is just as guilty as they are. I think he betrayed his trust and if there is any way to take him off the payroll of the Government—he is retired, as I understand it—I will vote to take him off, because I believe that he was a party to the conspiracy."

In regard to the action of the jury Mr. Heflin said:

"I have been wondering, since this singing commenced so early in the jury box, if somebody had an understanding and said let us know how it looks. You cannot say anything but you can sing 'Way Down on the Swanee River' and 'Good Bye Blackbird' when they ought to have said 'Good Bye Fall and Doheny.'

"Oh, when the singing started I imagine that somebody outside said they are going to acquit you, it is all right. They are singing the song that they agreed to sing; and it was not the Lord's song, either, in a strange land."

DELANEY DEFENDS TUBE FINANCE PLAN

Says Berry Does Not Understand It or Is Determined to Force a Fare Increase.

UPHOLDS RIGHT TO SPEAK

Declares Controller Insists on Piling Up Debt at Expense of Subway Riders.

John H. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation, replied yesterday to criticism by Controller Berry of his proposal to use half of the city's increase of revenues from taxation to build new subways by asserting that either General Berry did not understand the proposal or was determined to force an increased fare.

Mr. Delaney reiterated that it cost only 3 cents per passenger to run the rapid transit trains and declared that the Berry policy, if followed, would increase the fare to 10 cents by adding 7 cents per passenger for service on debt.

Defending what General Berry characterized as a "stupid" policy, Mr. Delaney gave specific answers to questions put by the Controller as to where the alleged "surplus" funds from taxation were, what the Chairman of the Board of Transportation had to do with the city's finances and who authorized him to speak for the Board of Estimate.

Sees Debt Piling Up.

"The city will have $30,000,000 more in tax revenues next year than it has this year from the same rate of $2.67 tax on $100," Mr. Delaney said. "That is the money that was available before Mr. Berry persuaded the Board of Estimate to include in the new city budget the entire $30,00,000 for ordinary city expenses and nothing for building subways.

"The funds are not being kept—they are to be expended, but not on subway building, because Mr. Berry insists in piling up city debt, and an enormous load of interest, that the riders on the subway must pay in car-fares. It only costs 3 cents per passenger to run the trains, but the Berry policy will add 7 cents for interest on debt.

"The five-cent fare would be permanent if the city would raise the money for one-half the cost of the subways by selling bonds that would be redeemed in five years instead of bonds running fifty years, but Mr. Berry says that is a stupid policy.

"The Board of Transportation has much to do with the city's finances because it is the authority designated by law to plan and construct city rapid transit railroads. It is instructed in the law to advise and inform the Board of Estimate about every detail of cost of construction, equipment and operation and to estimate in advance the amount of money that the new lines will earn and how much it will cost to run them. The answer to Mr. Berry's questions is that it is the plain duty of the Chairman of this board to report and advise in respect to financial policy that affects the rate of fare that must be charged on the new subways—and such reports have been made orally and in writing to the Board of Estimate."

Gave Data to Budget Makers.

Mr. Delaney said that he and his associate, Daniel L. Ryan, in an effort to retain the five-cent fare had explained their plan to General Berry and to the Board of Estimate while the budget was under consideration and had demonstrated that the city revenues from increased realty values, due largely to subway construction, would increase $30,000,000 next year if the present tax rate was continued.

"We suggested that instead of selling fifty-year bonds to provide money for building subways the board should at once authorize the issuance of $75,000,000 of serial bonds redeemable in instalments of $15,000,000 each year for five years and include in this year's budget $15,000,000 out of the abnormal increase in revenues as the first annual contribution to a sinking fund for the retirement of these short-term bonds," Mr. Delaney continued. "Such a policy would allow the board to apply the remaining $15,000,000 of new revenues for more school teachers, policemen and other increases in city expenses."

Mr. Delaney said that General Berry appeared to understand the plan and agree with it, but the day after the first meeting wrote the Board of Estimate that it would be unlawful to appropriate twice for the same purpose or to include in the budget an appropriation for a debt that did not exist. He declared this view of the Controller was erroneous, and continued:

Says Berry Upset Plan.

"At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Estimate we disproved all of Mr. Berry's statements about finance, and argued the advantage to the city of a definite plan for financing subway construction, and that our policy would produce a saving of interest on $75,000,000 for forty-five years, which would amount to $142,437,500 chargeable to car fares or taxes. Mr. Berry did not and could not contradict our statements, but persisted in his opposition and finally defeated our proposals.

"After all the usual budget expenses had been provided for, there was indicated a surplus of $12,000,000 at the prevailing tax rate. Instead of allotting this surplus for building new subways, Mr. Berry devised a method of disposing of it by proposing two new items to provide in advance for repaving streets and the general expenses of the Board of Transportation, which had never before been appropriated in the budget, because the amount required cannot be definitely known in advance. Consequently, there is now in the budget for 1927 provision for the payment of repaving expenses and the Board of Transportation expense for two years, nothing for building subways, and Mr. Berry proposes to sell fifty-year bonds to raise all the money for building subways.

"I have very regretfully been convinced that Mr. Berry either cannot understand our financial proposal or else that he is determined to exert all his influence and power to impose on the city a financial policy that will inevitably increase car fares. I am inclined toward the more lenient view that Mr. Berry does not know much about city finance, because he has made so many absurdly erroneous statements about the financial condition of the city, such as were contained in his letters to the other members of the Board of Estimate last July, and he has never had any experience or training in public finance.

"He has admitted that he does not know that the city has adopted a definite subway construction policy, and in his timidity he is apparently afraid to vote on subway construction contracts. He advocates an immediate increase in car fares, but has failed to support his position with any good reasons.

"My answer to Mr. Berry's last question is that I need no permission to discuss and analyze the financial policy of the city, particularly as it affects rapid transit railroads, and I intend to continue the discussion."

Writes Delaney Conditions of Offer to Aid in Transit Plan.

E. W. Estes, Secretary of the Central Park West and Columbus Avenue Association, wrote John H. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation, yesterday informing Mr. Delaney that the association's offer of cooperation, based on Mr. Delaney's announcement of efforts for a consolidation plan, did not contemplate abandonment of the injunction action brought by Jasper A. Campbell, its President, to prevent the award of a contract for the construction of the Fifty-third Street subway because of its "prevailing rate of wages" clause.

Mr. Delaney in replying to the association's ofer of cooperation said he assumed the injunction action would be abandoned, and added that the board's plans, so far as construction were concerned, had not been changed.

Mr. Estes in reply said the association believed that the subway construction plans should be fitted in with existing subways. The association, he said, was opposed to Mr. Delanev's plan to build the Fifty-third Street subway as wasteful, opposed to his plan not to connect the Washington Heights subway with the B. M. T. Broadway subway and opposed to the plan of recapturing the Culver line. He added that the association was opposed to Mr. Delaney's plan of taking tax revenues to build subways and was opposed to municipal ownership of the new subways.

SENDS BUS ULTIMATUM.

Scarsdale Tells 3d Av. Line It Must Meet Terms or Quit.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 16.—An ultimatum by the village of Scarsdale that the Third Avenue Railroad Company, which operates trolley and bus lines from White Plains to and through that village, must meet terms laid down by the Scarsdale Board of Trustees, or stop the operation of buses by Dec. 23, within the limits of Scarsdale, was received by trolley company officials today.

The company is operating buses through Scarsdale on a temporary permit, the route being over the former trolley line from White Plains to Tuckahoe. A five-year franchise was sought some time ago, and the Board of Trustees signified its willingness to grant the permit on certain conditions, among which were the assurance that there would be no double-deck bus used and that operators convicted of speeding or reckless driving would not be allowed to operate buses within the village limits. Alfred T. Davidson, attorney for the trolley company, declared the conditions would not be met.

The ultimatum means that unless a compromise is effected, Scarsdale will be able to force the stopping of buses and compel the operation of a trolley line within Scarsdale limits, so that passengers from White Plains to Tuckahoe will have to take a bus from this city to the Scarsdale line, transfer to a trolley, ride to the southern line and transfer to a bus again.

Woman's Body Identified.

The body of a woman who jumped to death from the Riverside Viaduct at 125th Street on last Tuesday was identified yesterday in the morgue by Robert Leslie of Pleasant Avenue, Maywood, N. J., as that of his wife, Louise. He said that she had been ill and despondent. She left three children. Joseph Kipchak of 556 West 132d Street, a taxicab driver, previously had said the body was that of his wife, from whom he had been separated four years, and his mistake led to his reunion with her.

Admiral Sims's Niece Wins Barnard Prize; First in Posture Contest of Health Week

Miss Varley Sims, 20-year-old Barnard College junior and niece of Admiral W. S. Sims, won first place yesterday over 1,100 fellow students in the posture contest, which was part of the Third Annual Health Week being held at the college.

The prize given to Miss Sims for her physical perfection was a bronze statuette representing "Life." Miss Emily Morris and Miss Ann Whitney ranked next to Miss Sims with second and third places, while Miss Elizabeth Metzger, last year's winner, was fourth.

Miss Sims, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Sims of 153 West Eightieth Street, was the unanimous choice of the judges. She is tall, broad of shoulder for a woman, has bobbed hair and a clear complexion, on which she says she rarely uses make-up.

"I believe my father's advice most responsible for my correct posture," said Miss Sims, "for from my earliest childhood, he has always told me to throw back my shoulders and hold my head up."

She agreed with the health authorities who had spoken at the Health Week meetings that low heeled shoes and sports clothes were more appropriate and comfortable for college wear, but admitted she liked to wear evening clothes.

"Activity appeals to me," she continued, "whether it is riding, swimming or other sports. An outdoor life makes for health and happiness, of course, and the healthy person abounds in vitality."

Models, all Barnard girls, exhibited the evolution of woman's clothes from the Stone Age to modern times. Twenty girls wore modern dress, while another group appeared in costumes ranging from the skins of the "cave woman" to the silks and satins of Queen Elizabeth of England. Miss Fredericka Gaines assumed the "cave woman" rôle, while other parts were taken by Miss Polly King as a Chinese girl and also as Cleopatra, Miss Edith Harris as Helen of Troy, Miss Theresa Jacobson as Elaine and Miss C. Dublin as Queen Bess.

It was announced that Miss Flora Sandens had won the poster contest, of which Willy Pogany, the mural painter, was the judge.

The Health Week closes today.

3 A. M. CURFEW LAW SIGNED BY WALKER

Statute Closing Night Clubs Between 3 and 8 A. M. Will Go Into Effect Jan. 1.

SPECIAL PERMITS ALLOWED

Licenses for New Year's Festivities May Be Obtained—No Objectors Appear at Final Hearing.

The 3 A. M. curfew, compelling night clubs and cabarets to remain closed between the hours of 3 and 8 o'clock in the morning, became a local law yesterday when Mayor Walker signed the act after having gone through the form prescribed by the statute of holding a final public hearing.

In signing the restrictive act, which will become effective on the morning of Jan. 1, the Mayor remarked: "I am doing this for the best interests of the city in its entirety."

Although the bill, which the Mayor himself had introduced, had met with stubborn opposition on the part of night club and cabaret proprietors and employes in the several public hearings held by each branch of the Municipal Assembly, none of the objectors appeared at the final hearing yesterday.

The one voice raised in favor of the law yesterday was that of Jabez E. Dunnipgham of the Queens Community Councils. Though the Mayor was all set to sign the bill, which was his own child, Mr. Dunningham arose in lonesome impressiveness and urged that the Mayor give this measure of protection to the city "in the best interests of its young men and women, boys and girls."

Argument Impresses Mayor.

Mayor Walker, as he reached for his pen, bowed to Mr. Dunningham and said: "I think, Mr. Dunningham, you have persuaded me."

After appending his signature, the Mayor said night club owners would have ample time between now and Jan. 1 to obtain their licenses from the Commissioner of Licenses. When asked if the bill would sound the death knell to New Year's celebrations this year, he pointed out that the License Commissioner under the law could grant exemptions for special occasions in the form of special permits.

The new law prescribes that "no person, firm or corporation shall conduct, maintain or operate, or engage in the business of conducting, maintaining or operating, in the City of New York a public dance hall or a cabaret unless the premises wherein the same is conducted, maintained or operated are licensed" by the Commissioner of Licenses. The license fee is fixed at $50 a year or fraction thereof and the Commissioner of Licenses, who is to be the judge of the qualifications of applicants for licenses, may revoke them for cause, such as violation of law, disorderly, obscene or immoral conduct permitted upon the premises.

The law specifies that "a membership corporation, club, association or society which permits musical entertainments, singing, dancing or other form of amusement in premises wherein food or drink is directly or indirectly sold to its members, or their guests, or to the public, shall be deemed to be conducting a cabaret within the meaning of this local law."

Permits for Special Occasions.

Section 5 says that premises licensed under this law shall remain closed to business between 3 and 8 o'clock A. M., and that "members or guests shall not be permitted to enter or remain therein between such hours." But it is further stipulated that "the Commissioner of Licenses, in his discretion, may permit any licensed premises to be open to the public between such hours on special occasions." Applications for such special permits must be made to the Commissioner of Licenses and a fee of $5 is to be paid for each such permit granted."

As regards special permits for dances or balls, the law specifies that such a permit shall be issued only upon condition that the dance or ball shall be held in accordance with the rules and regulations adopted by the Commissioner.

"Such Commissioner is authorized to adopt reasonable rules and regulations for the holding of such public dances and balls and for the purpose of preventing thereat any disorderly or immoral behavior or conduct calculated to disturb the public peace or safety," the measure reads.

Section 12 of the act declares:

This local law shall not apply to:

1. A hotel having upward of fifty bedrooms.
2. Premises owned and used by a membership corporation, club, society or association.
3. Premises owned, occupied or used by a religious, charitable, eleemosynary or educational corporation or institution.
4. Premises licensed pursuant to Chapter 3 of the Code of Ordinances.

In the first section of the bill definitions of terms used are made as follows:

1. The words "public dance hall" shall mean any room, place or space in the city of New York in which dancing is carried on and to which the public may gain admission, either with or without the payment of a fee.
2. The words "public dance or ball" shall mean any dance or ball of any nature or description to which the public may gain admission.
3. The word "cabaret" shall mean any room, place or space in the city in which any musical entertainment, singing, dancing or other similar amusement is permitted in connection with the restaurant business or the business of directly or indirectly selling to the public food or drink.

REPEATS GOULD CHALLENGE

Counsel Claims Support in Questioning Senate's Unseating Powers.

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 16 (AP).—Responding to Senatorial critics of his statement that the jurisdiction of the United States Senate may be challenged if it attempts to unseat Senator Arthur R. Gould, Republican, on bribery charges, Frederick W. Hinckley, counsel for the Senator, said today:

"In view of the fact that one of the Senators declared my statement nonsense; another said the Constitution gave the Senate supreme power to determine its membership and a third said that the Senate could even expel a member if it didn't like the color of his hair, I feel constrained to assure them that my statement was not an idle one."

BANTON IS AROUSED BY BEATING IN CLUB

Attempts Made to Prevent Man From Pushing Case Against Two in Cabaret, He Charges.

PROMISES HIS PROTECTION

Prisoners Plead Not Guilty of Attack and Robbery and Are Held in $3,500 Bail for Grand Jury.

Following the arraignment of two men charged with beating and robbing McKewn Whitcomb of South Orange, N. J., in the Club Biarritz, 210 West Fifty-fourth Street, early Sunday, District Attorney Joab H. Banton said he had been informed that there had been attempts to prevent Whitcomb from pushing his charges against his assailants. He then said:

"I want to serve notice on New York right now that no one can beat up a man as this man (pointing at Whitcomb, who sat near him) has been beaten, and expect to get away with it. I will protect any one in his position as complainant. Just think how many persons there must be like this who have been hushed up by threats, intimidations or fear of what may be said of them at home. No one can stop me from prosecuting any man that needs prosecuting."

Mr Banton, declaring that a hundred or more persons who had no business there had been in West Side Court yesterday morning when Magistrate Jesse Silbermann had held the two men in $3,500 bail each on charges of robbery in the first degree, said strong efforts had been made to stop the prosecution and intimated that many of those in court were interested in getting the case thrown out.

Two Deny the Charges.

The men held for the Grand Jury on Whitcomb's complaint were Frank Timpone of 3,544 Broadway, alleged part owner of the Club Biarritz, and Thomas Healey, a finance company collector, of 208 West Fifty-fourth Street, both of whom denied Whitcomb's charge. The case so interested Mr. Banton that he sent to West Side Court yesterday Assistant District Attorney Daniel O'Sullivan of his office staff to aid Assistant District Attorneys Saul Streit and Albert Kurts, regularly stationed in West Side Court. The evidence will be presented to the Grand Jury today and an indictment is expected before night.

In behalf of the defendants, Robert Seelav, attorney, of 250 West Fifty-seventh Street, waived examination after the plea had been entered. Whitcomb testified before Magistrate Silbermann that he had gone to the Club Biarritz with several friends, that their dinner bill had been $67, that this had been paid and that he had remained after his friends had gone home.

He said he bought three bottles of ginger ale and received a bill for $21, which he protested. He was directed to Timpone, who beat him, he said, and later Timpone and Healey took him to a room on the floor below the club, which was on the third, and beat and robbed him of $42, all he had. Since he made the complaint, he said, his money had been returned to him and, he added, he could have "got more."

Whitcomb Sober, Policeman Says.

Patrolman Henry Robinson of the West Forty-seventh Street Station, who arrested Timpone and Healey, testified Whitcomb apparently had been quite sober when he arrived at the police station. Whitcomb on the stand said:

"Timpone seized me by the throat and threatened to crush in my skull. Healey told me he was a detective and threatened to hit me on the head with a blackjack. I told them, 'I'm licked, fellows,' and took my $42 from my pocket. One of them seized it and gave me $2 as change. I was then ushered downstairs and put in a taxicab. Healey told me if I made a complaint it would go hard with me. At the station house my hurts were dressed by the ambulance surgeon, and I asked particularly that he examine me as to being sober, as I knew I would be asked that question."

What Aunt Lillian Says About Christmas Desserts

"Nobody's any fonder of rich pies and plum pudding than I am," Aunt Lillian declared, "but I always save them for the days after Christmas, and serve ice cream for Christmas dinner. After you have eaten a big meal it's a lot more sensible to have a light, digestible dessert, I think. Besides, the young folks who aren't allowed rich things won't think they're missing something."

APPOINTED SENATOR FACES REJECTION

of it at that time one way or the other. The general opinion is that no resolution should be passed until Smith appears with his credentials.

Just as there are two possible methods for the Senate to deal with his case, two courses are open to him. One is to accept the appointment and make the fight he has indicated he wants to make. The other, to wait awhile and then decline the appointment on the ground that he did not wish to embarrass the Republican leadership—that he would make his fight, not at this time, but next year, when he presented his credentials of election to the Seventieth Congress. The latter course probably would postpone the fight until next December.

Smith's Probable Defense.

But Republican leaders believe that Smith will come on at once, and contend that he was no more besmirched by public utility contributions to his campaign than is a President whose campaign is partly financed by manufacturers interested in having tariff rates readjusted. Such an assertion was made by Smith just prior to the November election.

If he insists upon being seated under his appointment at the present session, Republican leaders are resolved to have the matter dealt with as speedily as possible, so as to avoid discussion leading to an extra session, in which they and President Coolidge would be faced by a Senate so thinly controlled that it would be almost hostile to them. It was to prevent the imminence of an extra session that Senator Watson yesterday begged Smith not to accept the appointment.

Some of the few friends Smith appears to have in the present issue were predicting tonight that the course of the Senate would be to seat him and then refer his case to the Privileges and Elections Committee on motion of Senator Deneen. They hoped in this way to yield Smith an opportunity to defend himself. They considered also that he would be in a more strategic position if allowed membership in the Senate than if fought before he entered.

Senator Ashurst asked immediate consideration of his resolution, but Senator Curtis, Republican floor leader, urged delay until tomorrow. Senator Watson asked if Mr. Ashurst thought the resolution "in order" before Smith accepted the appointment, but Senator Ashurst replied, "It seems to me fairer to the Senate, if not to Mr. Smith, to object now."

Insull's Campaign Donation.

In a preliminary statement Senator Ashurst cited the $125,000 contribution made by Samuel Insull to Smith while Smith was head of the Illinois Commerce Commission and, said Ashurst, with control over Insull's companies. Smith, Insull and Allen F. Moore, Smith's campaign manager, all knew, Senator Ashurst said, of the Senate's declaration that spending $195,000 in the Newberry primary was "excessive."

"Whether the Supreme Court decided or did not decide in the case of Newberry v. the United States," said Senator Ashurst, "that a penal statute, when sought to be applied to a primary election in the State of Michigan, was beyond the power or authority of Congress is not pertinent to the present effort of Frank L. Smith to be inducted into the Senate as a member thereof, inasmuch as the Senate is not attempting to enforce a penal statute, but is attempting to employ its constitutional and inherent power and right to keep itself clean.

"The United States Senate has plenary power to protect the purity of the elections whereat its members are to be chosen by refusing membership in the Senate to whomsoever wilifully and knowingly countenances and permits bribery, corruption or fraud, or who knowingly and willfully permits and countenances the expenditure of excessive sums of money to promote the candidacy of the person claiming membership in the Senate.

"The Senate is the sole judge of the elections, return and qualifications of its own members, and the Senate has the power to exclude from its membership any person whose election or processes of whose election or appointment may be vitiated by fraud, corruption or by the expenditures of excessive sums of money."

Primary Expenditures.

The expectation now is that the Reed committee will make recommendations resulting from its Smith inquiry at an early day. The committee, in its partial report today, estimated expenditures for his campaign at $458,782, a larger sum than before alleged. The report estimated that the total money spent in the Illinois primary was: McKinley $514,143, Smith $456,782, Brennan $20,841. Total $993,766.

Money spent for Smith was calculated by the committee as $253,547, including unpaid bills; $33,735 by Samuel Insull for "anti-world court propaganda," which reacted for Smith, and $171,500 by the Crowe-Barrett faction in Cook County.

"This $458,782," said the report, "does not represent the possible total expenditures on behalf of Frank L. Smith's candidacy. So far as contributions are concerned, your committee was unable to obtain a list of the contributors to the Smith campaign. In fact, the only information which your committee obtained covering this important subject were unwilling admissions made by witnesses as the result of repeated questioning and in reply to specific questions."

The following contributions to the Smith campaign were "elicited," it was asserted, from the testimony of Allen F. Moore, Smith's campaign manager; Samuel Insull, Ira C. Copley, traction man, and Daniel J. Schuyler, Insull's attorney:

Smith, personal contribution, $5,000; Moore, personal contribution, $73,117; Insull's $125,000; Insull anti-World Court propaganda, $33,735; Copley, $25,000; Clement Studebaker Jr., another public utility man, $20,000; Schuyler, $3,600.

Expenditures for the late Senator McKinley were put down as $350,000, which he gave personally; $5,000 in small gifts by other persons, and $159,143 by the Deneen group. It was noted that Insull gave $15,000 of Brennan's total receipts.

Samuel Insull's public utility holdings were estimated at $750,000,000 by the committee, which pointed out that Smith was head of the Illinois Commerce Commission, with authority over rates charged by the Insull companies.

The refusal by Insull, Robert E. Crowe, District Attorney of Cook County, and Edward H. Wright, a negro ward boss, to reply to questions concerning expenditures in Cook County were noted by the committee, but nothing was said about citing them to the Senate. The three declined to tell the Reed committee about the Cook County money, on the ground that this information was not within the committee's province. The committee on the other hand vainly insisted that money spent in Cook County necessarily benefited the Senatorial candidates.

Smith's Course Is Undecided.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—Colonel Frank L. Smith, with a certificate of appointment as United States Senator in his pocket, in Chicago said tonight that he would make a statement tomorrow or Saturday as to whether he would accept the appointment by Governor Small.

"I have no statement to make at this time as to my intentions," he said. "I am here with my wife to do some Christmas shopping."

The Senator designate said he would be in Chicago until late tomorrow. He added that he expected no conference here with any Senators or other leaders of the Republican Party, except Allan Moore, National Committeeman for Illinois, and Smith's campaign manager.

The appointment of Colonel Smith was announced by Governor Small this morning. Harry Hanson, Executive Clerk in the office of Secretary of State Emmerson, and Jack Abbey, Assistant Chief Clerk in the same office, went from Springfield by automobile to Dwight to deliver the commission to Colonel Smith. They also handed to him a handsomely embossed commission for the full term beginning in March, 1927. The commission for the long term is signed by the Governor and issued by direction of the State Canvassing Board. The commission for the unexpired term of Senator McKinley was signed by the Governor this morning.

Attempts to persuade Governor Small not to appoint Colonel Smith having failed, efforts were made to induce Smith not to accept the appointment Senator Watson, Republican, of Indiana, called Smith over the long-distance telephone from Washington and pleaded with him not to come to Washington as Mr. McKinley's successor and warned him that if he did he probably would be rejected.

Mr. Smith was reported to have replied that his case never had been presented to the Senate and that he wished to plead his cause. He also is said to have countered with the argument that if Governor Small did not apoint him, in view of his position as Senator-elect, his case would be injured.

Governor Small said that in appointing Colonel Smith he was following the wishes of the Illinois electorate as expressed at the polls in November.

"At the general election on the 2d of last month," he said, "after an exhaustive public campaign, in which all issues involved and the qualifications of all candidates were thoroughly discussed and considered, the people of Illinois chose Frank L. Smith by a decisive vote for United States Senator.

"In the six weeks that have elapsed since that date not a charge or suspicion of undue influence or corruption at that election has been made. It was a fair and general election. The large vote cast for Frank L. Smith shows conclusively that he is the choice of the voters of this great State for United States Senator, and in obedience to that expression of the people of Illinois I appointed him to represent the State in the United States Senate for the unexpired term of the late William B. McKinley."

MUSSOLINI DESIRES ACCORD WITH FRANCE

He Calls It One of Fundamental Necessities of European Evolution.

SAYS ITALY MUST EXPAND

But Will Do So Through Co-operation and Understanding With Other Nations.

FAVORS BALANCE OF POWER

Yellow Peril Will Cease With Removal of Mental Barriers, He Says in Interview.

ROME, Dec. 16 (AP).—A Franco-Italian agreement is one of the fundamental necessities of European evolution, Premier Mussolini told a correspondent of The Associated Press in a long and cordial interview, in which he explained the cardinal principles inspiring his foreign policies.

The Duce's guiding idea, he declared to the correspondent, is the necessity for providing for Italy's crying need for moral, spiritual and physical expansion by means of a pacific, but not pacifist, policy. The fulfillment of these needs, Italy's master maintained, far from being incompatible with friendship and cooperation with other nations, really requires cooperation and mutual understanding with them, notably with France and England.

Mussolini declared himself to be a firm believer in the restoration of the European balance of power, expressing the conviction that such equilibrium constitutes the formula best adapted for the maintenance of peace.

Asiatics Not Barbarians.

Referring to the so-called Asiatic peril, he urged the necessity of abandoning the tendency to regard Asiatics as barbarians, giving as his opinion that all peril from the Orient will have ceased to exist when the mental barriers between the Eastern and Western peoples are broken down.

The leader of Fascism, receiving The Associated Press correspondent in his spacious office in Chigi Palace, set forth succinctly his ideas on Italy's rôle in the world.

"I am entirely in favor of the restoration of balance and equilibrium of forces in a formula most adapted for maintaining peace," the Premier declared. "I believe that if we place two identical weights on the two sides of an ideal weighing balance, equilibrium, in theory, should be maintained indefinitely. But if we place in them a living organism in perpetual growth the index of the scales will be changed with a velocity equal to that of the difference between the development of the two organisms. The organism which is developing itself with the greater rapidity will soon surpass the weight of the other and will cause the scales to tip in its favor.

"Equilibrium between peoples, which are the most living of all organisms, must therefore be continually re-established.

"In what I have said you will find the answer to the question so often asked of our colonial aspirations and desires. One must not describe Italy as though she were lying in hiding behind a hedge ready to jump at the throat of the first passing nation, to tear a colony from her hands. This Italian attitude, created in bad faith by the fantasy of certain of our adversaries, is absolutely non-existent.

Italian People Need to Work.

"We do not believe that it is yet possible in the present phase of world evolution to abolish war absolutely, and we are therefore trying to be ready to defend ourselves at any moment and against anybody. But I know that the Italian people need first of all and above all to work.

"Therefore, although our policy is not 'pacifist' in the Utopian sense of the word, it is essentially 'pacific.' Moreover, I have demonstrated this by the numerous compacts I have concluded at every time and in every place possible, and I shall continue firmly along this road.

"I have firm faith that the urgent problem of Italian expansion can be resolved by these methods. This faith is based upon recognition of the fact that our greatest problem has been understood throughout the world. The newspapers of all countries, from Scandinavia to America, publish articles explaining and discussing Italian needs and proposing a means of satisfying them.

"I can almost say it has become an international problem. It is international in fact, because it is to the interest of everybody that Italians do not suffocate every hour more surely in their narrow borders."

Turning to relations with France, the Premier maintained that the incidents between the two nations were due to the machinations of a few individuals.

"These incidents," he said, "were due, above all, to little groups of troublemakers, who, beyond the Alps, are composed of conspirators hostile to the Fascist régime, who have settled on French territory, and of groups on this side of the Alps formed often of persons expelled from the Fascist Party and of agents provocateurs.

"Against the disturbers in our own house we have taken the steps required by the occasion. Moreover, these incidents cannot and must not disturb in any way the relations between the two Governments, still less the relations between two peoples which have the same blood. In fact, I consider a Franco-Italian agreement as one of the fundamental necessities of European evolution."

Discusses Anglo-Italian Friendship.

Asked whether the common interests of Italy and Great Britain in the Eastern Mediterranean imposed a policy of collaboration between the two nations, Mussolini said:

"In the friendship between England and Italy there is nothing imposed. I dare to say, in fact, that even if there were not many economic and political reasons in favor of collaboration, the friendship would exist just the same, because of the tradition which has never been broken from the time of Piedmont until today and which will never be betrayed.

"The two nations, moreover, follow the same political tendencies, which are based on these principles: Maintenance of equilibrium in the basin of the Mediterranean and development of commerce and trade for the increased prosperity of the two peoples. The signatures of the two nations on the Locarno compact show, moreover, that both are ready to make sacrifices for the maintenance of peace."

Turning to the Levantine and Oriental affairs, the Duce pointed out that Italy was maintaining friendly relations with Russia and Turkey.

"There is no reason therefore," he declared, referring to the Odessa conversations, "for us to suspect that anything is being done which might possibly hurt us, when the political leaders from Moscow and Angora decide to meet to deal with their own affairs, nor have we any reason to interfere in any way with those affairs."

Taking up, finally, Italy's attitude toward events in the Far East, the Duce remarked:

"In regard to an eventual future yellow peril I think it depends also a bit upon the Occident, to know how to avoid it.

"It is said that the ancient sages of the Orient succeeded by means of analogical methods and by pure force of intuition, several millenniums ago, in learning the profound verities, which our Occidental scientists with analytical methods are only now finding out—such as, for example, that of the unity of matter and energy. It is certain that Asia is the most ancient source of all philosophies and cradles of human thought.

"It is necessary, therefore, to cease considering Asiatics as barbarians; it is necessary to break down the barriers which separate us from those hundreds and hundreds of millions of men who do not demand anything more than to be allowed to progress.

"When we will have created currents of thought which permit us to know each other and understand each other, the yellow peril will dissolve of its own account."

PROFESSES IGNORANCE OF TROOPS ON BORDER

Rome Suggests That Any French Precautions Are Merely Police Measures.

ROME, Dec. 16.—Nothing is known here, not even in official quarters, of any special French military precautions along the Italian border. The opinion is expressed that if any extraordinary steps have been taken they are probably police, not military, precautions, as no word about them has been received officially. The press has not hinted a word about the subject.

There was some talk of concentrations of French troops at the Italian border some weeks ago. The news, however, was reprinted from French papers, and with it an official explanation that the troops were merely regiments returning from France's North African colonies.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—Ten young "men-about-town," including the Earl of Northesk, have formed a hansom cab club.

"We are tired of automobiles," said one member today, "and we feel rather sad that these old fellows, the cabbies, are not patronized very much. We have decided to travel by hansom whenever possible."

The club inaugurated its activities last night by a cab race from the Devonshire Club to the Kit-Cat Club through Piccadilly Circus for a stake of £50 to the winning "fare" and £5 to the winning cabby.

The Earl of Northesk, in a cab driven by a cabby aged 75, known as "Teddy Oysters," was the winner of the £50, but before the day dawned most of the money had passed to the Kit-Cat Club.

PARIS, Dec. 16.—The Jusserand medal, created in 1925 by the American Historical Association in recognition of the long and distinguished service of the former French Ambassador at Washington, was formally presented today to Professor eBrnard Fai of the University of Clermont-Ferrand for having contributed during the last year the best work on the history of the intellectual relations between America and one or more European countries.

Ambassador Herrick, who made the presentation, said it was fitting that the first award of the medal should be made to a French historian whose work in question marked a permanent milestone in the relatively unexplored field of Franco-American relations. This book which won the medal was Professor Fai's "The Revolutionary Spirit in France and the United States at the End of the Eighteenth Century."

M. Jusserand was among the notable Frenchmen who attended the presentation.

French Police Seize War Stores in Ricciotti's Garage at Nice.

NICE, France, Dec. 16 (AP).—Colonel Ricciotti Garibaldi, grandson of the Italian patriot, who recently was charged with complicity in the unsuccessful plot to set up an independent Government in Catalonia, Spain, today faced further charges of illegal possession of war materials.

Police announced that an arsenal of twenty rifles, ammunition and hand grenades had been found over Garibaldi's garage and that a further charge would be made against him as a result of this discovery.

Colonel Francisco Macia, former Spanish Deputy, was arrested about the same time as Garibaldi as the leader of the Catalan expedition, which failed when French police stopped the conspirators just as they were about to cross the French border into Spain.

Prince Visits Humble Homes of London Poor; Families Proudly Welcome Royal Guest

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—Several of the poor residents of Somerstown, one of London's slum areas, today proudly told of receiving a visit last night from the Prince of Wales, who, like the Caliph of Bagdad of old, occasionally makes such unheralded tours.

After inspecting the mission in Somerstown, the Prince rang the bell of a Mrs. Hare, who lives in one of the mission's model tenements. He was accompanied by Earl Jellicoe and two priests.

The Prince found Mrs. Hare busy sewing and her daughter, Caroline, in the parlor with her beau.

"Hullo! I did not recognize you at first," cried Caroline to the Prince when she opened the door.

Mrs. Hare said today that her daughter's informal greeting greatly pleased the Prince. "I told him that as a little girl I had the honor of shaking hands with Queen Victoria," Mrs. Hare said.

"When he came into the house he remarked what a pretty room it was, and how nice and clean. I think he is a wonderful young man. He talked to us just as a friend. I can tell you we are very proud of that visitor. He patted our dog, Buller."

The Prince next called at a Mrs. Turnbull's flat in the same building. Two members of the Turnbull family were regretful today over the Prince's visit. Mrs. Turnbull regrets that she did not have wine enough to offer him a glass of port, and her daughter, Rose, that she missed him after going to a girls' club expecting to meet him there.

"Imagine her disappointment when she came home and found that the Prince had been here!" said Mrs. Turnbull. "Poor Rose! She cried herself to sleep."

At another house the Prince found conditions "ghastly," with twenty-one people living in eight rooms.

FIND MRS. CHRISTIE HAS LOST MEMORY

Husband Insists Wife Thought She Was Miss Neele While Staying at Hotel.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—The case of Mrs. Christie is still occupying considerable space in some newspapers, while others have come to the conclusion that enough publicity has been given to it. In consequence of doubts thrown on the statement by Colonel Christie that his wife is suffering from a complete loss of memory, he was besieged today by reporters for further proofs.

He handed out a bulletin signed by two doctors who had just examined Mrs. Christie. It read:

"After a careful examination of Mrs. Agatha Christie this afternoon we have formed the opinion that she is suffering from an unquestionable loss of memory and that for her future welfare she should be spared all anxiety and excitement."

One of the signatories was Dr. Donald Core, a mental specialist.

"I hopethis puts an end to all this disgraceful talk about Mrs. Christie's loss of memory being a fake," said Colonel Christie. "A photograph of her child conveys nothing whatever to her yet, although she knows her sister and me."

Asked if he could give any explanation why his wife should use the name of Neele, which is that of a girl friend, the Colonel replied he could not nor could Mrs. Christie.

"She inserted the advertisement in The London Times under the name of Neele, asking her relatives to communicate," he said, "because she was in an extraordinary position, being in a strange hotel for no purpose that she could think of and with no knowledge of who she was other than the conviction that Teresa Neele was her real name. The doctors told me such an action was compatible with that of a person suffering from loss of memory."

He added that his wife had no idea of how she got to Harrogate and he could throw no light on the source of the money wherewith Mrs. Christie, judging by her purchases at Harrogate, seemed well supplied. Mrs. Christie went away with some money, he said, but she cashed no check.

The father of Nancy Neele is indignant that certain inferences have been drawn as the result of Mrs. Christie's assuming the name Neele.

"I cannot hazard any theory why Mrs. Christie should have used my family's name," he is quoted as saying. "My daughter, Nancy, is naturally upset about it and so are we all. There is not the slightest reason for associating Nancy with the disappearance of Mrs. Christie."

Mrs. Christie, while shopping in London the day after her disappearance, lost a diamond ring in a store. She wrote for it from Harrogate under the name of Neele and her description of the missing ornament enabled the management of the store to restore it to her.

A number of mental specialists in London are still inclined not to accept entirely the bulletin issued after Mrs. Christie's examination today, although Dr. Core is a lecturer in neurology at Manchester University.

POINCARE DISPUTE DENIED BY BRIAND

Foreign Office Communique Scouts Rumor of Difference Between Two Statesmen.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 16.—Since the return of Foreign Minister Briand from Geneva there have been rumors afloat in Paris that he and Premier Poincaré had been at odds. These rumors had it that M. Poincaré believed his Foreign Minister had made too many concessions to the Germans, and it was reported that there had been a sharp divergence over the alleged promise made by M. Briand relative to the curtailment of the Rhineland occupation.

As a result of these reports the Quai d'Orsay issues this evening a statement commenting upon the alleged discord between the two statesmen. The statement concludes:

"M. Briand protests energetically against the allegations of the press. Contrary to truth, they seem to indicate a difference on foreign policy between the Premier and the Foreign Minister. Such a conflict does not exist."

M. Briand promised a delegation of Deputies today to accept a debate on foreign affairs after the Christmas holidays. In this debate there will be a discussion of the debt settlements with Britain and the United States, in which M. Briand is expected to advocate an early French ratification.

TURATI SEES ITALY AS ANTI-MUSSOLINI

Self-Exiled Socialist Leader Says Nine-tenths of People Want Dictator Overthrown.

BUT 'NO ONE DARES THINK'

Guarded in Paris After His Flight, Turati Pictures Fascist Regime as Medieval Despotism.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 16.—"Give Italy just twenty-four hours of liberty and a real chance to vote, and 90 per cent. of the people would go on record to overthrow Mussolini," said Filippo Turati, leader of the once powerful Italian Socialist Party and the last important member of the opposition to leave his native country for a self-imposed exile in France.

Although exhausted after the trying experience of being secretly taken from his home in Milan last week by a group of friends and under cover of darkness rushed to Corsica in a high-powered motorboat, the venerable Socialist nevertheless spoke with deep emotion when the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES found him established this morning in a modest little Montmartre hotel where he arrived last night from Nice. The last lap of his flight from Italy—Corsica to the French Riviera—was equally severe, for there was constant anxiety lest the Fascisti discover his departure and attempt to forestall it. The Fascisti had previously refused permission for him to cross into France from Vitimille and his dramatic flight represented the last hope of his friends to spirit their chief outside the jurisdiction of militant Fascism.

Surrounding him today, as they will do during his entire sojourn in France, were six stalwart young Italian Socialists, themselves refugees from the rigors of Mussolini's opposition decrees. They fear an attempt on the life of the leader of the Fascist opposition and are taking precautions.

"No One Dares to Think."

Turati, whose patriarchal appearance, with his flowing beard, suggests the artist rather than the vigorous politician, was at first reluctant to speak about Italy, but when told that a great many Americans had gained the impression that Italy was united behind Mussolini he launched at once into a spirited attack upon Fascism.

"It is little wonder that such an impression is abroad in the United States," he declared, with burning eyes and his voice full of emotion. "Mussolini has gone to work so systematically, suppressing every vestige of criticism by the opposition, that no one dares even to think differently from him today. In effect, to eat—to exist—in Italy one must adhere to Fascism, for without the insignia of the Fascist régime in your buttonhole you cannot get employment and without employment, it follows, you cannot eat. Therefore, you have hundreds of thousands of persons doing lip service to Fascism who, if free to express their minds, would have done with it and all its evils tomorrow. A referendum, freely conducted, would find 90 per cent. of the population against Mussolini.

"The outside world, and by that I mean everywhere outside of Italy, has no idea what an unbelievable situation obtains in Italy. Not even the darkest period of the Middle Ages offers a parallel. There is absolutely no freedom of thought, word, deed or action left in once free Italy. For example, I have not heard from my two children in more than a month. They do not live in Milan with me, and all my mail, telegrams, &c., are censored and frequently suppressed. Every newspaper, weekly publication or magazine not strictly Fascist in policy has been suspended. Not a single lawyer is practicing in Italy today who has not submitted to the Fascist cause, and as for the judiciary, it is wholly influenced by the Fascisti and therefore one-sided. And so on down through every walk of life.

Suffocated for Four Years.

"I myself have not breathed for four years. I have been suffocated. I am now enjoying the air of a free country and I intend to remain here until such time as I can go back to a liberated Italy to end my days in the country I love."

When asked about the possibility of Mussolini's downfall, Turati looked decidedly gloomy and shrugged his shoulders.

"I admit being wrong in my prognostications several times in the past," he said. "Therefore, I shall not try to estimate the life of Fascism. It has lasted four years and it may last another four, so long as the dictator is able to strangle opposition and kill all criticism. Certainly the worm will eventually turn, but how soon no one knows. With power such as Mussolini wields, oppression may be continued surprisingly long."

Turati went on to say that since the advent of Mussolini's Surety law life had been unbearable for all those who formed the old Opposition.

"My comrades and I," he said, "have not been able to call our lives our own. The police have dogged our every step, and personally whenever I went for a ride in a motor car the police always followed in another. Other secret service agents have been placed at my home and even at the door of my apartment. The morrow was always uncertain of arrival, until finally I suffered a severe heart attack.

Isolated in Ignorance.

"Not only are Socialists treated in this outrageous fashion, but all who hold views opposed to Mussolini's including Conservatives, Catholics and Liberals. In Italy we live in almost complete ignorance of all that is going on, except that which Fascism wants us to know. To find out what is going on, we must have recourse to foreign newspapers, and even these may soon be denied us. I finally went to the Chief of Police in Turin and asked him to put me in prison in order to get away from the terrible nightmare life I was forced to lead."

Turati does not take an alarming view of Franco-Italian relations.

"There is, of course, always the danger," he said, "that some band of hot-headed Fascisti will cross the border and precipitate trouble, but I assure you that when Mussolini speaks in a warlike manner it is for home consumption. Italy has not the wherewithal to wage war; furthermore, a declaration of war against France or any other country would be the signal for revolution."

Turati will confer with other expatriate Italian leaders, including Signor Nitti, and it is probable that the anti-Fascisti of Paris will honor him in the near future at a huge mass meeting.

YOSHIHITO NEAR END; FAMILY AT HIS SIDE

Empress Joins Physicians in All-Night Vigil as Heart Gradually Weakens.

CABINET ALSO AT HAYAMA

Relapse Caused Sudden Summons to Princes and Ministers of Japan —Whole Nation Tense.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Friday, Dec. 17.—All of the members of the Imperial family, except Prince Chichibu, and all of the Ministers of the Cabinet have been all night at the palace in Hayama, where they were hurriedly summoned yesterday afternoon when Emperor Yoshihito had a sudden relapse. The end is now believed to be a matter of hours.

At 10 o'clock last night a bulletin announced that the Emperor's temperature was 37.1 (centigrade), pulse 120 and respiration 23. Earlier bulletins had indicated that the heart was growing weaker and told of camphor injections reviving it temporarily.

When the summons came, the Prince Regent and the Princess hurried to the Emperor's bedside from the villa where they had been staying without waiting for the usual escort. All of the Cabinet Ministers were ordered to proceed immediately from Tokio, and a council was called at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Prince Sumi, who had been in Tokio, hastened by automobile to Hayama.

The Prince Regent and the Princess retired at 10 o'clock for the night. The Cabinet Ministers did likewise. The Empress and the court physicians kept vigil throughout the night. The Premier stated that the Emperor was sleeping.

Princess Shibekoteru, the Emperor's only grandchild, will be taken to Hayama this forenoon. Prince Chichibu is being kept informed by radio of the Emperor's condition.

The whole nation reflects the tense air of expectancy that pervades Hayama.

TOKIO, Dec. 17 (Friday) (AP).—Yoshihito, Japan's 123d Emperor, was barely alive here today. Oxygen and stimulants were being used as final means to keep life within his body. His pulse and respiration were irregular.

An offical bulletin isued at 8 o'clock this morning gave the information that the condition of Emperor Yoshihito was virtually unchanged except that his heart is somewhat weaker.

Since Saturday, the monarch, enfeebled by long illness and more recent bronchitis, had fought pneumonia. Six physicians could do little for him.

The royal family was gathered at Hayama, a fishing and bathing place on Sagami Bay, where the Emperor lay in his villa. Within the stone walls of the palace grounds, members of the Cabinet remained waiting in other structures. Along the automobile road close to the sea, sentries paced before the palace wall.

Back of the palace, on hills covered with pine and fir trees, Japanese alike of humble and noble birth prayed for the Emperor, while native priests moved among them.

Four warships dropped anchor in the bay as the rising sun cast its glow upon the snow-clad peak of Fujiyame, sacred mountain of Japan, rising majestically to a height of 12,390 feet across Sagami Bay from the palace.

Since the day before, when a relapse dashed hopes raised by his improved condition, members of the royal family and the Court had watched at the Emperor's bedside. They were still with him at dawn.

Turks Parade in Costumes Of Old Janissary Warriors

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 16 (AP).—The glittering uniforms and swords of the fiery Janissary warriors of Old Turkey, who were massacred a century ago when their power terrified the Sultans that created them, are making their appearance in peaceful parades on national holidays of the New Turkey.

A hundred years ago Sultan Mahmoud ordered that the Janissaries be executed. In Constantinople alone 30,000 were massacred, and throughout Turkey the slaughter went on until the last Janissary was trapped and beheaded.

Their costumes and arms were spared and have been preserved in the Military Museum of Constantinople. Citizens of the new republic are now being permitted to rent the costumes for parades held on numerous national holidays.

Thus for a few hours the huge serpentine turbans, the glittering buttons, belts and swords of the fiery Janissaries bring back an Oriental splendor that is rapidly disappearing under the modernization movement, sponsored by the Kemalist régime.

PILSUDSKI STIRS DIET AT MIDNIGHT

Dictator Calls for Efficient Army, Saying Europe Is Not Yet Ready for Disarmament.

HE DEFENDS 2-YEAR TERM

Deputies See In Marshal's Visit a Bid for Reconciliation With the Sejm—Changes Are Expected.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Dec. 16.—"Conditions in Europe at the present time do not warrant the abolition of armaments, and so long as there is the necessity for an army we might as well have a good one," said Marshal Pilsudski in a surprise visit to the Sejm last midnight.

The half-hour speech in which this statement occurs constitutes his first public war utterance since the revolutionary days of May, and is fraught with the highest political significance, perhaps reconciliation with the Sejm and the consequent destruction of the new Opposition group. This group was formed under M. Dmowski, its leader, and constitutes the Opposition party which contains all the enemies of the Marshal.

The occasion of the dictator's visit to the heretofore despised Sejm was the critical committee discussion of the War Department appropriations in the budget for the first quarter of 1927 following its docile passage yesterday.

The committee was sparsely attended and was sitting at a late hour in its room in the Sejm when the Marshal suddenly strode in, causing consternation among the members. He took a modest seat at the end of a table and word went far and wide through the party clubrooms in the building that he had arrived and within a few minutes the room was packed to suffocation. The Chairman, after a short interval, asked the Marshal whether he wanted to make a statement.

Chairman Adjourns Meeting.

"Certainly; that is why I took the trouble to come here," replied the Marshal; "but I cannot say anything in a stuffy box like this."

Obedient to the wishes of the Marshal, the Chairman adjourned the meeting for a late night supper, after which the janitors were routed out and the great assembly hall was put into shape for his appearance, a flag-draped table being installed in front of the speakers' stand.

The members of the Budget Committee were assembled and the room was soon packed with an assembly seldom seen in the halls of the Diet. The Marshal, smiling, entered with the members of the committee and took his seat with them at the table and listened to a faint condemnation of the large army appropriation, constituting one-third of the entire national expenditures.

The Marshal then rose and gave an analytical account of the army appropriation containing generalities concerning the situation in Europe. He expressed the belief that no country is ready for disarmament to any great extent at the present time, and declared that it is useless for anybody to maintain an army unless it is an effective one.

Marshal Pleads for Education.

"Conditions of education are still so inadequate that we are obliged to maintain a two-year term of service in Poland," he said, "because the men are being educated in the army and cannot be given even the rudiments of an education in less than two years."

He said that his greatest desire was not only to make soldiers but literate men out of the youths called to the colors and added that he would be glad to reduce the length of service, but that he considered the two-year period one of the greatest aids toward creating a literate country, and that the moment other educational agencies were effective he would be the first to advocate a reduction in the training term.

The Marshal's visit to the Sejm was held in Left Central circles to be a conciliatory movement and an approach, perhaps, to a more parliamentary Government, rather than a purely dictatorial Cabinet. The fact that the press muzzling decree was allowed by the Government to be voted down last week increases the belief.

However, since strong opposition has developed with the recent formation of the Dmowski party, the Marshal is also suspected of a ruse, and if it was it was successful, since the Sejm was overjoyed by his visit.

Important changes are being contemplated in the Government, according to reports following the visit; among those expected is the return of Marshal Pilsudski's right-hand man, General Sosnowiski, who attempted to commit suicide rather than oppose the dictator's May revolution as the commander of the Warsaw garrison. His re-entrance in the Government is likely to mean other changes.

Today being the fifth anniversary of the assassination of President Narutowicz, special services was held in the biggest cathedral, President Moscicki being present with many officials.

ARMY PLANE CRASHES INTO A BARRACKS

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—A Royal Air Force airplane today, while descending at Farnborough, fell into a spiral spin, crashed through a barrack wall and fell on the regimental parade ground.

This adds another to the very long list of accidents to British military machines this year, almost ninety of which ended in fatalities. Nobody was killed in today's accident, but the flying officer, F. J. O'Doherty, suffered a fractured skull and the mechanic also was seriously injured. They had to be chopped out of the airplane. Of men in the shattered barrack room only one was hurt.

The accident gives point to an appeal today by the Master of Sempill, Chairman of the Royal Aeronautical Society, for publication by the British Air Force of the ratio of fatal accidents to flying hours.

"Recent figures published by authority of the Navy Department at Washington," he said, "have given America the lead and must certainly be cause for congratulating those who administer the American naval air service."

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—Wild scenes, in which angry language was used, marked today's session of the Reichstag, following the making of charges against the Government by Philip Scheidemann, Germany's first Republican Chancellor.

The session came to a climax this afternoon when the Socialists introduced a motion of lack of confidence in the Coalition Cabinet, basing their action on charges that Dr. Gessler, the Minister of War, had failed to mold the army into an instrument for the protection of the Republic and was pursuing underhanded, secret policies not in keeping with the Reich's internal and foreign policies.

The Nationalists held in their hands the power to retain or overthrow the Cabinet, but tonight they refuse to state how they intend to swing the balance. Should they withhold their vote, as has been their usual method of procedure, they can cast either for or against the Cabinet, since the Socialists, supported by the Communists, give the ultra-reactionary Volkische Party muster about 190 votes, according to today's attendance, and the Government parties with the Industrialists number about the same. It is rumored that the Nationalists may not vote as a party, which would again preclude making the slightest forecast.

Nationalists to Negotiate.

The Nationalists are meeting the Government parties tonight to demand their pound of flesh, but the minority Government wants an assurance that the pound will not be taken from a vital part, leaving them at the mercy of the reactionaries.

The Nationalists in their turn want an assurance from the Government parties that they have no Portia who will rob them of whatever promises are made.

The present situation is the outgrowth of a speech made ten days ago by Herr Scholz, a Deputy of the People's Party, declaring that the little coalition would rather admit the Nationalists than the Socialists should the Government be forced to change to a big coalition.

On the Socialist complaint against this attitude, pointing out that they have supported the Government, especially in its foreign policies, the People's Party decided to support Deputy Scholz in his statements. Though Herr Stresemann, immediately upon his return from Geneva, tried to patch up the differences in this quarrel, the matter has gone so far that neither party is willing to budge.

Only yesterday Chancellor Marx at the behest of Foreign Minister Stresemann, offered the Socialists posts in a new coalition Cabinet. The Socialists, not wishing to retreat, declared that they were willing to accept portfolios in such a Cabinet, but first demanded the resignation of the present Government.

Opposes Voluntary Resignation.

With the Ministerial benches filled and practically all the Deputies in their seats, and the galleries, especially the one for the foreign diplomats, crowded, Dr. Marx declared that the Government is not considering a voluntary resignation, since such an action would be harmful to the country's foreign political interests. He left the decision to the Reichstag.

Herr Scheidemann outlined the Socialists' reason for a lack of confidence vote, putting the entire blame on Dr. Gessler, the Minister of War, for allowing the reactionaries to form the army's policies, making it their tool.

Since Dr. Gessler has been a Minister for over seven years, outliving ten Cabinets, the Socialists maintain that they are unable to place any confidence in a Government which permits this state of affairs to continue for such a period of time. The Socialists realize it is impossible to oust Dr. Gessler since the Nationalists are sure to support him and the only hope of gaining their end is by trying to overthrow the entire Cabinet.

The Chancellor replied to Herr Scheidemann expressing his willingness to have the Reichswehr's activities investigated and expressed the conviction that the army was loyal to the republic.

At a Nationalist Reichstag caucus meeting late tonight a decision was reached to support the coalition Government tomorrow, provided when the Reichstag reconvenes in January they are included in a Cabinet forming a right bloc Government.

President von Hindenburg in a last effort to effect a settlement, asked Chancellor Marx and Count Westarp, the leader of the Nationalists, to confer with him in the Presidential palace tomorrow morning.

The Chancellor is adamant against admitting the Nationalists into a big coalition, stating that he prefers to resign, but the President hopes to find a way to patch up the differences and to assure the Government of support against its overthrow by the Socialists tomorrow.

BERLIN, Dec. 16 (AP).—Charges made in the Reichstag today that a secret monarchist-military clique is building up a huge illegal reserve army in Germany with munitions and airplanes hoarded in Germany and Russia tonight faced the bourgeoise coalition Cabinet of Chancellor Marx.

Phillip Scheidemann, head of the Social Democrats, whose accusations produced bedlam in the Reichstag, demanded that the present Cabinet be replaced by one in which every member was a Republican.

Denouncing Soviet Russia for giving moral, if not financial support to the German militarists, he declared that as late as last September and October, four ships landed at Stettin from Leningrad with munitions manufactured in Russia for a secret German army.

While the Nationalists shouted: "Traitor! Blackguard! That's treason!" and Chancellor Marx, Communist members and others denied the truth of the charges, Herr Scheidemann cited names, places and figures which he said showed that Defense Minister Gessler was a "tool of the monarchistic junkers."

As Herr Scheidemann made his accusations, the Nationalists, pointing to the diplomatic box in which foreign representatives, including American Ambassador Schurman, were seated, cried: "Why reveal these things to our enemies?" They then left the Chamber.

The Social Democratic leader replied that the Allies knew all about the "rotten militaristic conditions in Germany," and that the Germans might as well correct the conditions themselves as to have the Allies act for them.

Marx Denies Charges.

Chancellor Marx denied that Government funds were being diverted illegally for militaristic purposes, defended the Reichswehr as a dependable instrument for safeguarding the State and asserted that the hoarding of arms and illegal militaristic organizations referred to conditions of years ago but which were non-existent now.

Herr Scheidemann charged that a secret military chief of staff existed in the Ministry of War which, since 1923, collected 70,000,000 marks annually for the secret manufacture of arms and the establishment of a Junkers airplane factory in Moscow, which went out of business after building several hundred planes for German use.

Hundreds of former officers of the Imperial Army, he charged, were stationed throughout Germany, organizing so-called cadet corps preparatory for the Reichswehr. Regular army officers, disguised as "physical instructors," he said, trained the members of other so-called athletic organizations in the art of war. Small arms clubs held target practice on the Reichswehr ranges.

"The German people want peace and reconciliation with the Allies," he declared, "but the military activities of the Nationalist elements endanger that peace. The Socialists demand the discharge of all men, from Minister of Defense Gessler downward, who are connected with these subrosa armaments.

"We demand a detailed accounting of how the army and navy spend appropriations because we have reason to believe that the funds are diverted illegally. We demand the names, activities and pay of all ex-officers who are retired on pensions or who serve the army secretly.

"To Russia I say we want to be friends, but it is a foul friendship so long as the Soviets preach world revolution and help disrupt the German Reichswehr."

English-Speaking Union Will Open Its London Home in New Year.

LONDON, Dec. 16 (AP).—Early in the new year the Page Library, the English Speaking Union's Memorial to the late Ambassador Walter Hines Page, will become a reality, when Dartmouth House, the new home of the Union, is opened.

Considerable imagination has been used in the furnishing of Dartmouth House. Each of the twenty-eight bedrooms is to represent a typical room of the different furnishing periods from the reign of Queen Elizabeth down to the present day. Among others there will be a James I. room, a Cromwell room, a William and Mary room, a Jacobean room and several done in the Georgian manner.

The Nelson room is an addition suggested by an enormous round window which made it difficult to fit the room into any period. This window is to be known as the "porthole," and the chairs are to be covered with an old chintz, first made to commemorate Nelson's battles.

But the beds will not be of historical design; they will all be of the most modern and comfortable style.

PARIS AND BERLIN HAIL POTASH ACCORD

Agreement Governing Exports Is Fixed for a Term of Seven Years.

SALES RIGHTS GUARDED

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 16.—The tentative agreement framed at Lugano last April between the representatives of the potash industries in France and Germany was made definite for a period of at least seven years at a meeting held in Paris this week.

The new accord is hailed by both sides as further evidence of the smoothly working commercial entente of the two former enemy countries.

The treaty will probably be signed in Paris at the end of December or in the first days of January. Neither the French nor the German officials show any desire to discuss the terms of the agreement until the signatures are affixed, but it is reliably reported in business circles that the agreement embodies the following points:

One, maintenance of the exclusive right of sale in the respective countries of the two parties.

Two, continuance of the seventy-thirty proportion for Germany and France respectively until the total annual sale in foreign markets reaches 840,000 tons of pure potash.

Three, creation in every foreign country of a sales organization for the promotion and extension of the export trade in potash. An exception was made in the case of the United States, for which special treatment is promised.

Four, equal distribution in all foreign markets when business exceeds the 840,000-ton quota already mentioned, the sales in France and Germany being excluded in this arrangement.

In the event that the 840,000-ton total is not reached, the share and share alike clause becomes effective for the export trade, beginning the sixth year of the accord.

The French are especially pleased with the accord because of the increasing impetus it will give to one of the mainstays of Alsatian trade.

BELGRADE, Dec. 16.—Ex-Premier Pashitch was buried today in the new cemetery in a brief, simple ceremony, attended by thousands of friends. A requiem mass was said from a temporary chapel constructed in front of the grave. The Italian Minister was among those present.

The black flags of mourning for M. Pashitch were replaced tonight by national flags in preparation for the celebration of King Alexander's thirty-eighth birthday tomorrow.

CHINESE SHOTS HIT JAPANESE STEAMER

Wound Five on a Yangtse Craft —British Ship Fired On and American Vessel Boarded.

Red Students Demand the Right to Dismiss Unpopular Teachers at Yale in China.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 16.—Ichang and Shasi on the Yangtse have been captured by the Nationalists. Yang Sen, Governor of Sechuan Province, whose seizure of two British steamers and their officers led to the Wanhsien battle, on his retirement from Ichang commandeered all Chinese junks.

Subsequently the American steamer Ilng was boarded by his soldiers, who attempted to compel the captain to proceed upstream. Whereupon the United States gunboat El Cano cleared for action.

This caused a Chinese officer to order the soldiers to disembark.

Szechuan soldiers who were retreating compelled a Japanese steamer to carry them from Shasi to Ichang.

British and Japanese steamers have been heavily fired on with rifles near Shasi, and the steamer Tasung Maru reports five casualties.

According to reports from Shasi, General Yang Sen's aide-de-camp turned traitor and removed his ammunition and arms, whereupon the northerners had to retreat. Late report states that the city was looted by the Nationalists.

The China Inland Mission station in Ichang has been evacuated by foreigners. However, Ichang and Shasi are not now in danger.

Kiangsi Merchants Rebel.

Financial conditions in Kiangsi Province are most serious, merchants refusing to negotiate Canton banknotes, which they have been discounting 80 per cent. After absorbing provincial silver the Cantonese Political Bureau called in the provincial notes, which had been subject to a discount of 20 per cent. for cash.

The merchants had demanded the withdrawal of the Canton notes, and failing in securing compliance, they threatened that the business of the entire province would be suspended today.

Hankow merchants have sent a petition to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of the Cantonese asking him to dismiss his General, who, by alleged Bolshevist methods, had ruined their business. This afternoon Chiang telegraphed to this General advising him to be very careful and to take immediate steps to pacify the Chinese community.

Russians Work Furiously.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HANKOW, Dec. 16.—The Cantonese leaders deny being Communists and declare that their Russian friends are disinterested helpers in instituting a new system designed to replace the medieval methods hitherto followed. They declare that they are not anti-foreign, but demand abrogation of all foreign treaties on the ground that in practice these instruments favor imperialism and capitalism and prevent China's development on national lines.

Foreign commerce and enterprise, they say, will be permitted free operation, but only under Chinese law.

Now they say they will not revise the present treaties, but will negotiate new ones with friendly powers.

Many foreigners on the ground, however, think the events in Hankow indicate that a very unfortunate use is being made of the working classes, who were incited to make economically harsh demands upon their employers.

British observers conclude that the "disinterested" Russians are furiously striving to bolshevize the Yangtse population and prejudice foreigners by gross misrepresentations, especially in regard to the British.

There is reason to feel certain that the financial position of the Cantonese is greatly straitened and that the reorganized administration is still in an elementary stage.

Bolshevism in the Colleges.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 16 (AP).—Semi-Bolshevization of the schools, missionary-and otherwise, of Central China, coincident with the gradual occupation of that area by the Cantonese, is being evidenced by the presentation of demands by student bodies upon their Faculties.

Demands recently made by the students of the college of Yale in China, at Changsha, Hunan Province, one of the largest in Central China, are indicative. They sought a decrease in fees; subsidization by the college of the Students' Union; empowering of the students to dismiss by vote teachers of whom they do not approve, and a provision that no student can be expelled without the sanction of this Students Union.

Eighty per cent. of the cost of upkeep of Yale in China already is borne by grants from America, tuition charges accounting for the other 20 per cent. only. The situation there is deadlocked. Most of the students are striking and the Faculty is unable to obtain aid from the Canton authorities.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 16 (AP).—Demands of Chinese students in institutions in China and at Yale in China have been growing, Dr. Edward H. Humes, President of the latter institution, who is home for a year, said today.

"Younger students in the college, which is supported by Yale University, have been swept off their feet by a wave of nationalism and had submitted from time to time demands which were ridiculous and of no material consequence," he said. Many older students are trying to quiet the younger ones. The Government also had been putting into effect regulations which were difficult to obey, but Yale in China little by little has been trying to conform to them.

Student demands mentioned in Shanghai dispatches, however, are separate from those made by the Government and were not backed by the Government, so far as Dr. Hume knew.

Y.M.C.A. MEN UNDER FIRE HALTED CHINESE BATTLE

Arthur J. Allen of Yonkers and the Rev. Lloyd Craighill Effected Nanchang Truce.

Fighting between the Northern and Southern forces around Nanchang, China, was stopped by two Americans, carrying the Nanchang Chamber of Commerce peace terms, according to delayed correspondence made public yesterday by the National Council of the Young Men's Christian Association here.

The Americans were the Rev. Lloyd Craighill, Episcopalian, and Arthur J. Allen, Y. M. C. A. secretary in Nanchang, a Yonkers man, who attended Columbia.

Allen's letter said that he and Craighill went out under heavy fire and induced the Cantonese General, Chiang Kai-shak, to withdraw, on condition that the Northern troops in the city cease their excesses.

Allen and Craighill reached the Southern forces after two false starts under fire from both sides and were out three days before a truce could be arranged.

Mrs. Edward P. Gardner of 28 Hillside Avenue Englewood, N. J., Mr. Craighill's mother-in-law, over the telephone confirmed this account.

In the truce, Allen wrote, the streets were filled with the dead, but the danger of immediate starvation had passed. "Life seems more hopeful," he wrote, "now that Sun Chuan-fang has come in and stopped the looting, rape and murder—the orgy that 20,000 Northern bandit troops have been indulging in for more than a month."

One letter from another source in China said of the Northern viewpoint: "The Generals hold the students responsible for the Nationalistic wave that is swamping them, and lose no opportunity to harm them. One of the finest men in the province, Kuo Ching-i, a Magistrate, and, founder of a model school at Tehan, was beheaded by the military and his head sent back home."

CARL AKELEY BURIED ON MT. MIKENO, UGANDA

NAIROBI, British East Africa, Dec. 16 (AP).—The body of Carl Akeley, noted American explorer, sculptor and inventor, has found its last resting place on Mount Mikeno, in Uganda, the scene of some of his greatest exploits as an African explorer.

A memorial service for Mr. Akeley, who died on Nov. 17 while collecting specimens for the American Museum of Natural History, was held last night. Archdeacon Swann conducted the services, which were attended by many prominent hunters and explorers, including Martin Johnson. The American Consul at Nairobi also was present.

It is understood that Mrs. Akeley, the former Miss Mary L. Jobe, who also is noted as an explorer, is continuing the work on which her husband was engaged when he was stricken.

Four years ago Mr. Akeley expressed a wish that he might be buried in Africa on Mount Mikeno, Mrs. Mary Hastings Bradley disclosed in Chicago on Dec. 1, shortly after the news of his death had been received.

ELEPHANT EASY TO HIT.

But Kansas Bullets Make Little Impression on Diamond's Hide.

OTTAWA, Kan., Dec. 16 (AP).—Kansas farmers have proved that an elephant is an excellent target, but that fireside firearms fail to make much impression on its thick hide. This has been revealed by a series of minor operations on Diamond, the circus pachyderm which recently toured Southeastern Kansas.

Trainers were taking large and small shot and bullets from his hide here today as evidence of his reception by irate farmers along an eighty-mile route marked by wrecked fences and damaged outbuildings. A .45-calibre pistol bullet was the largest discovered thus far.

Diamond started his rampage on Saturday, following his escape from Winter quarters, and defied all attempts at capture by farmer posses. He frequently drew fire when he ambled through fences, clothes lines and fields. He surrendered when he recognized two circus horses used in the hunt.

Urges Equitable Cotton Mill Tax.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Dec. 16.—More equitable taxation of Massachusetts cotton mills, not tax exemption inviting "manufacturing plants on wheels," but "a uniform rate of $5, $8 or $10 per thousand upon all machinery used in any industry in the Commonwealth" as a part of a plan to enable this New England industry to meet the handicap of competition from the South, was suggested to members of the Association of Massachusetts Assessors at today's session in the State House. The speaker was Joseph H. Handford, Assessor of New Bedford.

PANAMA TREATY GOES TO ASSEMBLY

President Chiari Submits the Compact to Legislators With His Recommendations.

VOTE OVER CANAL FIXED

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Dec. 16.—President Chiari submitted formally to the National Assembly this afternoon the new treaty between Panama and the United States and the Claims Convention, which were published yesterday evening by newspapers here, the articles having been reprinted from the Havana newspaper El Heraldo de Cuba and the Costa Rican paper Reportorio Americano. The treaty text is essentially the same as summarized and given to the press on July 29.

President Chiari yesterday cabled to Minister Alfaro at Washington to inform the United States Government that the treaty would be presented to the Assembly here today. The President declined to comment on the treaty after stating that he did not care to break his promise to leave the National Assembly in a position to enjoy the complete latitude and independence necessary to approve or disapprove the treaty.

In the message accompanying the treaty handed to the Assembly by the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Horacio Alfaro, President Chiari wrote:

"In the message presented to the honorable Assembly by the Secretary for Foreign Affairs you will find a detailed account of the negotiation of the treaty and convention mentioned above. Therefore I abstain from repeating here those details. The executive power cherishes the hope that in considering such important and superlative documents it will be done with the greatest serenity and that the decisions will be inspired by the purest patriotism."

The President of the Assembly referred the treaty to a committee of nine Deputies for study and report for the first vote, which is a mere formality, deciding whether the treaty shall have a second vote. According to Panama procedure, in case any clauses of the treaty are disapproved by the Assembly after the second debate, the treaty will be considered to have been rejected and will be returned to the President with reasons for the rejection.

Publication of the treaty has not caused much general discussion. In an editorial El Tiempo calls on the entire nation to study the matter calmly and after ample meditation to express opinion concerning "this delicate aspect of national existence."

"The future is in the balance and on the patriotism with which we confront this situation depends our good or bad fortune in the future," the newspaper declares.

Similar to French Treaties.

PARIS, Dec. 16.—A summary of the newly negotiated treaty between the United States and Panama, published here today, was read with a great deal of interest in the French capital. In construction and intent the document might have been modeled on the compacts which France has made with her various satellites and which so often have been criticized in America as showing militarism.

If America, where her vital interests are at stake, now makes such treaties, the French would like to believe our criticism of their arrangements is not really so serious as it sounds at times.

Canal Sovereignty Determined.

The text of the treaty with Panama has not been officially given out, but previous dispatches have stated that it definitely determines the sovereignty of the Panama Canal Zone, says The Associated Press.

Copies of the Havana newspaper El Heraldo de Cuba and the Costa Rican publication Reportorio Americano, containing what was purported to be the text of the pact, were confiscated in Panama early this week.

Subsequent dispatches said the American Embassy and the Panaman Legation in Havana had started investigations to learn how the Heraldo obtained its information, inasmuch as Panama and the United States Government agreed not to publish the text until Congressional action on it had been taken.

Hungarian Officials Sell Machinery as Scrap Iron.

VIENNA, Dec. 16.—The machinery used by Prince Windisch-Greatz and his franc forgers today ended its criminal careeron the junk heap.

When the counterfeiting was discovered the Prince hastened to sell the machinery to dealers in old iron. Detectives unearthed and confiscated it and it was used as evidence during the trial. When the trial ended the junk dealers demanded the machinery back.

The court today ruled it should be delivered to them against payment of something less than one cent a pound —the machinery thus passed to the junk heap at a price of less than $20.

ASKS PAN-AMERICAN MEDICAL CENTRE

Charles A. J. Hoyt Tells of Hopes for $5,000,000 Institution Here.

STUDENT EXCHANGE URGED

System Similar to Rhodes Scholarships Advocated at Closing of the Commercial Congress.

Charles A. Jocelyn Holt, Special Commissioner of the Pan-American Commercial Congress, told that organization yesterday at its closing session at the Hotel Roosevelt of his hopes for the establishment in this city of a Pan-American Medical Centre. He hoped it would include a hospital where people of Latin America could be treated by those who understand them, a clinical laboratory, a library and a training school for nurses, where women of Latin America could be trained, with a view to their return to their native lands, and promote interest in nursing. Mr. Holt said that the centre could be constructed for about $5,000,000.

Mr. Holt said he would sail for Chile next month to interest the people in the project. The congress adopted a resolution pledging its cooperation.

Thirty-five resolutions were adopted unanimously. The resolutions were offered by Carl H. Fowler as Chairman of the Resolutions Committee and accepted by Dr. Clarence J. Owens, the President.

The program of the National Narcotic Education Association was approved and the congress pledged its support and cooperation to the plans of the world convention on narcotic education.

One of the resolutions urged "the exchange of scholarships and professorships between the colleges and universities of the Americas; that Latin-American students be invited to the colleges of the United States and that students in the United States be urged to attend Latin-American colleges and universities, and to commend to our public spirited citizens the establishment of a system of student fellowship for the countries of Pan America, similar to the Rhodes scholarships established for the British Empire.

Another resolution invited Canada and all other political entities in the Western Hemisphere not now included in the Pan American Union into associations with the Pan-American Commercial Congress, and asked that the proper agencies be urged to invite Canada into full membership in the Union.

The congress approved the plan for the Bolivar University in Panama; the Gorgas Memorial in Panama, and the establishment of a permanent international exposition at Panama, adjacent to the Canal. The full endorsement of the congress was pledged to the establishment of a World Forum to be erected in Yorktown, Va.

To build closer ties of trade and fraternity between the countries, the congress asked the appointment of a Trades Commissioner from each of the twenty-one countries, each to visit the other twenty countries in the course of a year and report back to his own respective country.

The session was addressed by Miss Mary Boyce Temple, President General of the Woman's Auxiliary; R. C. Kopf, who won a cruise offered by the congress last year for an essay; Major Arthur W. Proctor, of the American Legion; and Pedro Rafael Rincones, Consul General of the Republic of Venezuela.

The congress will meet next year at Toronto, Canada.

PRACTICAL JOKE AIDS POOR.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 16.—A practical joke was played on Edouard Herriot, Minister of Education, and numerous personalities of the artistic and literary world today, that ended well through a happy thought of the Minister's assistant.

An unknown person or persons telephoned a large number of noted writers, artists and professors that the Minister wished to receive them at 6 o'clock this evening. They all came to the rendezvous, but the Minister was out of town and his secretaries wondered how to get out of the difficulty gracefully.

Finally the Chef de Cabinet had an idea, and coming out to meet the gathering, declared that the Minister had been unavoidably called away. He said he had been asked to greet the visitors and invite them to collaborate in a great charity gala. All those present accepted and formed a committee to organize the affair.

Meanwhile the officials are trying to locate the jokers responsible for the prank.

WILLIAM A. LARNED, TENNIS STAR, SUICIDE

Former National Champion, in Ill-Health, Shoots Himself at the Knickerbocker.

HELD TITLE SEVEN TIMES

Rated Among First Ten Players From 1892-1911, With One Break —Had Trying Service in War.

William A. Larned, former lawn tennis champion of the United States, was found dead yesterday in his room in the Knickerbocker Club, Sixty-second Street and Fifth Avenue. He had killed himself by firing a bullet into his right temple. Ill health prompted the act, according to his physician.

The suicide occurred some time between 11 P. M. on Wednesday, when Mr. Larned retired, and 10 A. M. yesterday, when A. Albert McCarthy, the former champion's brother-in-law, telephoned to the club. Mr. McCarthy, whose home is in New Jersey, returned to this country recently from a visit to the British West Indies and was to have met Mr. Larned yesterday.

The tennis player, who had a nervous collapse two years ago, had been in ill health since, and several months ago an attack of spinal meningitis left him partly paralyzed from the waist down. He used a cane to get about. At no time, however, had his illness caused alarm to his friends.

Found Dead on Bed.

When Mr. McCarthy telephoned, the doorman of the club looked to see if Mr. Larned's "peg" was in at the board near the door. He found the peg in place, showing that the clubman was in the club and probably in his room. The telephone remained unanswered in the room, however, and after a boy had paged the tennis expert, H. E. Bonvin, Superintendent of the club, opened the door with a pass key. Mr. Larned's body was lying on the bed.

The police of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station were notified and Detective Emil Mach went to the club. Meanwhile members of the club got in touch with Mr. Larned's personal physician, Dr. George Bolling Lee, of 20 East Sixty-sixth Street. Dr. Charles Norris, Chief Medical Examiner, reported the death as suicide.

Detective Mach reported that no note of explanation had been left behind. He said that when Mr. Larned was found his right hand clutched a .45-calibre automatic pistol of the type used in the army. Only one shot had been fired and the report had not been heard, leading to the theory that the suicide had been committed on Wednesday night before occupants of near-by rooms had retired.

The following statement by Dr. Lee was issued at the club:

"William A. Larned, the well-known New Yorker and one-time famous tennis player, committed suicide by shooting in his room at the Knickerbocker Club, 807 Fifth Avenue, on the night of Dec. 15, where he had been living for the past two months. For over two years he had been suffering from a nervous breakdown, and, whereas his condition had never been alarming, unquestionably this was the direct cause of his act."

Was Once a Broker.

Mr. Larned was 54 years old and a bachelor. His home was in the Bedminster Road, Far Hills, N. J., but he had closed his residence there in October when he came into town to live at the club. At one time the tennis player had been a broker, but ill health had caused his retirement. He began his tennis career while a student at Cornell University, from which he was graduated in 1893. The year before he was runner-up in the national singles championship. In the same year, by virtue of his splendid play in the championship, he entered the ranks of the ten leading players of the country. He was rated among the best ten from 1892 to 1911, the only break in his nineteen years of tennis prominence coming in 1898, when he joined the Rough Riders as a private and fought with Colonel Theodore Roosevelt in the attack on San Juan Hill.

"Larned the invincible," as he was known in the days when he was compiling a turf court record as yet unapproached, even by the redoubtable W. T. Tilden 2d himself, was national singles champion seven times. He held the title in 1901, 1902, 1907, 1908, 1909, 1910 and 1911. In addition he won the all-comers' tournaments in 1900, 1901 and 1907.

"Larned's style of play," wrote a commentator when the champion was sweeping the lists clear of rivals, "is always popular with the 'gallery.' It is fast, hard, irresistible, full of smashes, clean, unerring drives and wonderful shots. Other great players hunt for an opponent's weakness, harry him, wear him out, win by strategy; Larned employs no such tactics. He goes headlong into the fray, sets the pace at the start, plays a conquering, straightforward game all the time, and wins out by sheer ability to hammer home more decisive, killing shots than the fellow on the other side of the net."

Seldom Played Doubles.

Larned was an individual player, seldom entering the doubles contests. In 1907, however, with W. J. Clothier he captured the Eastern doubles championship at Boston. Notable matches in which he engaged included that with Dr. J. Pim, celebrated British player, whom Larned defeated in the 1908 international matches for the Davis Cup. In 1903 he defeated R. F. Doherty, one of the famous brothers. In Davis Cup play in Australia during 1905 he defeated Norman E. Brookes, but in 1912, when Larned and Beals C. Wright represented America in the cup play at Melbourne, Larned bowed to Tod Heath while Brookes triumphed over Wright.

During the World War Mr. Larned served in the Signal Corps with the rank of Major. His war service was extremely trying and last night Major Henry Beaumont Herts, the architect, who had served with him, expressed the opinion that Mr. Larned's experiences in the war had been the real reason behind his death. He said:

"Major Larned was adjutant to Colonel William Monell, who with Colonel Chalmers Hall, a West Point man, was a directing chief of the night bombardment service of the A. E. F. I was adjutant to Colonel Hall and thus was in contact with Major Larned. The last three months of Major Larned's career in the army were exceptionally trying ones, but, although some of us were six months in the hospital as the result of the strain, Major Larned, an athlete, felt that he could carry on without recuperation to the end of the war. Colonel Monell's death, I believe, was directly attributable to his experiences. I am certain that Major Larned never recovered fully from his war work."

In addition to membership in the Knickerbocker Club, Mr. Larned belonged to the Racquet and Tennis Club and the Essex County Fox Hounds of Bernardsville, N. J. Four years ago Mr. Larned patented a steel-framed tennis racquet which was highly indorsed by tennis players.

He is survived, in addition to his sister, Mrs. McCarthy, by a brother, Edward P. Larned of Summit, N. J. Announcement of the funeral will be made later.

ENRIGHT LOSES ON APPEAL.

Judgment of $409 Won by Alterer of Office Is Upheld.

By a decision of the Appellate Term of the Supreme Court yesterday, former Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright must pay a judgment of $409 to Hyman Samuelson, a contractor, for services in installing a partition last February in offices at 132 West Thirty-first Street, where the real estate and insurance firm of R. E. Enright & Co. occupied one room and the Police Publishing Company, now defunct publisher of a magazine, had the other. The court overruled the former commissioner's contention that he did not order the partition and was not responsible for it.

In the suit, filed in the Municipal Court, Samuelson asserted that Mr. Enright owed him $465 for erecting a partition and installing office equipment, and that he paid only $80. Mr. Enright's answer was that he ordered only a cabinet for his own office and paid for it.

John C. Hackett, formerly executive clerk of the Police Department, called as a witness for Mr. Enright, testified that as managing editor of Police Stories Magazine, he ordered the partition, and that Mr. Enright had nothing to do with it.

FIRE IN THE ANSONIA ROUTS HUNDREDS

Telephone Girl Awakens and Reassures Guests as Blaze Rages on Tenth Floor.

NEWSBOY RUNS ELEVATOR

Brings Half-Clad Tenants Down to Lobby—Cecil Lean and Wife Warned by Bark of Dog.

Fire of unknown origin drove hundreds of guests from their rooms in night attire early yesterday morning at the Hotel Ansonia, Broadway at Seventy-third Street. The presence of mind of a newsboy and two girls, one a switchboard operator, the other an elevator operator, helped avert panic.

An alarm was turned in shortly after 6 o'clock by a pedestrian on Broadway who had noticed smoke pouring from a window of the tenth floor of the north wing. He then notified attendants on the ground floor and left without leaving his name. Mrs. Irma Lustgarten, wife of an ear and eye specialist, was sleeping in the blazing apartment with her daughter, Eleanor, 10 years old, and her son, Edward, 20. Her husband is in Florida.

Miss Gisella Barsella, telephone operator, threw a switch which turned on alarm gongs in every corridor. She then rang the Lustgarten telephone. The blaze was at its height in the parlor of the Lustgartens' five-room suite, but none of the occupants was aware of it until thus aroused.

In response to the alarm signal hundreds of guests called the telephone operator to ask, "Anything wrong?" Miss Barsella told them where the fire was and assured them there was no immediate danger. She also called others who had not responded to the alarm to make certain that they were awake in case the fire should spread.

Corridors filled with men, women and children, and the elevator bell rang continuously.

Miss Ivy Wilshire, elevator operator, brought down cars full of half-dressed, excited women and children. Others came down by the stairs and waited in the lobby. Michael Wilkinson, another elevator operator; James Copack, a bellboy, and John Denoya, 14-year-old newsboy, manned other elevators.

Cecil Lean and his wife, Cleo Mayfield, actor and actress, who had a suite on the tenth floor, said they had been aroused by the barking of their Boston bull terrier named Count. They made their way downstairs through smoke to the ninth floor, where they took the elevator. Mrs. Lustgarten and her children were met in the hall by Wilkinson and escorted to a vacant apartment on a lower floor.

Three engine companies in charge of Deputy Chief George Dougherty responded. The flames were extinguished in forty-five minutes. All the furniture in the Lustgarten apartment was ruined and smoke and water did much damage to two other apartments on the same floor and one on the floor below.

Hook and Ladder Company 74, on the way to the Ansonia, struck a truck at Seventy-seventh Street and Broadway, throwing Fireman Dennis Donnelly to the ground. He was taken to Roosevelt Hospital and treated for a fractured hip. No arrest was made.

GEMS STRANGELY GONE FROM SECRET DRAWER

Detectives under Captain John J. McCloskey of the Sixth Detective District, Brooklyn, are investigating the theft of jewelry valued at more than $14,000 from the secret drawer of a bureau in the home of Dr. Charles Pollock, 1,237 Eastern Parkway, which was reported by Dr. Pollock to the Atlantic Avenue Precinct. The loss of the valuables was discovered on Tuesday. The jewels were last seen on Dec. 5.

The jewelry, Dr. Pollock told the police, was in a silver case, which was not taken. It consisted of a diamond ring valued at $12,000, a woman's watch set with diamonds valued at $1,800, a watch valued at $300, three diamond dress studs and a pair of cuff links. Two diamond bracelets and a rope of pearls in a red plush box and valued at $6,500 were not taken. Dr. Pollock, who is connected with the Williamsburg Maternity Hospital, could give the police no clues.

The bureau drawer containing the secret compartment is opened with a key. In the rear of the drawer is a spring which releases the inner vault. Dr. Pollock told the detectives that only he and his wife had access to the outer drawer and that as far as he knew they were the only ones who knew of the existence of the inner compartment. The detectives questioned several servants employed by the doctor but they were unable to throw any light on the disappearance of the gems. The doctor told the police that he had implicit confidence in his employes. The detectives could find no indication of an entrance having been forced to the room through the windows.

ORMISTON SURRENDER PROMISED FOR TODAY

Counsel, Ready to Resist Extradition to California, Will Ask Fixing of Bail.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16 (AP).—Kenneth F. Ormiston will surrender tomorrow as reported, his attorney said tonight, more than a week after his discovery in Harrisburg, Pa., and his subsequent return to Chicago in the company of the city detective and newspapermen who found him.

A fugitive warrant awaits Ormiston's surrender. It was issued here on the basis of a California warrant charging him with conspiracy to obstruct justice and subornation of perjury in connection with the case of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist for whose radio station he once was announcer.

The next step after Ormiston's arrest will be extradition proceedings, and Ormiston's lawyer, Edward H. S. Martin, already has announced his client would resist any effort to return him to California.

Are You a Bull or a Bear on 1927?

For years business men from coast to coast have looked upon the Curtis publications—The Saturday Evening Post, The Ladies' Home Journal and The Country Gentleman—as barometers of coming business conditions.

Their advertising pages permit a rapid, timely survey of what business is thinking, planning, doing.

Here is reflected accurately how the keenest minds in the country view the outlook—men who back their opinions with money.

They have made it possible for us to enter 1927 with the largest volume of advertising we have ever booked for a year ahead—more of it on a twelve month basis—more of it in color.

Coming from many diversified lines of industry, representing the combined judgment of industrial and banking leaders, this volume is more than the prophecy of a nation holding its own—it is a forecast of further national growth.

With business becoming more scientific, less haphazard, each year, this increased volume of advertising clinches the position of the Curtis publications as barometers of what business is doing and expecting.

This advertising is an index of the low inventories of trade, the healthy position of steel, improved railroad efficiency, general employment at high wages, and the strong banking situation.

These facts are heartening to manufacturer, jobber, retailer and public alike.

SMUGGLERS' FLIGHT STILL IS MYSTERY

Federal Inquiry Fails to Show How Fourteen Eluded Coast Guard on the Service.

STORIES SAID TO CONFLICT

Pisciotta Says He Also Will Investigate Other Cases of Escapes of Prisoners.

Following examination of some of the seven members of the crew of the Coast Guard patrol boat 205, from whom thirteen or fourteen members of the crew of the rum-runner Service are alleged to have escaped on Wednesday night, Assistant United States Attorney Alexander Pisciotta, in Brooklyn, said yesterday that he would conduct an investigation into this escape and also into several other cases in which rum-runners captured by Coast Guardsmen regained their freedom.

"United States Attorney William A. De Groot and I," said Mr. Pisciotta, "believe that the time has come to call a halt on the escape of prisoners in the hands of members of the Coast Guard and to find out why and how these escapes take place. There is something very peculiar about the whole thing and we intend to get to the bottom of it.

"Last May three men were arrested by the Coast Guard and two escaped. Las month five were arrested and the most important prisoner of the five, the supercargo and 'money man' of the outfit, escaped.

Suspects Something Is Wrong.

"Now fourteen men were caught and only one failed to escape, and that was due to the personal courage of Assistant Customs Inspector Gustave A. Tumm Jr. Something is wrong in all this We are going to check up also to see whether the crew of the Coast Guard patrol boat 205 were responsible for any other escapes."

Mr. Pisciotta then ordered the seven members of the 205 crew to return to his office for further questioning today. He said that those examined had told contradictory and unsatisfactory stories of how the thirteen prisoners escaped.

Mr. Pisciotta's investigation opened after a preliminary hearing before Edward Barnes, Assistant Solicitor of Customs, at the Custom House. Mr. Barnes said he was not satisfied with the crew's anwers.

The former submarine chaser Service, with fourteen men aboard, was captured by the C. G. 205 off Orchard Shoals, S. I. Liquor was said to have been found aboard and her crew was placed under guard while she was being towed into port. Somewhere en route thirteen men got away. Inspector Tumm charged that he was attacked by Robert Hampton of the crew of the Service, but the Inspector overcame Hampton and brought him in. Hampton was held in Brooklyn yesterday in $25,000 bail, pending a hearing on charges of assaulting a Customs officer and violation of the Customs laws and the Volstead act. He gave his address as 300 South Front Street, Elizabeth, N. J.

Four Arrested Service's Crew.

Mr. Tumm said that the Service was caught after a chase in which shots were fired and that he and Inspector Francis J. Cawley went aboard her with two Coast Guardsmen, who arrested the Service's crew and searched them for weapons.

Mr. Tumm said he took the wheel of the Service, after she had been tied to the 205. While the boats were under way, he added, he felt a blow on the back of his head and turned to grapple with Hampton.

Inspector Cawley said he noticed the Service was behaving oddly, as if no one were at her wheel. He ordered the 205 to slow down and then boarded the Service to discover that the thirteen men had escaped in two dories.

Inspector Cawley said that eight of the prisoners were at one time transferred to the 205, but neither he nor the Coast Guardsmen could explain how they got back on the Service and escaped.

George Cook said he was the only Coast Guardsman on the Service. He said he did not think he was there to guard the prisoners, as they had been disarmed and at that time were aboard the 205.

When Mr. Barnes asked if the prisoners had taken any liquor with them, the Coast Guardsman replied that they must have had some, as there had been "bottles everywhere."

Federal records show that the Service is the property of Joseph Stiman of 153 Brighton Avenue, Perth Amboy, N. J. Customs officials said the boat had long been under suspicion and that she had about $1,500 in liquor aboard when seized. She is moored at the Battery.

SEEK ARREST IN RUM CASE.

Edgewater Officials Will Fight Extradition to New York.

George Cutley, attorney for Mayor Henry Wissel and Chief of Police James A. Dinan of Edgewater, N. J., and Edgewater Detectives Alexander F. Flannery and Edward Pickering, announced yesterday that his clients had no intention of appearing at the Federal building here on Thursday for pleading to an indictment charging them and twenty-nine others with conspiracy to violate the Prohibition law. They are accused of connection with the landing at Edgewater of a $2,000,000 rum cargo from the steamship Eker.

Mr. Cutler said that his clients had received no official notice of their indictment, that no attempt had been made to arrest them and that they certainly would fight extradition.

At the office of United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner it was said that no warrants would be issued unless the men failed to appear for pleading.

When an indicted person is a man of no property or interests that would tend to prevent him from trying to escape, it is customary to issue a warrant immediately on the opening of the indictment. But where men like Mayor Wissel and Chief Dinan are indicted the Federal authorities give such defendants a chance to surrender themselves voluntarily.

According to Mr. Cutley, Paul De Montreaux and James Baldwin, part owners of the Edgewater Boat Repair Yard, do not expect to appear for pleading. Mr. Cutley said he did not represent them, but had been informed that they would fight extradition.

"It is our intention to resist removal proceedings, not in an attempt to impede the administration of justice, but in order that we may have an opportunity to show to the public in as speedy a time as possible the innocence of these defendants," said Mr. Cutley of his clients' stand.

13 PLACES ARE PADLOCKED.

Two Give $1,000 Bonds for Search —One Personally Enjoined.

Thirteen padlock decrees were issued yesterday by Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow. More than thirty cases remain to be disposed of today. In one case a personal injunction without the usual accompanying padlock was issued, and in two other cases the defendants were placed under bonds of $1,000 each to permit Government agents to enter and search their places at any time.

The permission-to-search bonds were issued against the Times Square Pharmacy, 206 West Forty-third Street, and Masterson's, at Montgomery, N. Y. In the case of the Times Square Pharmacy the Court accepted the owner's plea that if liquor had been sold there it had been without his knowledge or consent. Padlock decrees were issued as follows:

For one year—Regan, 68 South Street; Ptiscopo, 482 Mott Avenue, the Bronx; Weinert, 506 First Street; Dinn, 2,236 Amsterdam Avenue; Porco, 1,014 Brook Avenue, the Bronx; Club Dixon, 147 West Forty-sixth Street.

For nine months—Precision Auto Garage, 339 West Eighteenth Street.

For six months—Pacewitz, Lake Huntington, N. Y.; Ettinger, 334 New Main Street, Yonkers; Wilson, 313 Halstead Avenue, Harrison, N. Y.; Scogna, 82 Cortlandt Street, North Tarrytown N. Y.; Pomerans, 262 Main Street, Beacon, N. Y.; Murphy, 114 Greenwich Avenue.

Right to Transport Alcohol Upheld.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 16 (AP).—While it is illegal to possess specially denatured alcohol for sale without permit, it is not illegal to transport it, Judge E. H. Brewster ruled in the United States District Court here today in dismissing the cases of Leslie Watters and Everett Cooley, indicted for transporting sixteen barrels of such alcohol.

E. T. BEDFORD GIVES PROHIBITION VIEWS

HATED TO DISCHARGE MAN

New Raid on Abandoned School He Gave Greens Farms Reveals Another Still."

Edward Thomas Bedford, the 77-year-old President of the Corn Products Refining Company, has built and endowed a Young Men's Christian Association building in Westport, Conn. He has founded a junior high school in the same town. And in the neighboring community of Greens Farms, where he has his own Summer estate, he has built another school.

In regard to the liquor question Mr. Bedford has always been a total abstainer and an ardent prohibitionist. Consequently, when it was brought to his attention that a trusted houseman on his estate was manufacturing liquor by the barrelful he was forced to notify the authorities and dismiss the miscreant.

A hard thing to do when the person in question has been in one's employ for seventeen years. But to Mr. Bedford it was a matter of conscience. If he didn't bring him to justice and discharge him he would be analagous to the pious thief. Fate had forced his hand.

Interviewed yesterday in his office, 17 Battery Place, Mr. Bedford did not want to discuss prohibition. He was still mortified that on Wednesday he had had to turn the authorities on William Erbe, his houseman, in whose caretaker's cottage and garage the dry agents found $12,000 worth of liquor and bootleggers' paraphernalia.

"Drinking," said Mr. Bedford yesterday, "is a matter of conscience. I would vote the Prohibition ticket again if this country went wet. But other people have to decide for themselves."

Then, before he went back into his inner sanctum, he said that inasmuch as he had never been able to reach an agreement on the liquor question with members of his own family he wanted very much to keep clear of contentious arguments with the rest of the world.

According to his secretary, Mr. Bedford's family consists of a wife, two sons, two daughters and fifteen grandchildren, and, the secretary interpolated, "the younger generation likes a drink now and then."

Be that as it may, the philosophy of Mr. Bedford is "live and let live—when it squares with your conscience."

WESTPORT, Conn., Dec. 16 (AP).—The Greens Farms schoolhouse, built by E. T. Bedford, President of the Corn Products Company of New York, and presentcd to the town, today yielded raiding State Police a small still, a quantity of mash, and two gallons of "moonshine" liquor. John Kofca and his wife, Mary, who have used the building since its abandonment as a school about two years ago, were arrested. William Erbe, who was found operating stills on the estate here of Mr. Bedford, pleaded guilty today to four charges of liquor violation in Town Court and was fined $800 and costs. He also was sentenced to eight months in jail, but his sentence was suspended.

TWO M. I. T. STUDENTS EXPELLED FOR RIOT

Two Are Suspended and Thirteen Others Disciplined for Field Day Escapade.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 16 (AP).—Two students at Massachusetts Institute of Technology have been expelled, two suspended for a year and thirteen others disciplined as a result of disorders in connection with the celebration of field day at the institute on Nov. 6. The men expelled were John L. Dodson of New York and William E. King of Boston.

In making public tonight the report of a Faculty committee which investigated the disorders and prescribed the penalties President Samuel W. Stratton expressed "deep personal regret for any acts which caused damage or inconvenience to the public and brought discredit upon the name of Technology." In a letter to The Associated Press, President Stratton said:

"While I am confident that the whole affair grew out of youthful enthusiasm and not from any willful desire to cause damage or inconvenience, nevertheless we who have the good name of the institute at heart wish to make it clear that destruction of property or interference with he rights of others will not be tolerated in any degree."

EARL CADOGAN IS BANKRUPT

Nominally He Is One of London's Largest Land Owners.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—A receiving order in bankruptcy has been made against Earl Cadogan, nominally one of London's largest land owners.

According to his secretary, Mr. Bedford's family consists of a wife, two sons, two daughters and fifteen grandchildren, and, the secretary interpolated, "the younger generation likes a drink now and then."

Be that as it may, the philosophy of Mr. Bedford is "live and let live—when it squares with your conscience."

The explanation of this apparent anomaly is that the Cadogan estates, which are extensive, including large areas in Chelsea, have been administered for several years by trustees, the Earl having been made bankrupt in 1911 while he was still Viscount Chelsea.

The Earl is well known in sporting circles.

FINDS OLD BOUNDARIES IN EDUCATION PASSING

Dr. Butler Tells Academy There Will Be a Revolution in Training of Physicians.

The old boundaries in education are wearing away and the various branches of science are becoming more interdependent, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, said last night when he spoke on "The Physician; the Larger View," at the New York Academy of Medicine, 2 East 103d Street.

"There will be a revolution in medical education, I feel quite certain," declared Dr. Butler. "Medicine and law have lagged behind because of traditions and professional self-consciousness. This is an argument for raising the point at which professional training begins. We must get away, bit by bit, from the guild point of view in training physicians and lawyers."

Dr. Butler said, the number of persons who had become interested in mysticism, orientalism and various forms of faith cure was amazing. To his mind, this was due to an unsatisfied and unfulfilled yearning. It was his belief, he said, that medical science would one day unlock the door so it would be possible to obtain understanding of this type of mind.

"It is almost impossible," he went on, "to prevent teachers from trying to teach young lawyers and physicians too much. All you can do is to give them the fundamental knowledge, show them how to observe and then turn them loose to learn by experience. Otherwise we will turn the world over to the mystics and faith healers. Almost every system of instruction at present is based upon all the latest in knowledge and that is an impossible task.

"We are looking more and more to find the man or woman with the essentials of a liberal education, who has studied the fundamentals and who has had hospital and clinical experience. They should then be turned out to come face to face with humanity and learn by experience to build on that foundation."

Dr. Butler said he was amazed at the intellectual achievements of the earliest civilizations in the realm of spirit and pure intellect.

"Great standards were set then and ideals defined and drawn," he said. "There was amazing insight into what we call medicine. More than one passage on diet and exercise by Hippocrates might have been written in December, 1926, by a member of this academy."

FIGHT FOR CRUISERS MEETS WITH DELAY

HOPE COOLIDGE WILL YIELD

Leaders Want to Give Him Plenty of Time—Personnel Reduction Meets Strong Opposition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Action taken today indicates that the Congressional leaders who demand naval preparedness still have hopes that President Coolidge will withdraw his budget message recommendation that appropriations be withheld for the construction of three light cruisers pending negotiations for an international conference to further limit armaments.

As the result of a report this morning by Chairman Butler of the House Naval Committee, who yesterday urged the President to forward estimates for the cruisers and a $4,000,000 dirigible, the Naval Appropriation bill will not be reported until after the holidays. It had been planned to report the measure tomorrow.

The decision to delay presentation of the bill until Jan. 3 or 4 will afford the President full opportunity to fall in with the wishes of the House Naval Committee, if he so desires, in view of the situation respecting America's sea power outlined to him by Chairman Butler.

Representative Madden of Illinois, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee—the "Watchdog of the Treasury"—made a friendly gesture toward the building program advocated by Chairman Butler by agreeing to delay reporting the bill. Informed that the naval committee wanted the measure withheld until January in the belief that by that time the President might reverse his position, Mr. Madden readily agreed.

Chairman Butler was unable to inform the naval committee this morning just what effect the committee's letter urging immediate action on the cruiser-dirigible program had made upon the Presidential mind. He said he was hopeful of favorable results, but had received no assurances that the President would turn his back on the budget recommendation. It was at Mr. Butler's suggestion that steps were taken to hold the navy bill in committee until after the holidays.

Another feature of the naval budget in controversy is one contemplating a reduction in naval personnel. Members of the naval subcommittee that frames the Naval Appropriation bill are up in arms over this particular item. They are opposed to any reduction in personnel, and have communicated their views on this subject to the President.

The number of men in the navy on June 30, 1926, was nearly 4,000 fewer than the average enlisted strength of 85,928 the year before. The result is that there are battleships now in active commission without full complements. Members of the naval committee regard this situation with serious concern, as preventing "razor-edge" efficiency in the fleet.

The delay in reporting the naval appropriation bill will give an opportunity to straighten out this snarl.

SNAKE VEST FOR COOLIDGE.

Kentuckian Pieces Rattler's Skin Together for Christmas Gift.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP).—President Coolidge today found himself in position to blossom out in a snake-skin vest, if he is so inclined.

The first of the usual run of Christmas gifts which annually flow into the White House has proved to be such a garment, home-tailored, the gift of Joe Stinson of Rumsey, Ky.

This unusual sartorial creation consists of strips of the skin of a rattler, neatly pieced together. Snakeologists attached to the President's personal staff estimate that the rattler was seven feet in length and five years old. Five rattlers were tacked away in a pocket of the vest.

HOPKINS SUIT DROPPED; NEW WILL A FORGERY

Plaintiffs in $30,000,000 Case in California Withdraw Claims—Suspect Under Guard.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 16 (AP).—The contest to force a redistribution of the $30,000,000 estate of Mark Hopkins, California pioneer railroad builder, was thrown out of court today, when both sides admitted that a newly found will on which the contest was based was a forgery.

When the case was called in the Superior Court today, H. W. Rich and A. L. Hart, appearing for P. B. McCandless of San Jose,, a beneficiary under the new will, served notice on the Court of their withdrawal from the case on the ground that the instrument was a forged document.

Decision of the attorneys regarding the will was reached after a conference with handwriting experts yesterday, they said. Later court officials let it be known that a man suspected of executing the alleged forgery was under guard in a San Francisco hotel.

The action was to have settled the claim of 228 other supposed heirs living in many parts of the country.

UNIONS OPPOSE WAGE LAW.

They Approve Truman Act, However, at Industrial Survey Hearing.

Representatives of the American Federation of Labor appearing yesterday before the Industrial Survey Commission hearing in the rooms of the Bar Association protested against the prevailing rate of wages law, which they asserted was unenforceable and unconstitutional. Pointing out that a similar law had been declared unconstitutional in Oklahoma, the labor representatives declared themselves as satisfied with the pending Truman act, which defines definitely the terms "prevailing rate" and "locality," which the Supreme Court had ruled were too vague to be the basis of criminal action in case of violation of the law. They urged, however, that the criminal penalty provided for in the Truman act be stricken out and that an arbitration clause be included for the settlement of disputes.

Clarence A. Crane, Secretary of the General Contractors Association, opposed the Truman act, saying it would be open to the charge of unconstitutionality. The "prevailing rate" of wages, he said, shifted continually, and therefore a definite rate should be fixed by an established board. In the event that such a board increased rates while a contract was in operation, he said, the contractor should be reimbursed, while if they were reduced, the contractor should be held liable for a corresponding adjustment on his part.

Among the witnesses testifying were Francis X. Sullivan, legal adviser of the New oYrk State Federation of Labor; John M. O'Hanlon, Secretary and Treasurer of the same organization; Edward J. Hanna, International Secretary of the Paving Block Setters and Rammers Union, and John Gill, representing the Bricklayers' and Masons' Unions of the City of New York.

HONORS MEDICAL STUDENTS

Caducean Society at N. Y. U. Admits Twenty-one Members.

Announcement was made yesterday of the induction of twenty-one honor students into the Caducean Society of New York University Medical School. The society is an honorary medical organization. The induction of the honor students took place at ceremonies in the Washington Square College auditorium. Professor James Kendall of the chemistry department was elected an honorary member.

Samuel L. Swiller, with an average for two years' work of 92 per cent., led the students. He received a key from Professor MacTavish. Irving Ocko and Abraham Schonholtz, with an average of 91.4 per cent., were tied for second place and received second prize of dictionaries. Honorable mention went to Nathan Wexler, who had an average of 90.3 per cent. for the two years.

The remainder of the roll included Samuel R. Berkowitz, Joseph B. Carrona, Charles D. Enselberg, Samuel Feinburg, Julius Fern, Russell V. Fuldner, Sidney Greengras, Waslaw W. Impert, Louis Kaplan, George P. Krauns, Hyman Lockser, Sidney Rosenfeld, Herman Rubler, Rred Scheer, Samuel Sobel, Isadore Stein and Arnold Treitman.

SMITH TO DEMAND STATE HOUSING BANK

yesterday that the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce probably will launch a plan of its own shortly. In this connection Louis H. Pink, a Brooklyn lawyer, who is a member of the Chamber and also of the Housing Board, said yesterday:

"I would be willing to bet that people in Brooklyn will be living in tenements built under the new law and the plan of the Housing Board before people in Manhattan are."

Financing Is Big Problem.

Practically all of those interested in the plans of the Housing Board and its report agreed yesterday that the immediate necessity is the financing of the project. Under the law the stock of the limited dividend companies which are to operate is to pay 6 per cent. and it is required that one-third of the cost of each undertaking shall be raised by the sale of stock bearing that interest, the remaining two-thirds to be raised by first mortgage.

Millions will be needed for the work of rehabilitating even small parts of the so-called slum areas. It has been estimated that to wipe out one notorious block on the lower east side and build modern tenement units will cost $3,300,000. Under the law, using this block as an example, $1,100,000 of this would have to be raised by the sale of stock in the corporation, such stock to carry more than 6 per cent. interest.

Governor Smith, who is intensely interested in the housing problem and has promised the cooperation of State officials, wants the stock to be sold in $100 units. He said yesterday that the wealthy men of the city were unable to finance the project if it was to be carried out on a large scale and that the bulk of the money would have to come from the general public, meaning the small investors.

"We want the public to realize," said the Governor, "that they can buy these bonds in denominations as low as $100 and help New York and her people. It is a safe proposition. The bonds cover Manhattan land and investors can't lose. I want to see the rank and file come forward and take an interest in this thing. We can't rely solely on men of wealth. They cannot do it alone; every one must put his shoulder to the wheel."

The Governor had in mind the wiping out of the whole areas of ancient tenements with their dark and unventilated rooms. The plans of the City Housing Corporation and the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce are more modest, being intended to make a start in the right direction in each borough. The Brooklyn Chamber has not acted officially on the proposal yet, but, according to Mr. Pink, Ralph Jonas, President of the Chamber, has authorized the statement that the Chamber will consider the formation of a limited dividend company to undertake the housing scheme, probably within a couple of months.

The plans of the City Housing Corporation are further advanced. That concern is ready to underwrite $100,000 of the bonds of a limited dividend corporation which will be a subsidiary of the City Housing Corporation itself and it would undoubtedly make a beginning on the lower east side. On behalf of the corporation the following statement was made yesterday:

"The City Housing Corporation is preparing to take steps in the formation of a subsidiary company to launch the first tenement replacement project under the State Housing Board. As was stated to Governor Smith and the board at Wednesday night's dinner, the corporation itself is prepared to underwrite at least $100,000 for this work and an equal sum is probably in sight. This will mean, however, that at least $1,000,000 of additional capital must be made available before the construction of new model housing accommodations can be undertaken.

Stresses Need for Capital.

"This need for capital cannot be stressed too much. We have the Housing law, authorizing work of this kind by limited dividend companies; the State Housing Board created by that act has made its preliminary surveys and has indicated the scope of the work. Mr. Stabler, speaking for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, has pledged the first mortgage financing which is necessary. For the City Housing Corporation it can be said that it is prepared now, through a subsidiary company, to begin work just as soon as the necessary capital is subscribed."

Publication of the preliminary report of the board resulted yesterday in many inquiries at the board's offices, from operating companies and others. The report, in the main, developed the fact that it was wholly feasible to build first-class modern walk-up apartment houses, to rent at prices less than $12.50 a room, in the crowded sections of Manhattan and Brooklyn, and yet make a 6 per cent. return on the investment, providing there is tax exemption, which, Governor Smith announced, has been promised by Mayor Walker.

WAR CLAIMS BILL DEBATED IN HOUSE

"CONFISCATION," SAYS COX

Fish Urges Return of Teuton Property in Full—Mills Defends Deferred Payment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Payment of war claims of American and German nationals and the restoration of seized German property under the terms of the bill proposed by the Administration were debated in the House today. Indications are that the measure will be passed tomorrow or Saturday as it stands and sent to the Senate, where its fate is uncertain.

Speedy passage of the bill, which involves the disposition of seized German property valued at $270,000,000, was advocated by Representatives Mills of New York, Green of Iowa, Cox of Georgia, Rainey of Illinois and Watson of Pennsylvania.

Attacking suggestions that seized German property should be confiscated, Representative Mills declared such a policy was "repugnant to the American sense of justice and public morality" and one that would inflict on those concerned "the most cruel injustice."

Representative Fish of New York, in adversely criticising the bill, insisted that all seized German property should be returned forthwith and that the provision retaining 20 per cent. until American claims should be satisfied be eliminated. He suggested that the 20 per cent. retention would be part confiscation, a point raised against the measure by Senator Borah of Idaho.

Cox Calls Bill Confiscatory.

Representative Cox, Democrat, denounced the bill as "dishonest" and as a "miserable compromise."

"It is one this country would be forever ashamed of if it passed," he said. "Passage of this bill will commit this country to the policy of confiscation. You say there is no confiscation, yet the bill proceeds to confiscate," he asserted, insisting that the measure devoted millions of German money to the payment of American claims.

Mr. Rainey called the measure "bad," but said it was "the best we can do now," and that he would vote for it.

Mr. Mills analyzed the bill and the terms of settlement proposed and argued against the confiscation of seized property.

"Such a program," he said " is repugnant to the American sense of justice and public morality and would constitute a violation of a sound policy always pursued by our country. Ever since we have been a nation we have recognized the inviolability of the property of private citizens in time of war.

No Better Solution, Says Mills.

"In the wars in which we have been engaged with foreign powers I know of no instance in which we have confiscated the property of the citizens of the nation with whom we were at war."

Mr. Mills said the bill under discussion did not represent an ideal solution of the alien property problem, but he defied any one, "given all the circumstances, political and otherwise, to give us a better one."

"Pass this bill," he continued, "and the German property owners will receive well over $200,000,000 at a very early date. The German ship patent and radio owners will receive in cash, as soon as their awards are determined, 50 per cent. of the amount due them, which, in my judgment, will certainly aggregate $40,000,000. The American claimants should receive within the course of the next two years no less than $104,000,000, while the 391 death and personal injury claims and the clams under $100,000 can be paid almost immediately.

"Defeat this bill and these vast sums which should be put to fruitful use will continue to remain idle and unproductive; thousands of individuals will be deprived of property which is rightfully theirs for years to come, perhaps for generations, and a great principle will theoretically have been maintained in its entire integrity only by inflicting in practice the most cruel injustice."

RECITES WELFARE NEEDS.

Coler Tells Women There Is a Lack of Gifts for Patients.

"Thousands of dollars are contributed for cancer research, publicity and medical buildings but not one cent for the actual care of the patient," declared Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Public Welfare, at a meeting of the Society of Illinois Women in New York at the Hotel Astor yesterday. Mr. Coler added that 90 per cent. of the tuberculosis patients in the city were cared for in city institutions.

In describing the work of his department and its relations with private institutions, Mr. Coler commended the social service work carried on at the Metropolitan Hospital by a committee of "non-advertising" women, which "the public generally doesn't know about." This committee and others, Mr. Coler said, had raised thousands of dollars and cared for the families of the patients in city hospitals.

"I want to impress upon you," Mr. Coler said, "the tremendous opportunity for supporting the child welfare organizations and those that properly care for dependent old people. There is one thing a State can't do—that is, raise a new-born baby. You've got to find some one to care for it who has a heart."

Mrs. Harry Herbert Charles, President of the society, presided.

HEINEN DEPICTS AIR FUTURE

Sees Any Flight Possible if Ship Is Big Enough—Norge Lucky, He Says

Captain Anton Heinen, German airship expert, gave members of the Rotary Club yesterday a picture of aerial navigation in the future. Speaking at the regular club luncheon at the Waldorf, Captain Heinen said airship travel would so narrow the dimensions of the globe that a tired business man, instead of going to Niagara Falls in his car, could hop off in an air vessel for Hongkong or Buenos Aires with equal ease.

"There is nothing in present transportation to compare with the comfort, freedom from seasickness and all unpleasantness of traveling in great ships like the Los Angeles," said Captain Heinen, who piloted the German dirigible on its transatlantic flight. "For the first time in the history of transportation a vessel can now choose its own atmosphere. Success depends entirely on the preparation for the flight—and on the size of the airship you employ for a given journey.

"You cannot take a little ship and fly it across the North Pole with much chance of success," he declared. "The Norge was just lucky enough to make it. But a great ship like the Los Angeles or the Shenandoah could have gone from Spitzbergen to Nome and back four times over without the slightest chance of failure."

CONDEMNS HOSPITAL FOR FEDERAL INSANE

McCarl Tells Congress 3,900 Washington Patients Suffer Unhealthy Conditions.

MANY THERE ILLEGALLY

Overcrowding, Fire Hazards, Inadequate Attention and Other Defects Pointed Out.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Conditions at the local Government Hospital for the Insane, better known as St. Elizabeth's, where the Federal Government is ward of 3,900 mental patients, were severely criticized in a report to the House today by Controller General McCarl, submitting the result of a three-months' investigation ordered by Congress last Winter.

Not only does it condemn the methods of committing patients, as well as conditions attributed to lack of facilities, overcrowding and fire hazards; it also asserts that many asylum patients should not be there under a strict construction of the law.

"The laws under which persons suffering from mental diseases are committed to the hospital," the report said, "are not adequate or sufficiently definite.

"Numerous patients are in the hospital who, under a strict construction of the laws pertaining thereto, do not seem to belong there.

"If the hospital's policy of making it a centre for the curative treatment and the study of mental diseases of all types is to be continued, that policy should be embodied in legislation.

"There is not afforded that opportunity to patients to consult with and to obtain the assistance, legal or otherwise, of financially disinterested persons, which, though undoubtedly difficult of practical attainment, would seem to be most desirable.

"There are too many patients in some of the wards, resulting in crowded and unhealthy conditions.

"Dining rooms, sitting rooms, toilet, bath and other facilities of some of the wards are quite inadequate and most unsatisfactory.

"The fire hazard in certain wards is too great and there does not appear to be sufficient fire fighting equipment or adequate fire fighting force."

NELSON PASSED OVER AS COMMITTEE HEAD

House Insurgents Are Perturbed by Failure of La Follette Man to Get Pensions Chairmanship.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—The House Committee on Committees today refused to recognize the right of Representative John M. Nelson of Wisconsin to the Chairmanship of the Committee on Invalid Pensions despite his eight years on it. Mr. Nelson managed the presidential campaign of the late Senator La Follette in 1924.

As a result of this decision, the Republican insurgents who were barred from positions of responsibility in the party organization a year ago fear that like medicine will be doled out to them in the new Congress, despite the pronouncement made at the beginning of the present session by Representative John Q. Tilson, the Republican leader, that they would be welcomed back to the fold.

The Pensions Chairmanship was given to Representative William I. Swope of Pennsylvania, who had served on the committee only three years and was jumped over the head of Mr. Nelson. It was said today that Mr. Tilson and other party leaders favored Mr. Nelson but that opposition was interposed by Representative James T. Begg of Ohio, the right hand man of Speaker Longworth.

WANT RIVERA MADE PRINCE.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Dec. 16.—At a banquet to Primo de Rivera today Spanish-Americans requested that the King grant to the Premier the title of Prince of the Riff. Two hundred natives from Spanish-speaking countries across the sea then gave Rivera one of the greatest ovations of his career.

Thanking his hosts for the idea the Premier asked them to keep it quiet until he disappeared politically or died.

"I have already received the highest honor a soldier can receive from the King, namely the Cross of San Fernando, and that is quite enough," he said.

Summarizing his régime Primo de Rivera said:

"We are not tyrants, despite what some say, but dictators who rule by force, which is natural considering the condition in which we found the country. I am willing to wager, however, that when our sons are enjoying the fruits of our labors they will not worry about holding us responsible for acts of especial harshness. We will go forward with the King, who is first a Spaniard and would be as good a citizen under a republic as he is a good monarch."

General de Rivera leaves to visit the Basque Provinces tomorrow to settle slight differences over increased taxes and expects to spend Christmas in the south with his family.

LLOYD GEORGE SCORED ON LIBERAL FUNDS

Attorney General Says He Has Bought the Party to Sell Its Support to Socialists.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—"Ex-Premier Lloyd George, with money obtained by the sale of honors in a way they were never sold before, has accumulated funds which he is using to buy the Liberal Party, in order that he may sell its support to the Socialists," stated Sir Douglas Hogg, the Attorney General, at a Conservative meeting tonight.

Whether or not Mr. Lloyd George intends to barter Liberal support to the Socialists, as Sir Douglas alleges, it is clear that after a struggle lasting ten years he has at last secured control of the Liberal Party machine. This was acknowledged today even by his opponents.

The next step in the quarrel over the Liberal Party funds will not be taken until January, when it will probably be necessary for the Liberal leaders, who have resolved to accept the ex-Premier's offer of financial assistance, to dissolve the existing Organization Committee, in view of the decision of its present Chairman, Vivian Phillips, not to relinquish his position voluntarily.

While it is agreed that Mr. Lloyd George withdrew the conditions originally attached to the offer of his fund, the majority and minority of the Administrative Committee of the National Liberal Federation agree that an obligation of honor rests upon the majority to give full effect to the original conditions.

These demanded that the Lloyd George land and industrial inquiry campaign must be a first charge upon the fund and that the party headquarters must be removed from Abingdon Street to the offices of the National Liberal Federation, with one of the ex-Premier's own men as the organizing secretary instead of Mr. Phillips.

LONDON, Dec. 16 (AP).—It is suggested tonight that the successor to Vivian Phillips, the chief Asquithian organizer, would be Sir Herbert Samuel, who was the Chairman of the Coal Commission.

Sir Herbert has received the offer of the Chairmanship of the Electricity Board to carry out the Government's great electricity supply scheme, but he declined and gave as the reason his intention to return to political life early in the New Year.

As he has not been connected with the recent dissensions in the Liberal Party, it is thought, if he is willing to accept the Chairmanship of the party organization, that he might be successful in healing in a measure the party differences.

MRS. ELLIS NEAR END OF FIGHT FOR FUNDS

May Soon Get Part of Income of Chapman Estate She Won in 1922 at Age of 80.

She May Also Receive Additional Sum From New Accounting Suit Against Title Guarantee.

Mrs. Louise Ellis, who at the age of 80 won her legal battle in 1922 to prove her right to the income from the estate of George M. Chapman, but has since been deprived of $61,424 in the hands of her attorneys because of entanglements arising from the proceedings started in 1916, may have part of the money before Christmas. This announcement was made yesterday by Eugene A. Sherpick of her legal staff. The delivery of the cash depends on a decision before that time in a recent suit by former attorneys in which the Supreme Court was asked to decide how much is payable to Mrs. Ellis and how much to her various counsel, as well as to several persons to whom she has assigned shares of the money.

Mr. Sherpick expressed hopefulness of payment, and of the recovery for Mrs. Ellis of a large additional sum, as the result of a new accounting suit filed against the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, as trustees under the will of Mrs. Louisa Chapman, widow of the Brooklyn fur merchant, who died in 1887 leaving $1,000,000, largely in real estate. The money already paid over by the trust company to Mrs. Ellis's attorneys represents the sum due to 1924, when the trust company last accounted. The new suit demands a full accounting to date.

The Title Guarantee and Trust Company asked the Supreme Court yesterday for permission to resign as trustee, and to make an accounting, and for the instructions as to whom the money now in its hands is to be paid.

Mr. Sherpick said that the trust company had tried to stay the trial of the new accounting action, now being heard by Edward Q. Carr as referee, because of its intention to bring the action filed yesterday, but was directed by the courts to proceed with the accounting. Attorney Sherpick said it was hoped to get an order for the removal of the trust company as trustee, rather than to permit it to resign.

The complaint in the suit filed yesterday named as defendants Mrs. Ellis, the law firm of Medina, Sherpick & McKee and the firm of Davis, Symmes & Schreiber, in addition to others who may have an interest in the funds. The trust company said that it now held $57,155 of income and $2,400 of principal payable to some one, and asked that its resignation be permitted because of the controversies between it and Mrs. Ellis. The complaint also said that Mrs. Ellis made many assignments of shares in the money in the last ten years, and that she has notified it that some are not valid, for which reason the trust company cannot safely make payments without a court order.

The suit in which a decision as to the division of the $61,424 already in the hands of Mrs. Ellis's attorneys is expected was brought last March by the law firm of Davis, Symmes & Schreiber, in which it was alleged that the original retainer with the firm was for a 50 per cent. share in the money received by Mrs. Ellis, but later when Mrs. Ellis asked that Mr. Sherpick's firm be substituted, the share reduced to an eighth, but the retainer of the present attorneys calls for half. Decision was reserved when the case was tried recently.

TO SIFT CONFESSION OF EXECUTED CONVICT

Prosecutor Will Open Inquiry Today on Affidavit Clearing Prisoner of Burglary.

District Attorney Charles J. Dodd of Brooklyn will start an investigation today of the contention that Victor Patterson, 22 years old, is innocent of a burglary for which he was recently sentenced to fifteen years in Sing Sing Prison, where John Maxwell made an affidavit a few days before his execution for murder, saying he was guilty of the crime charged to Patterson. The authorities believed yesterday that if this inquiry did not establish Patterson's innocence his only hope of freedom rested upon the possibility of executive clemency.

All the witnesses who figured in his trial have been subpoenaed to appear before the prosecutor. The affidavit by the executed man is valueless as direct evidence for possible court action, because there was no opportunity to question Maxwell regarding his admission and he had directed that his affidavit be withheld from the authorities until after his death.

One other method of procedure was suggested to the prosecutor by Howard Nash, who was attorney for Patterson at his trial. He asked Mr. Dodd to join in a stipulation, to be filed with the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, if it may seem proper by the court, agreeing that the conviction of Patterson be reversed and the indictment be dismissed. An appeal from the conviction was formally filed with that court after Patterson's sentence and is pending.

Mr. Nash said in his letter to the District Attorney that he had been authorized by Judge Franklin Taylor, who presided at the trial of Patterson, to say that Judge Taylor would approve such a course of procedure. The District Attorney said he would not consider this feature of the case until he had concluded his own inquiry.

BILLS IN HALL CASE NOW TOTAL $35,000

This Is for Month's Service of Court Stenographer—Hearing on Costs May Be Held Tuesday.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 16.—Some of the bills incurred by Senator Alexander Simpson as special prosecutor in the Hall-Mills case were presented by him today to Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker, who presided at the trial. The expenditures total $18,470.28, bringing the amount thus far requested to about $35,000.

Senator Simpson pointed out that he had not charged for his own services, and that Jersey City had put in no claim for the work done by Jersey City police officers investigating the case.

The heaviest of the more than twenty items presented today was that of John J. Dongler, court stenographer during the trial of Mrs. Frances Hall and her brothers, Henry and William Stevens, on indictments charging them with the murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills. The trial lasted a month. Dengler's bill is $11,000.

The estate of the late Charles Waite, a pistol expert of New York City, put in a bill for $4,600 for Mr. Waite's services to the State; Joseph A. Faurot, finger-print expert for the New York City Police Department, a witness for the State, $3,400; Edward H. Schwartz of Newark, finger-print expert, $2,600; T. Chaplin Beat of Newark, criminal and civil investigator, $1,872.90; William Viola of Somerville, where the trial was held, $1,496.10 for meals for the Jersey City Police for two months and for four months' room rent; Dr. W. J. Arlitz of Hoboken, for examining Mrs. Jane Gibson in the Somerville Hospital prior to her removal to the City Hospital in Jersey City, $100.

Albert Edel, a chemist of Newark, put in a bill for $450. John C. Bowman of New Brunswick asked $100 for services during the exhumation of the body of Mrs. Mills. Photographers put in bills for sums ranging from $300 to $1,000 for taking pictures of scenes and objects for the State.

Sheriff John A. Grant of Ocean County, in which Henry Stevens lives, put in a bill for $1,746.78, of which $1,390.34 was for "keeping Henry Stevens under surveillance." The remainder of the $18,470.28 was for stenographers and handwriting experts.

Senator Clarence E. Case of Somerset County, counsel for the defense in the trial, will protest, it is understood, various items. His protest would be made as counsel for Somerset County. No date has been set by Justice Parker for argument on the protest.

Special to The New York Times.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 16.—The total of bills in the Hall-Mills investigation and trial will not be more than $35,000, according to opinion of the Board of Chosen Freeholders. It was the understanding of George R. Layton, President, that Justice Parker would give the Freeholders opportunity to be heard on the bills next Tuesday, when the Justice will be here for the drawing of the December term of the Grand Jury.

ACCOUNTANTS FOR CONTROL

Favor Legislation for Regulation by Board of Regents.

Approval of proposed legislation for the regulation and supervision of public accountants of the State was given at a meeting of the Accountants' Association of New York, at the Waldorf last night. At present the State Board of Regents may examine and give degrees to applicants as Certified Public Accountants, but the Regents have no control over practice of accountants or power to punish or to revoke the examining degree for any offenses committed by a holder.

The Board of Governors of the Association, which is the chief organization of about 3,000 public accountants throughout the State, is preparing a legislative bill designed to accord this supervising power to the Regents. It would require all who engage in the work of public accountancy to be examined and to be a holder of a certificate issued by the Board of Regents.

Assemblymen Phelps Phelps and Walter S. Gedney of Nyack, spoke in favor of it. M. H. Gotthilf, a former President of the Association, said the proposed legislation was intended as a protection for financial institutions, business and the public generally, against false financial statements.

A new $150,000 synagogue with a seating capacity of more than 1,100, with Moorish structural features and twin towers, is projected in plans filed yesterday with Building Inspector John Burden of Mount Vernon by Louis Levine, architect, for the congregation of the Brothers of Israel of that city. DIAZ AGAIN CHARGES MEXICAN AGGRESSION

Rival President in Nicaragua Orders Customs Collector to Turn Over Funds.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 16 (AP).—President Adolfo Diaz's message to Congress, which convened yesterday, reiterates his charges that Mexico is interfering in the domestic problems of Nicaragua caused by the setting up of a Liberal Government at Puerto Cabezas under former Vice President Sacasa as "Constitutional" President.

President Diaz's message deprecated strongly Mexico's alleged interference and aggression, which, he said, were unexplainable. Although Mexico was twenty times larger than Nicaragua, the President said, his Government would resist any encroachment on its sovereignty.

General Emiliano Chamorro, who recently resigned the Presidency of the Conservative Government at Managua being succeeded by President Diaz, left today for Panama, whence he will sail to Europe to take up his new work as Nicaraguan Minister to Great Britain, France, Italy and Spain. The General and President Diaz were guests at a dinner party last night.

CLEARED OF FIRING BARN.

C. W. Walters Freed After Testifying Blaze Was Accidental.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Dec. 16.—Charles W. Walters of Rockville Centre, who has been on trial here for two days charged with setting fire to his father's barn on Main Avenue, Rockville Centre, on the night of June 25, was acquitted in the County Court here tonight after the jury had deliberated about one hour.

Walters had been a member of the Eureka Hook and Ladder and Company of Rockville Centre. Police Captain Tryce Bacon of Rockville Centre and Frank V. Copper of the National Board of Fire Underwriters testified that Walters had signed a statement on Aug. 19 saying he had found gasoline in the barn and had then lighted a match. Walters testified today he had signed the statement because Bacon and Cooper said that they would not believe his first explanation and that if he would sign the statement they would let up on him.

He testified that he had gone into the barn, drawn some gasoline from a car to put into his own car and that while squeezing through a space between a truck and the wall a lantern he was carrying had set fire to the gasoline.

MRS. DORIAN EXONERATED.

Wins in a Divorce Suit After Pleading Unattractiveness.

Mrs. Cora M. Dorian of the Hotel Commodore was exonerated by a jury in Justice William F. Hagarty's part of the Brooklyn Supreme Court last evening on a charge made in the divorce suit by her husband, Dr. John S. Dorian, 131 Remsen Street, Brooklyn. The jury returned its verdict after three hours' deliberation.

The physician charged that he and several friends had found his wife in an apartment at 271 West Seventy-third Street, Manhattan, on July 16, with an unnamed corespondent. Mrs. Dorian denied misconduct, and said she had not seen the man mentioned by her husband before or since that incident. She further charged that the divorce action was a "frame-up and a conspiracy" and that her husband's complaint could not be true, because she considered herself "too old and unattractive" to be of interest to any man. She is 50 years old and a plump, motherly appearing woman.

This defense was emphasized by Mrs. Dorian's attorney, Isaac Jacobson, who directed the attention of the jury to her and said: "This woman would appeal to no man."

DIG UP JERUSALEM WALLS.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JERUSALEM, Dec. 16.—The excavations undertaken by the Hebrew University and the Jewish Archaeological Society under the supervision of Dr. Sukenik continued during the past few days along the course of the third wall of the City of Jerusalem.

Discoveries at a point a few yards west of Herod's Gate in the present north wall of Jerusalem justified the expectations that the third wall, which turned south near the buildings of the American School of Archaeology, still continued south of that place, as the foundations of a wall of the same type and size as those previously found have been uncovered under the present wall.

Experts now suggest that the third wall went from a point opposite the tomb of Queen Helena of Adiabene along the side of the valley as far as the temple area. The corner tower mentioned by Josephus has been identified with the Herodian tower foundations, visible at the northeast corner of the temple area, near the Pool of Bethesda.

SKIDMORE RAISES $400,000.

College Announces Completion of Drive for Endowment Fund.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Dec. 16 (AP).—Successful completion of a campaign to add $400,000 to its endowment fund was announced today at a mass meeting of students of Skidmore College. The final $75,000 was raised in a six-weeks' whirlwind drive by trustees, faculty and students. Other contributions included $100,000 from the General Education Board and $225,000 from earlier efforts mostly centred in this city.

The campaign was completed six months earlier than the time limit set by the Education Board.

More Police Headquarters Guards.

Patrolmen will guard the main corridor at Police Headquarters from 4 o'clock in the afternoon until 8 in the morning as a precaution against interference with prisoners, it was announced yesterday by Commissioner McLaughlin. The new beat is about sixty feet long. Visitors who have passed the lieutenant's desk at the door will be questioned as to their business by the patrolman on duty as a double check against undesirables entering the building.

I have found your Lucky Strike Cigarettes very agreeable. They do not hurt my throat in the least and are very soothing to my voice.

J. Caillaux

When Caillaux Speaks, the World Listens

His clear voice is inspiring, his throat ever in perfect condition

As one of the outstanding public men in France, Joseph Caillaux depends upon the power of oratory in advocating his ideas and in swaying his colleagues. To safeguard his voice is his constant aim. His favorite among cigarettes is Lucky Strikes, both for finer flavor and throat protection.

Lucky Strikes have become the favorites of men whose priceless voices thrill their audiences, as they have with the millions because, first, they afford greater enjoyment and second, they are certain not to irritate even the most sensitive throat.

The world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged, perfectly blended, give them their richer flavor.

But in addition, a costly extra process—toasting for 45 minutes—develops the hidden flavors of the choicest tobaccos and at the same time removes all "bite" and harshness.

Smoke Lucky Strikes. They give added pleasure—you'll like them.

DENIES HE PROMISED CURE OF DRUG HABIT

Horovitz's Office Explains That Narcosan Is Not Intended to End Addiction.

PRODUCT IS NOT ON SALE

Laboratory Says Further Tests Will Be Made Before It Goes on Market.

Alexander S. Horovitz, the biochemist who perfected the narcosan treatment, never has asserted that the substance is a cure for drug addiction, it was said yesterday at his office at the Lipoidal Laboratories, Inc., at 67 Fulton Street.

Requests for information as to the treatment, its cost and where it could be obtained continued to be received in large numbers at the Department of Correction.

One appeal was telegraphed from Oklahoma.

Narcosan is not on the market or being manufactured commercially, according to a statement at the Lipoidal Laboratories. It is expected that it eventually will be sold but not until after further tests have been made. It was said it probably would be handled like insulin.

Deny Critic Used Treatment.

According to officials of the laboratory, Dr. W. T. Lindsay, jail physician at the Hamilton County jail in Cincinnati, who said narcosan failed there, had no official connection with the narcosan treatments administered there in 1921 to 150 inmates. They were in charge of Dr. Frank M. Burns, a Federal physician, it was said, who officially reported the excellent results obtained in the New York Medical Journal and Record of Jan. 29, 1921. They also were recorded in the Ohio Medical Journal, it was said.

Statements that ten cases had been treated in the Booth Memorial Hospital, conducted by the Salvation Army, and that a number of the patients afterward suffered relapses, also were denied. It was said that only six cases were treated there, several of them women, that the treatments were not experimental but given in an effort "to help the poor devils." The treatments were beneficial in each instance, it was declared.

Narcosan, it was said at the laboratories, was similar to lipoigen, a product manufactured by a Cincinnati chemical firm with which Mr. Horovitz had once been associated, but it contained refinements and improvements not incorporated in the original substance.

Offered Medicine Two Years Ago.

Dr. Walter Conley, Medical Superintendent of the Department of Welfare, said that Mr. Horovitz went to Commissioner Bird S. Coler with his narcosan treatment two years ago. Commissioner Coler sent him to Dr. Conley, who said he refused to administer it to patients in city institutions because Mr. Horovitz declined to tell what its ingredients were.

"I told Mr. Horovitz to protect himself but to give me the information," said Dr. Conley. "When he refused I told him it would be unethical for me to administer drugs to city patients when I was unaware of their nature."

Dr. Conley denied a report that some of the patients treated at hospitals of the Department of Correction on Welfare Island had been removed to institutions under his charge where they died.

DEFICIT BRINGS CHURCH ROW

Criticism of Finances Preceded Resignations in Dr. Moor's Flock.

Investigation of the discord in the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, at Madison Avenue and Thirty-first Street, which led to the resignation of seven trustees last Monday night, revealed yesterday that the New York Trust Company holds notes for a loan of $4,000 to the church, and that the inability of the church to pay its running expenses was one of the factors in the break.

Two years ago the church faced a debt of $6,500, which was partly cleared through personal contributions by the trustees. Last year the congregation's contributions did not meet the expenses and money was borrowed to meet the deficit. From March to Dec. 13 of this year the congregation contributed about $3,800 and the trustees made personal contributions of $4,500 to cover the deficit. A letter from the trust company, read at Monday night's meeting, indicated that the church must put its financial affairs on a sounder basis.

Immediately after the reading of the trustees' report on Monday night the congregation voted to table it. The seven trustees who resigned are still technically connected with the church, since the congregation took no action on their resignations or their report.

The church has an income of about $16,000 yearly from a trust fund of $300,000 administered by the New York Trust Company. Dr. George Caleb Moor, pastor of the church, receives an annual salary of $10,000, but returns $1,000 to the church every year.

ORDAINS TWO AS PRIESTS.

Bishop Manning Makes Third Man a Deacon at Same Ceremony.

Bishop William T. Manning advanced two deacons to the priesthood and ordained one young man as a deacon yesterday. The ceremony took place in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

One of the deacons who became a priest was Asa Stanley Goodrich of Chester, N. Y., chaplain for institutional work in the Archdeacony of Ramapo of the Episcopal Diocese of New York. The other was Samuel Williams Briscoe of Valley Cottage, N. Y., Episcopal missionary at Mount Ivy and St. Andrew's, Willow Grove, Orange County, N. Y.

The candidate ordained as a deacon was Frank Slade Danzoll, who will be an assistant at St. Michael's Church, Ninety-ninth Street and Amsterdam Avenue. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Milo Hudson Gates, Vicar of the Episcopal Chapel of the Intercession, Trinity parish.

HARRIS ADVOCATES SHORT SCHOOL DAY

Young Pupils Need More Play Outdoors, Commissioner Tells Portia Club.

UPHOLDS HOUSING PROGRAM

Infant Mortality as High as 200 a Thousand in Congested Districts, He Says.

Health Commissioner Harris came out flatly yesterday for "shorter working hours and less overtime" for school children in the lower public school grades. He told members of the Portia Club in the Hotel Astor that the present school day for the younger children was too long, that the confinement was detrimental to health, that the assignment of home work was overdone in many instances and that some revision of primary grade schedules was necessary.

"It is my firm conviction," said Dr. Harris, "that hours of study for the younger children are excessive. I do not mean to cast any reflections on New York's splendid public school system, nor has my objection any pedagogical basis. I express my belief on medical grounds only. I feel strongly, however, that there ought to be more time for supervised outdoor work or play instead of long hours in the class room.

"There is almost the same nervous tension, the same rush through breakfast to get to school on time among our school children as among our business men. And the overtime work—home work—is becoming more and more of a burden on our little children. In many instances it is given merely for disciplinary reasons. I believe home work which includes parrot-like repetition is not essential and could far better be accomplished, in much less time, by the teacher in the class room."

Favors Housing Program.

The Commissioner touched on a wide range of topics in his talk. He was emphatic in support of Governor Smith's housing program, saying better housing conditions in New York would lessen both death and disease.

"I sincerely hope this housing enterprise will succeed," he said, "and that there may be separation of children's sleeping quarters so that one child with a cold or whooping cough or measles can be segregated from his brothers and sisters. Many casualties from communicable diseases could have been prevented, I know, had there been an adequate housing program in the past.

"Let us not make the mistake of thinking there is no housing problem. I pass many places on my official rounds that shock me. At First Avenue and Ninety-ninth Street, for example, the number of persons who live in basements or crowded in dark bedrooms is staggering. There are districts in this city where, by virtue of improper housing, or bad economic conditions, or ignorance, the death rate among babies is tremendous."

Dr. Harris added that although the infant mortality rate for New York was sixty-five a thousand in 1925, in some congested districts it was as high as 200 a thousand.

Defends Milk Supply.

Dr. Harris next referred to the milk situation, renewing his protest against the charges made by Ogden L. Mills in his campaign for the Governorship.

"Considering that we get 3,600,000 quarts of milk a day," he said, "conditions in New York are remarkably good. Compared with other communities throughout the country, this city has a milk supply of enviable quality. That does not mean that an ideal state has been achieved. There are some violations, and they must be dealt with."

Dr. Harris criticized the imposition of small fines for convicted individuals and said that fines should be "exemplary, prohibitive and truly punitive." In conclusion he pleaded for an adequate appropriation for the Health Department, saying, "Public health cannot be purchased at bargain-counter prices."

FREED IN FIGHT OVER DOGS.

Court Holds Man May Lose Temper When His Pet Is Bested.

Judge Baker in the Queens County Court decided yesterday that a man could not be held responsible for losing his temper when he saw his favorite dog being bested in a fight and dismissed an indictment against Frank McIntyre, charging second degree assault.

McIntyre lives at 201 Pearsall Street, Blissville. In the rear of his house lives John Stanklewicz. Both own dogs. On April 5 last the dogs got into a long fight and McIntyre's dog lost. Stanklewicz charged that McIntyre then set upon him and beat him. He also declared that six shots were fired at him by his assailant, none of which took effect.

Judge Baker decided the evidence against McIntyre was not credible enough to go to the jury.

RYAN'S CREDITORS TO GET LAST DOLES

END OF STUTZ STOCK DEAL

Guaranty Trust to Receive $7,816 for $4,202,495 and Knox Hat Company One Cent.

Marking the finale in the career of high finance of Allan A. Ryan, Thomas Fortune Ryan's son, who in 1920 cornered the market in Stutz Motor stock and sent the price to $700 a share, the curtain has been rung down on one of the most spectacular failures that Wall Street has ever known. The bankruptcy of Mr. Ryan has been ended by an order for settlement of unsecured claims amounting to $8,955,345, the settlement terms being about 186/1000th of a cent on the dollar, or about 18 cents for each $100. The order was issued by Peter B. Olney Jr., referee in bankruptcy, of 7 Dey Street.

Francis G. Caffey, receiver for Mr. Ryan, said this action represented the distribution of a dividend among thirty-one creditors who had proved their claims. There is approximately $16,657 available for this distribution, Mr. Caffey said.

The heaviest claims are those of the Guaranty Trust Company, $4,202,495, for which it receives $7,816; the Chase National Bank, two claims, one of $2,068,830, for which it receives $3,848, and one of $341,946, for which it receives $610; the Chase Securities Corporation, $152,834, for which it receives $284; the Mechanics and Metals National Bank, $973,343, for which it receives $1,810, and the Lawyers Title and Trust Company, $301,279, for which it receives $560.

Small claims are those of the Knox Hat Company for $7 and the Knickerbocker Ice Company for $5.23, each of which concerns will receive 1 cent under the settlement; the Equitable building Restaurant, Inc., $20.65, for which it receives 3 cents; the Catholic Club and Mercedes Manier, $33 and $35 respectively, each of which receives 6 cents, and the Chemists Club, $66, for which it receives 12 cents.

In addition to the above, other unsecured claims and amounts paid under the settlement terms were Charles M. Schwab, $339,210, paid $630; Harry Payne Whitney and Elizabeth F. Sinclair, $188,733 apiece, paid $351 each; Empire Trust Company, $123,010, paid $229; Samuel Untermyer, $5,000, paid $83.70; Harry Content, $16,575, paid $30.83; Griffiths, Sarfaty & Content, $5,000, paid $9.30; Canterbury School, Inc., $3,188, paid $5.93; Brooks Brothers, $1,095, paid $2.04; John W. Hart, $922, paid $1.71; Edwin V. Morrison, $680, paid $1.26; Bonwit, Teller & Co., $540, paid $1; Burns Brothers, $479, paid 89 cents; Lord & Taylor, $429, paid 79 cents; William H. Plummer & Co., Ltd., $247, paid 45 cents; H. M. Imboden, $150, paid 27 cents; Arnold Constable & Co., $137, paid 26 cents; H. Joseph & Co., $115, paid 21 cents, and A. de Pinna Company, $114, paid 21 cents.

Mr. Ryan filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in July, 1922, and was discharged from bankruptcy in the following December. His liabilities were listed at $32,435,477. He is now in business at 111 Broadway.

MASONS HERE TO HAVE THEIR OWN GOLF LINKS

Members in Metropolitan District Arrange for Club at Briarcliff Manor.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 16.—Masons in the metropolitan Masonic district which takes in Kings, Queens, Richmond, Staten Island, the Bronx, Manhattan and Westchester County, have decided to form the Metropolitan Masonic Golf and Country Club. To make final arrangements, a dinner will be given at the Briarcliff Lodge tomorrow night when the incorporation papers will be signed.

Arrangements have been completed to take over the country house of Henry H. Law, at Briarcliff Manor for a club house. This property adjoins the links of the Briarcliff Country Club and until the new organization can lay out its own course, it will have the use of the Briarcliff links.

The cost of initiation in the new club will be small and will enable many Masons in New York City and adjacent territory to have a golf club of their own. The committee which arranged the dinner is headed by Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins, Past Grand Master of the Masonic Lodge of the State, and includes County Clerk Charles J. F. Decker of Croton Falls, George H. Porter of Manhattan, Frank J. Briggs of Tarrytown and Chauncey Depew Steele of Briarcliff Manor.

INSANITY IS PLEA FOR MRS. CAGNINO

Threats of His Slayer to Kill Her Caused Her to Carry Pistol, Counsel Declares.

Mrs. Josephine Cagnino, on trial before Judge Max S. Levine and a jury in General Sessions for the murder on Sept. 5 of Andrew Ficarelli, opened yesterday, through her attorney, Assemblyman Frank R. Galgano, a two-edged defense, by which she will seek to show that not only was she emotionally insane at the time she shot Ficarelli, but that she even felt she had to shoot to save her own life because Ficarelli had made a motion as if to draw a weapon when he saw her that day at Goerck and Delancey Streets.

Throughout Mr. Galgano's opening address to the jury, and during subsequent testimony by defense witnesses, Mrs. Cagnino, her drab shawl still covering her head and shoulders and partially concealing her face, rocked to and fro, sobbing now and then and frequently shaking her head in a manner expressive of helpless agony. Spectators in the crowded court room seemed fascinated by her movements and stared at her ceaselessly moving figure rather than at the witnesses who were trying to establish her innocence.

Mr. Galgano described to the jury a highly emotional, deeply affectionate mother whose mind had become unbalanced as a result of the alleged murder of her only son, Ignazio, by Ficarelli six years before. He said Mrs. Cagnino told her story of her son's murder to the Grand Jury that indicted Ficarelli, and had endeavored to aid the police in arresting Ficarelli, whom she had seen frequently following his indictment. He said that Ficarelli taunted her and once had threatened her with death if she told the police of his whereabouts. It was after this death threat, according to her counsel, that she took from a trunk a pistol she had brought here from Italy and carried it with her, expecting Ficarelli to attempt to carry out his threat.

To show that Mrs. Cagnino had become emotionally insane, Mr. Galgano said he would prove by witnesses that she had not wanted to attend the wedding of her daughter more than three years ago and that at the wedding she had sat in a corner in the mourning garb she has worn since her son's death.

He told the jury he would establish further that Mrs. Cagnino had fasted several days a week, had spent whole days in church frequently, had wept and moaned almost constantly and had slept on a bare floor with a brick as her only pillow.

Mr. Galgano said that when Ficarelli and Mrs. Cagnino met on Sept. 5, Ficarelli carried an umbrella which he shifted to his other hand and then reached toward his hip pocket. After that, he concluded, Mrs. Cagnino could recall nothing.

The last witness for the prosecution yesterday was Detective Joseph Digillo of Police Headquarters who admitted Mrs. Cagnino had told him of many places where she thought he might find Ficarelli and had tried to help find him.

Mrs. Rose Graspo of 1 Corlears Street, daughter of Mrs. Cagnino, testified that since the murder of her son Mrs. Cagnino frequently had torn her own hair and for seven months had refused to comb it. The mother had prayed almost unceasingly, Mrs. Graspo said, had fasted every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday for a year after her son's death and had lighted candles to St. Joseph and slept on the bare kitchen floor, her head on a brick. Her husband corroborated her testimony.

Thomas Charters, a stenographer for District Attorney Banton, testified to Mrs. Cagnino's declaration that she could not remember the shooting, after her arrest for the murder of Ficarelli.

The trial will be resumed Monday morning.

DEMOCRATS TOLD OHIO IS 1928 BATTLEFIELD

Gov. Donahey's Campaign Manager Among Guests of Honor at Davey's Dinner.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP).—A battle cry to Democracy to unite for the Presidential campaign of 1928 was sounded here tonight at a dinner tendered the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee and Thomas E. Dye, Democratic State Chairman of Ohio.

The host, Representative Martin L. Davey, an Ohio Democrat, portrayed Ohio as an open battle ground for the campaign two years from now and asserted that under certain conditions it could be won by the Democrats. He cautioned, however, that he was referring to "no particular candidate" and denied the dinner was given to launch a boom for Governor Vic Donahey of Ohio. The name of no possible nominee was mentioned in any of the speeches.

Mr. Dye, manager of Governor Donahey's successful campaign for a third term, asserted there was "no room in this country for two so-called conservative parties," and urged Democratic chieftains to take the lead in a "constructive campaign of education," as the press of today "is either bitterly partisan Republican or independent, or filled with capitalistic propaganda."

Representative Oldfield of Arkansas, the Democratic whip, endorsed Mr. Dye's remarks that there was no room for two conservative parties, while Representative Garrett of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, reiterated his statement that he would do all in his power to get the $335,000,000 Democratic tax reduction bill before the House.

CHAPLIN DIVORCE SUIT IS EXPECTED SPEEDILY

Wife's Lawyer Says Attempts to Obtain a Settlement Out of Court Have Failed.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 16 (AP).—A divorce court airing for the Chaplin marital troubles was promised today with the announcement by Lita Grey Chaplin, through her attorney, George Beebe, that she would file suit against the screen comedian within a few days.

Beebe said he was preparing the petition and that it might be ready tomorrow. He would not say on what grounds the divorce would be asked or what sum would be proposed as a property settlement.

"All attempts to settle out of court the estrangement between Chaplin and Miss Grey have failed," he said. "The only thing left for us is to file a suit for divorce."

Lloyd Wright, Chaplin's attorney, said the comedian's decision whether to file a cross-complaint would depend wholly upon the allegations set forth in the wife's suit.

Mrs. Chaplin reiterated her determination to obtain custody of the two children, Charles Spencer Jr. and Sydney Earle, both under two years. Statements by Beebe at several stages of the negotiations between himself and Wright said that his client would demand that she be provided with the means to continue living in the "manner to which she was accustomed."

TESTIFY ON RUDNER IN CANTON MURDER

WOMAN AIDS PROSECUTION

Peggy Cavanaugh Supports Other Testimony Against the Alleged "Pay-Off" Man.

CANTON, Ohio, Dec. 16 (AP).—The State today strengthened the chain of evidence by which it seeks to bind together Patrick E. McDermott and Ben Rudner, alleged conspirators against Don R. Mellett, slain Canton publisher, as testimony in McDermott's trial for the murder proceeded.

Prosecutor C. B. McLintock today presented a series of incriminating circumstances concerning the two, with the aid of witnesses who told of alleged visits McDermott made to Rudner and of an alleged exchange of telephone and telegraph messages between them soon after the murder. Several witnesses identified McDermott as the principal man in incidents which the State has linked with the slaying.

Peggy Cavanaugh, a State's witness held in the Stark County Workhouse under $50,000 bond for more than three months, testified today regarding an alleged telephone conversation between McDermott and Rudner previously supported by other witnesses.

Through this testimony the State brought out that following receipt of a telegram addressed to "Charles Thompson" from "R. L. Strang" at Massillon, a man identified a McDermott obeyed the injunction of the message to "return to the home office" the day after the murder; that McDermott, following a telephone call to Massillon from Akron, which was traced to Rudner's store, went there and emerged with a $10 bill, and that on July 21 a telephone call was made from McDermott's rooming house in Cleveland to Rudner's telephone number.

Other links in the evidence were presented by Charles Gaston, circulation manager of the Canton Daily News, the paper of which Mr. Mellett was publisher, and Miss Doris Newman, Secretary to Mr. Mellett. Mr. Gaston said that McDermott slouched into the News Building the day before the murder and asked for Mellett and that he stood for "half a minute" before a big window and looked at the publisher.

Miss Newman said Louis Mazer, the third of the trio indicted for the murder, called at Mr. Mellett's office last February and that she heard loud remarks after the door had closed. Every day for a week after that, she said, she saw Mazer sitting in a parked automobile in front of the building adjoining the News office.

ACTS IN S. H. POMEROY SUIT.

Court Directs Examination of Witnesses in Incompetency Action.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 16.—Supreme Court Jutice Arthur S. Tompkins signed an order at White Plains today directing that a commission examine ten witnesses in Florida in reference to the mental condition of Silas Harris Pomeroy, steel manufacturer of New York City and a resident of New Rochelle.

The proceedings to declare Mr. Pomercy, who is more than 70 years old, incompetent to manage his large estate was brought by his wife. Mr. Pomeroy is now living in St. Petersburg, Fla., and the order directs that the testimony of Dr. J. Wyllis Hasler, personal physician of Mr. Pomeroy, and nine other witnesses, including his Southern neighbors, be questioned as to his mentality and his actions.

The testimony from these witnesses, under Justice Tompkins's order will be read to a Sheriff's jury which will be presided over by three Commissioners in Lunacy.

Counsel for Mr. Pomeroy objected to the commission and also asked for a stay of the proceedings. Justice Tompkins told the counsel to apply to the Appellate Division for the stay.

BOOTLEGGERS OFFER TO SHOE POOR CHILDREN

Proposal of Six in River Rouge, Mich., Is Not Entirely Approved by Pastors.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Dec. 16.—River Rouge bootleggers want to give the children of the Rouge a merry Christmas by buying shoes and rubbers for every child in town who needs them.

Whatever taint may exist in charity from such a source may be removed, and the gifts made spiritual by the fact that pastors of the churches at the Rouge have been requested to prepare the list of needy children.

Six bootleggers today entered the office of Jack Russ, Chairman of the Committee on Charity of the River Rouge Business Men's Association, and each put $100 on Russ's desk.

The business of the six men is well known, as they are considered among the heaviest operators in contraband.

"Russ, we figured it out we'd like to do something as a group," said one. "Other years we've done a little at Christmas individually and anonymously. We want to do more."

The unanimity of the donors was not matched by the Rouge clergymen as to whether the money should be accepted. There was only one positive "yes." There was a flat-footed refusal by one minister to prepare a list and others said that if they did they wanted it understood that it could not restrain them in their avowed enmity to the entire liquor traffic.

HE BIT THE DOG.

Brooklyn Man Gets Suspended Sentence on a Charge of Cruelty.

Louis Riccio, 52 years old, of 93 Second Place, Brooklyn, entered these columns—as well as the Fifth Avenue Court—because he bit a dog. The first case followed the tradition that when a dog bites a man there is little to it, but when the reverse happens it is worthy of print. The second case was at the request of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Riccio was charged yesterday by Agent Warren Kishbough of the society with having bitten off the tails of puppies in a laudable but misguided attempt to beautify them. Magistrate James Golden asked whether hunger had anything to do with it. It had not, Riccio informed the court, and added in a surprised voice that he was not aware that this method of "improving" dogs had gone out of style. The Magistrate suspended sentence.

SALAMANDERS' GLARE CAUSE FALSE ALARM

Charcoal Heaters Used in New Building to Keep Pipes Warm Give Startling Red Light.

A red glare on the twenty-first and higher floors of the new thirty-one-story apartment hotel, Park-Central Apartments, Seventh Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, late yesterday afternoon, so startled persons in the street that one turned in an alarm of fire. He was convinced that the building was on fire despite the assertion of the Park Central Realty Corporation that the building was as nearly fireproof as it is possible to make a structure of steel, brick and mortar.

In response to the alarm, fire apparatus rumbled up and firemen quickly prepared to run lines of hose into the building. But representatives of Harry A. Lanzner, head of the building company, ran out and explained that the fire alarm was a mistake.

There was a glow on the twenty-first and other floors above because salamanders had been lighted to keep water pipes from freezing. Although steam heat had been turned on in other parts of the building salamanders had to be used on the upper stories because the glaziers had not enclosed the building above that height. Two watchmen were stationed at every battery of salamanders to make sure that sparks from the open charcoal heaters did not start a fire.

ELECTION BOARD ARRESTED.

Fraud in November Charged Against 5 Philadelphia Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16.—All five members of the election board of the Twenty-second Division of the Forty-fifth Ward were arrested today on warrants charging fraud, sworn out by the Committee of Seventy.

The warrants charge that the defendants "negligently and willfully failed to perform their duties as election officers and committed willful fraud" at the general election last Nov. 2.

The allegations are also that the return submitted by the board contained the names of voters who did not go to the polls and that fraudulent entries were made in the voters' lists.

The members of the board are Louis Lichendorf, Judge of Election; John J. Donohue and Frank Merchnek, inspectors, and Edward Vanderslice and Adam Belch, clerks.

Bail was accepted for their appearance at a hearing next Wednesday.

MARY SPAS FLEES PUBLICITY OF SUIT

Former "Cinderella Girl" of Browning Leaves Astoria Home With Mother.

HE DENOUNCES CHARGES

Calls Them 'Fabrication' and Says She Seeks 'Something for Nothing' —Uses Her Letters Against Her.

Mary Louise Spas, whom Edward W. Browning, wealthy realtor, once called his "Cinderella Girl," left her home at 29 Wilson Avenue, Astoria, L. I., yesterday with her mother for the country, apparently to escape the publicity which followed the announcement of her $500,000 damage suit against Browning, alleging assault.

Miss Spas was adopted by Browning last year when she said she was 16 years old, but the adoption was voided by the courts when it developed she was 21.

She is not employed, and her parents own the thirty-family apartment house in which they live. A woman who opened the door of their apartment less than an inch, and gave the information that Miss Spas and her mother had gone to the country to escape "notoriety," said she was the girl's sister.

No papers in the suit have yet been filed in Queens, but action has been formally started with service upon Browning of the summons and complaint last Saturday. The complaint will be filed soon by the plaintiff's attorney, Jeremiah O'Leary of 220 Broadway.

In her suit Miss Spas alleges that Browning attempted to attack her and threatened to kill her and himself if she revealed anything of this incident to District Attorney Newcombe of Queens County, who conducted an inquiry into the adoption.

District Attorney Newcombe revealed yesterday that Abraham Sarasohn, Mr. Browning's counsel, had visited him to examine the record of the incident in the Kew Gardens Inn, cited in Miss Spas's complaint. The District Attorney said he refused permission for this.

"The investigation by my office is officially closed," he said. "The papers containing the findings will not be given to either side unless I am directed to do so by an order of court."

Mr. Browning repeated his determination to fight the suit to the limit at his office, 153 West Seventy-second Street, yesterday, and characterized the girl's allegations as a "fabrication" and her suit as an attempt "to get something for nothing." If the case ever comes to trial, he said, he would "clean it right up."

He showed a letter purporting to have been written by Miss Spas when she left him, in which she spoke of him as the "most honorable man on earth;" another to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Spas, and a letter from her father, written after the girl had returned to her home. He said he had many more such letters to prove that her charges were without foundation.

The separation action of Browning's young wife, Frances (Peaches) Heenan Browning, will be tried on Jan. 24 before Supreme Court Justice Morschauser at Carmel, N. Y.

RUM CACHED IN BASS DRUM.

Ship's Orchestra Member Fined When Guard Finds Liquor.

George Keyes, 21 years old, of Boston, Mass., who arrived Wednesday night on the Lamport and Holt liner Vestris, was stopped as he walked down Pier 8, Brooklyn, yesterday morning. Customs Guard James M. Walsh, on duty at the gate, insisted on investigating the large bass drum Keyes was carrying. He took off the head of the drum and found four bottles of Scotch whisky inside.

Keyes was taken to the Customs House where he told Assistant Solicitor Edward Barnes that somebody must have put the bottles there as a practical joke. He was fined $20. Walsh said his suspicions were aroused when he heard a deep boom from the drum, although nobody was beating it. Keyes was a member of the ship's orchestra.

REVEAL SALARIES PAID BY SESQUICENTENNIAL

Officials Accede to Controller's Demand—Show Total of $2,500,000.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16.—Retracting their refusal yesterday of Controller Hadley's demand for detailed operating figures of the Sesquicentennial, officials of the exposition today made public their hitherto closely guarded payroll.

Salaries aggregated $2,500,000 exclusive of construction wages. Twenty exposition executives received $10,000 a year each.

Exposition debts, totaling $4,859,773, were approved for payment by the city by unanimous vote of the Council today. At a recess the Finance Committee passed additional bills of $116,000. The ordinance authorizing city payment from a $5,000,000 loan was taken to the Mayor's office for his approval, but he did not have the time to sign it. The $5,000,000 loan will be sold Monday.

According to the records made public today, at one time more than 4,000 persons, including the police, were on the exposition payroll, which reached its peak during the weeks of July 10 and Aug. 14. In the first week salaries aggregated $151,544.17 and in the second $152,499.92.

Although the exposition was not officially opened until May 31, 1926, the salaries of some officials were in effect in the closing months of 1925. With no funds in the exposition treasury in March, 1926, salaries amounting to $11,205.43 were paid for the period from March 1, to March 15. R. H. Burnside, Supervisor of the pageant "Freedom" received $1,000 a week.

Colonel David C. Collier, the first director, received pay at the rate of $25,000 a year. Captain Asher Carter Baker, who succeeded him and who has since died, was paid on the basis of $15,000 annually. E. L. Austin, the present director, was paid at the rate of $10,000 annually.

GIRL SLAYER'S MIND TESTED

Mrs. Deninno Is Sent to Hospital at Counsel's Request.

In order to determine her mental condition before sentence is imposed, Mrs. Catherine Deninno, 18 years old, who on Nov. 13 shot and killed her alleged betrayer, Luigi Fino, at Bergen Avenue and 149th Street, the Bronx, was committed yesterday to the psychopathic ward in Bellevue Hospital. By order of County Judge James M. Barrett she will remain under observation for ten days.

Mrs. Deninno has pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the first degree and was to have been sentenced on Dec. 23. Miss Dorothy Frooks, her counsel, told Judge Barrett that she believed the girl was mentally unsound at the time she shot Fino. She asked that her client's mental condition be ascertained before sentence.

The petition of Miss Frooks was not opposed by District Attorney John E. McGeehan of the Bronx.

BREWSTER SELLS FILM MAGAZINES

George K. Shuler, Former State Treasurer, Heads New Corporation.

MARITAL LITIGATION ENDS

Satisfaction for $200,000 Judgment of Ex-Wife Against Former Corliss Palmer Announced.

The complex litigation involving Eugene V. Brewster, publisher of motion picture magazines; Mrs. Eleanor V. V. Brewster, and Corliss Palmer, who was married to Mr. Brewster last October on the day after Mr. Brewster had divorced the first Mrs. Brewster in Mexico, is ended, it was announced last night by counsel for Brewster's former wife.

This announcement followed the filing in the County Clerk's office yesterday of a satisfaction of the judgment of $200,000 obtained against Miss Palmer last May for alienation of Mr. Brewster's affections. At the same time it was learned that the group of magazines published by Mr. Brewster had been purchased by a new corporation headed by George K. Shuler, former State Treasurer, as President, Treasurer and publisher, and Duncan A. Dobie as Vice President and general manager. It was said by others in touch with the deal that the property had been transferred "to protect Mrs. Brewster's financial rights under the judgment."

Mrs. Brewster recently had asked that a receiver be appointed for Brewster's company, charging that the profits were being dissipated, and an accounting had been ordered. This proposal has now been dropped.

Included in the litigation disposed of was the suit filed last month by Mrs. Brewster against her former husband and his new wife for $200,000 in which the former wife charged that Brewster and Corliss Palmer had conspired to deprive her of her marital status, and attacked the validity of their marriage in Mexico.

The satisfaction piece filed yesterday was attested by Attorney Charles E. Hotchkiss of the firm of Davies, Auerbach & Cornell, attorneys for Mrs. Brewster. The attorneys intimately concerned with the pushing of the suit were A. H. Tuttle and Murray C. Bernays of the same firm. The filing of this document confirmed dispatches from Hollywood Wednesday saying that the judgment had been satisfied.

The Brewsters were married in 1916. The difficulties which separated them began soon after Miss Palmer won a beauty contest conducted by one of Brewster's publications and went to live in the Brewster home in Brooklyn. This was about the time a son was born to the Brewsters. Mrs. Brewster, in her testimony later, said she soon found herself the "third party" in her own home and had to leave to preserve her self-respect. After this separation Brewster provided a home for Miss Palmer at Morristown, N. J.

More recently Brewster and Miss Palmer have been living in Hollywood, Cal., where Miss Palmer was engaged in motion picture work. It was from Hollywood that they went to Mexico for Brewster's divorce and their marriage.

Mrs. Brewster's suit against Miss Palmer was brought in New York before Supreme Court Justice O'Malley, and was not defended.

The former Mrs. Brewster is living on Long Island, but could not be reached last night.

Formal announcement of the transfer of the stock of Brewster Publications, Inc., to the new corporation was made last night by Major Shuler and Mr. Dobie. Mr. Dobie was general manager of the magazines under Mr. Brewster. The announcement said that Brewster retained no interest whatsoever and that the change of management was complete. The chief magazines involved are the Motion Picture Magazine and Motion Picture Classic. The new company also buys copyrighted publishing titles to Shadowland Magazine, Movie Monthly and Beauty Magazine, and its officers intimated that these magazines might be revived. Adele Whitely Fletcher, Laurence Reid and Colin Cruikshank will remain as editors and art director, it was announced.

The new publishers declined to name the amount paid for the magazines or to give any other details of the purchase. Last month it was rumored that Brewster was about to sell his magazines for $250,000, but he denied he had any intention of selling.

PUT NEGRO SLAYERS BEYOND LYNCH LAW

Three Removed From Media Jail to Penitentiary in Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16.—A threat of lynching at Media, a Philadelphia suburb, ended today with the transfer to the Eastern Penitentiary here of three negro slayers against whom the Wednesday night mob menace was directed.

Manacled to State troopers and guarded by twelve others armed with carbines, the men were brought to the institution in a convoy of motor cars and locked in cells at Cherry Hill, two of them to await electrocution for the slaying of Walter (Bud) Harden, a Chester youth, last Summer, the third to await trial for the killing of eighteen-year-old Emily Collins of Linwood, near Chester, last week.

An investigation probably will be made of reports that the Ku Klux Klan, said to be strongly intrenched in Chester, Linwood and other communities in the county, may have been cognizant of the alleged plot to storm the jail at Media and lynch the colored slayers.

DOG-AND-CAT FIGHT STARTS MURDER HUNT

Two Quarrel Over Canary, Knock Phone Down and Police Arrive —'Moans' Only Canine Snores.

Some time Wednesday night Fritzie, a fox terrier, fat enough to know better, had a fight with Peddy, a cat, as to which should eat the canary used for decorative purposes in the machine shop of Fred Mayo at 449 Hicks Street, Brooklyn. In the course of the bitter argument both of them jumped into the air in the direction of the cage and fell heavily to the floor, while the canary, Cardillo, shrilled in derision.

The rotund body of Fritzie declined to take further punishment, so he slept where he had fallen. Peddy also quit, it being no sport to gain something no one else wants. Cardillo disdainfully scratched some seeds from the cage to the panting body of Fritzie on the floor and retired.

About 5 o'clock Patrick Meehan was on telephone duty at Police Headquarters. A light shone on the board, so he leisurely plugged in and said, "Yeh?"

"Some one's murdered or something on Henry 1622," came the excited voice of a telephone supervisor. "They've knocked the phone off and it's flashing. Send quick."

Meehan traced the call, and then rang the Butler Street Station.

"Send some one to 449 Hicks Street," he ordered. "Some one being murdered up there. You can hear them moaning."

Patrolmen Shannon, McNally and Schmidt put on overcoats, grabbed night sticks and gave their pistols an experimental twirl as they dashed to a flivver. The morning was cold and the distance even in a flivver—not short. They said things about crime which did not appear later on their official reports to headquarters.

Reaching the shop they saw that everything was in darkness. The beams of pocket lights, flashed through the windows, revealed nothing and the mystery deepened. There were three good men and strong, so the door was not an impassible barrier. They entered, and holding guns in one hand and flashlights in the other, began to look for the telephone.

Patrolman Shannon found it on the floor, overturned and partly sprinkled with bird seed. Fritzie, lying with his nose near the transmitter, was snoring raucously.

Justice Glennon Misquoted.

In an account of the dismissal by Supreme Court Justice Glennon of the divorce suit of Mrs. Christine N. Booth against Enos S. Booth, a lawyer, sent out by a news association on Dec. 9, it was said that when Justice Glennon reserved decision on the case at the time of the trial he announced that he felt the acts charged had been proved, but that he preferred to read the record before making his decision, at the same time intimating his belief that perjury had been committed by witnesses against Mr. Booth. It was learned yesterday that Justice Glennon was incorrectly quoted and that his statement was that he felt that misconduct had not been proved.

URGES TOLERANCE IN ALL CITY AFFAIRS

Mgr. Lavelle Tells Merchants at Association Luncheon of Menace of Hatreds.

DR. J. B. WISE BACKS STAND

Rabbi Says Religion Should Be Served by Biggest Men, Not by Little-Minded.

The necessity for tolerance in a city as large as New York, not only religious tolerance, but business and human tolerance as well, was urged by the Right Rev. Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral at the luncheon of the Merchant's Association at the Hotel Astor yesterday. In showing the need for tolerance he sketched the following picture of New York.

"She has only about 1,500 churches, with a capacity of 1,000,000 at a time; only 700 theatres, seating 700,000; a paltry 2,000,000,000 books in her libraries; not much more than $5,000,000,000 invested in her industries, and barely $6,000,000,000 of annual output; scarcely 1,200,000 children in her schools; only about $10,000,000,000 deposited in her banks; annual charities of only a single billion; a wretched 30,000 students in her largest university, and that university begging for $60,000,000 for endowment, and sure to get it; bank clearances to the trifling amount of $278,000,000,000 (not more than eight times those of Chicago), and a straggling population of just a little over 6,000,000, of whom 6,000,000 are as decent, loyal, industrious law-abiding, intelligent and progressive as can be found anywhere on God's earth!"

Urges City to Advertise Itself.

New York surpasses every city in the world in every respect except one, he said, and that is in promoting its development and making its advantages apparent to others. Chicago leads New York in this, he believed. New York also has is share of intolerance, he declared.

"We have religious prejudices, political hatreds, race antipathies, sometimes even without being conscious of the poison that is within us," he said. "I venture to say there is no slavery in the world more dire, more retrograde, more dragging on the wheels of progress than that which makes us hate or fear our brother man because of his race, creed, politics or color.

"At the present time there are two very important questions before the people of New York, neither one of which can be wisely settled because of this very intolerance which you are laboring to overcome; because some people hate one another for the love of God, and others detest one another for the love of mammon. These questions are:

"First, affording our children reasonable opportunity to learn their duty to God, their neighbor and themselves, with a view to the diminution of juvenile crime; the other is the question of the rate of transportation, that the millions of our population may be enabled to go to their work and to their pleasures with speed and comfort.

"Either of these questions can be settled at a conference table by an impartial jury, whenever we get confidence enough in one another, and rid ourselves of the prejudices that keep us apart and impede our progress through bigotry, ignorance and greed."

Dr. Wise Urges Tolerance.

The need of tolerance in religion was also voiced by Dr. Jonah B. Wise of the Central Synagogue, who said that as he had been here only a year from Oregon he did not even speak the language of the city and asked to be allowed to speak in English. He defended minorities, particularly religious minorities.

"We Americans have the duty of seeing that religion is not only free but that it has a right to the services of the biggest and broadest men in the community," he said. "I believe it is a great misfortune that religion be left to little-minded people and to people of small abilities.

"If you leave it to the weaklings, to the cowards, to the narrow minded, it will bring disaster upon you, but if you take it in your own hands, if you guide your churches, hold up the hands of your ministry, and demand of your ministry that they be men as you are men, you will serve yourselves, your children and your country."

The Rev. Nehemiah Boynton spoke on the necessity of good-will in the ordinary relations of life.

sue in point of capitalization and total capital involved, this expansion will establish the organization on a basis where its supremacy in its field is not likely to be challenged at any time soon.

Present Dividend Expected.

While Chairman Gary had nothing to say regarding the board's plan with respect to cash dividends, it was assumed in Wall Street that the present annual rate of 7 per cent. will be maintained. In fact, a hint that no reduction in the dividend rate need be feared was contained in the statement that "property conditions and earning capacity" justify the proposed increase in capital. Approximately $6,000 holders of the common shares will benefit by the distribution.

The enlargement of the common share capital, assuming that the corporation will continue to pay 7 per cent., will increase the cash dividend payments on common stock by more than $14,232,470 and bring the total annual disbursements on such stock up to about $50,000,000. With the approximately $25,000,000 preferred dividend requirements, the corporation will pay out to stockholders about $75,000,000 a year.

Heavy Trading in Stock.

Wall Street's expectation of important developments at the meeting of directors scheduled for 3 o'clock was registered in the extremely spirited price movements on the New York Stock Exchange. Speculative interest, which had been keyed to fever pitch by the rumors, centred in Steel common, the urgent buying of which was a sensational feature of the most active market that has been witnessed since Oct. 7. The trading volume in Steel was enormous, the total turnover of 405,300 shares representing one of the peak days in this stock and being among the largest volumes since the record of 875,000 shares was made on Dec. 21, 1916.

The pressing demand for steel stock gave impetus to the general list, and the market during a good part of the day was so buoyant as to remind Wall Street of some of the great buying moments in the last major bull market. Later in the day a reaction developed, with a rally at the close. The total sales on the Exchange were 2,336,790 shares.

Steel common opened at 155⅛, quickly advanced to 156 and then to 157, as buying orders poured in. After touching a high of 157⅞, the stock ran into profit-taking in the early afternoon and moved off in an orderly decline to a low of 153⅛, only to rally before the close and end the day at 154⅞ for a net gain of ¼ point. The selling apparently had its origin in the belief that whatever action the directors might take would prove to have been discounted by the sharp advances that the stock has made within the last few days.

Capitalization Increased.

The increase in common stock recommended by the Board yesterday will be the first change in the corporation's capital structure since 1903. The capitalization and funded debt in 1901, when the corporation was incorporated, consisted of $508,302,500 common stock, $510,231,100 preferred stock, $303,757,000 United States Steel bonds, $60,978,000 subsidiary company bonds. The preferred stock was reduced to $360,281,100 in 1903 through the retirement of $150,000,000 stock with the sale of $150,000,000 of bonds. The capitalization and funded debt at present, as shown in the last available figures, consists of $508,302,500 of common stock, $360,281,100 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, $350,926,000 United States Steel bonds, $102,856,000 subsidiary company bonds guaranteed by the Steel Corporation, $54,544,900 bonds of subsidiary companies not guaranteed by the Steel Corporation, $23,373 subsidiary company real estate mortgages and $404,800 of purchase money obligations. The total funded debt at present is $506,005,573, after allowing for deductions as a result of recent bond retirements.

The common stock outstanding had a value yesterday, based on the closing quotations on the New York Stock Exchange, of approximately $775,000,000, which represents a gain of around $550,000,000 in the market value of the stock since the initial trading in the shares. The shares sold at 43¾ when they were first traded in on the Exchange on March 28, 1901.

The corporation is the world's leading producer of iron and steel. Its annual capacity of pig iron production is now approximately 18,940,000 tons, showing an increase since 1901 of 11,500,000 tons. In the same period its yearly output of steel ingots and castings has increased from 9,430,000 to 22,750,000 tons, and that of finished products from 7,923,000 to 16,252,000 tons. Cement production has gone up from 500,000 to 16,500,000 tons.

There are in the United States Steel organization 27 principal subsidiaries and 165 underlying companies. Through these the corporation, in addition to iron and steel, produces coal, coke, ore, timber and, in fact, almost every essential raw material. More than 3,800 miles of tracks are embraced in its railroad operations. It has a large fleet of steamships and barges engaged in transportation on the Great Lakes, inland waterways and overseas.

The corporation has expended out of earnings for additions and betterments a total of $1,450,000,000. It has followed a conservative policy in capital expenditure and thereby has strengthened its financial position consistently. On Dec. 31, 1925, the common stock, which had virtually no assets back of it at the organization of the corporation, had a book value of $280 a share. The profit and loss surplus on that date amounted to $521,863,109, and current assets exceeded current liabilities by $436,067,042.

Earnings of the corporation in the current year have been exceptionally large. The net income for the nine months ended on Sept. 30 amounted to $145,502,216, as compared with $122,907,625 in the same period of 1925. The earnings in the quarter ended on that date were the largest since war-time, aggregating $52,626,526, against $47,814,105 in the quarter ended on June 30 and $42,400,412 in the third quarter of 1925.

Accumulated Earnings.

Earnings for the ten-year period ended in 1925 averaged $18.26 a share on the common stock, and in that period the dividends actually declared, including extras, averaged slightly more than $5 a share. In 1925 the earnings were equal to $12.86 a share on the common stock, and in the first nine months of this year they amounted to $13.09 a share, which compared with $9.44 in the corresponding period of last year.

The company's dividend policy alway has been conservative. Some of the stockholders have been rather clamorous recently for a more generous return. The Chairman has insisted, however, that the corporation pursue a cautious policy and frequently has let it be known that he would not favor any increase in the rate or any stock disbursement until the financial position of the organization made it safe beyond all question. He intimated at the annual meeting of stockholders in April that a stock dividend might be hoped for in time, but said that he felt that because of the need for larger liquid assets the distribution could not be made then with safety.

The action of the board yesterday, in view of official utterances of this kind, was construed in Wall Street as a clear indication that Chairman Gary and the financiers associated with him on the board are satisfied with the present position of the company and are confident of the general business situation.

Taxation and Surpluses.

Several months ago Wall Street was agitated by reports from Washington that unless corporations with large surpluses not required in their business made some distribution, the tax of 50 per cent. on undistributed income would be enforced. There have been frequent reports that the Steel Corporation and other companies were preparing to capitalize part of their surpluses. Chairman Gary said then that he had heard nothing of the report and there has been no recent intimation from Washington so far as is known of any official pressure against these corporations.

There is naturally a great deal of interest in Wall Street and throughout the country as to the actual benefit in dollars and cents to the holders of United States Steel common. It is expected that the "when-issued" stock will be traded in on the New York Curb Market as is the usual procedure in such cases. It was calculated yesterday by Wall Street statisticians that the "when-issued" shares will have a trading value in the open market of approximately $110 each, that is allowing for the 40 per cent. dividend on Steel common at yesterday's market price of $155 a share, which 40 per cent. dividend, of course, will come off of the market price of the stock when the present stock sells ex-dividend.

The stock to be issued has a par value of $100 and on that basis has a total par value of $203,321,000.

YOUTH IS DEFENDED BY EDISON, NEAR 80

SEES HOPE IN "UNREST"

He Calls Radio a Great Educator, Despite Former Criticism—Science to End Wars.

On the eve of his eightieth birthday Thomas A. Edison has sprung to the defense of the younger generation. The aged inventor expresses his views on "The Youth of Today and Tomorrow" in an interview with Edward Marshall, published in the January number of The Forum.

Mr. Edison shows little patience with those who scold modern youth and compare it unfavorably with the youth of past generations. He sees no justification for the complaint that youthful morals are deteriorating. He finds the boys and girls of today healthier, mentally and physically, than their fathers or grandfathers were. He is not alarmed at the restlessness of modern youth; on the contrary, he finds in it much satisfaction and encouragement.

Oft-repeated criticisms of modern girls, especially concerning their dress, Mr. Edison feels to be unjust and unwarranted. He sees women's dress becoming more simple and more beautiful—a sign, in his estimation, of an advancing civilization. He is not alarmed, either, at the increased vogue of dancing, and says it will keep on because it is perfectly natural.

Mr. Edison does not object to what is spoken of as the "prevailing unrest" in the mental state of young people. There is nothing wicked, he insists, in an "unrest" which keeps them thinking, moving, achieving. On the contrary, according to the inventor, modern "unrest" is the opposite of stagnation, and is, therefore, a good thing for the world.

Although he has often expressed his dissatisfaction with broadcast musical programs, Mr. Edison declares in the interview that the radio is a great educator, and that it holds vast educational possibilities. Incidentally, he expresses the opinion that science will eventually cause the outlawry of war, because war will become so hazardous that no one will dare to invoke it.

Mr. Edison contends that wars will continue to occur until the statesmen of the world realize the terrific hazards. If wars are ever outlawed, he declares, it will not be the result of sentimental pleas, but of the realization that science and invention have made war a self-destroying weapon. The sheer patriotism and common sense of educated people in all nations, says Mr. Edison, will bring about the end of the war idea.

KENTUCKY PROFESSORS DO VASSAR DAISY CHAIN

Clad in Nightgowns They Take Part in Lark at Meeting of Alumnae.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 16 (AP).—A college President and the male head of the institution's art department, clad in nightgowns and wearing flowers in their hair, participated in a burlesque of Vassar College's daisy chain at a meeting of alumnae of Vassar and the University of Chicago here Tuesday. The incident took place at the home of President Frank L. McVey of the University of Kentucky, one of the bearers of the daisy chain.

His companions in the lark were Professor C. M. Sax and four women residents of Lexington, the latter graduates of Vassar. A sheet was used as a daisy chain and the bearers, it is said, moved in an excellent imitation of the Vassar processional.

Dr. McVey and Professor Sax were pressed into service as carriers of the daisy chain owing to the absence of a sufficient number of Vassar graduates to conduct the march, it was explained.

Rumanian King Is Expected to Undergo Radium Treatment —New Plan for Carol.

PARIS, Dec. 16 (AP).—Bucharest dispatches say it has been decided to transport King Ferdinand of Rumania to a Paris radium sanitarium for treatment shortly.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 16.—Prince Carol of Rumania may, after all, spend Christmas in the family circle at the bedside of his sick father, King Ferdinand. According to reliable information, he has finally agreed to sign the agreement which made conditional his temporary return, whereby he undertakes only to meet such persons while in Rumania as are approved by the Government.

It was the Prince's refusal to sign a document of this nature which, contrary to expectations, prevented his visit to King Ferdinand after the recent reconciliation with his mother when Queen Marie passed through Paris on her way to and return from America. Carol, acting on the advice of friends in Paris, who said it would weaken his position for the future, then refused, thereby making it impossible to answer to his sick father's call. Since then King Ferdinand's condition, according to reports here, has become increasingly grave. A fresh urgent call was sent to Carol.

Furthermore, Crown Princess Helene, who possesses very considerable influence in Rumania today, has been most actively at work to make a Christmas gathering of all the members of the royal family possible, and it is understood that she succeeded in having the terms of the document the Prince must first sign modified slightly and also sent him an urgent appeal not to listen to his Paris friends, but to come immediately to visit his father.

BROTHER STOLE WIFE, E. C. CARRINGTON SAYS

Former Maryland Political Leader Sues for $1,000,000 Damages, Charging Alienation of Love.

Edward C. Carrington, a lawyer with offices at 27 William Street and a former Republican candidate for United States Senator in Maryland, announced yesterday that he had begun an action for $1,000,000 damages against his brother, Campbell Carrington, whom he charges with alienating the affections of his wife, Mrs. Anna Walsh Carrington, of 244 West Seventy-fourth Street.

Mr. Carrington instituted divorce proceedings against his wife in Chicago last month, on the basis of a letter alleged to have been sent to her by his brother. Mrs. Carrington replied with a counter-suit, alleging misconduct on the part of her husband with Miss Mae La Vine of Chicago. She received $150 a week temporary alimony.

Edward Carrington became prominent in Maryland politics fifteen years ago, during the Progressive split in the Republican Party. He was campaign manager for Theodore Roosevelt in Maryland in 1912 and two years later received the regular nomination for Senator. He lives at the City Club, 55 West Forty-fourth Street. Campbell Carrington is well known as an amateur golfer and is director of several corporations.

No comment was obtainable from Edward Carrington yesterday beyond an admission that he had brought suit against his brother.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16 (AP).—George L. Schein, attorney for Campbell Carrington, who was notified of the New York suit today, said business differences were at the bottom of all the trouble.

"Colonel Carrington, his brother and two other men," he said, "are associated in a $2,000,000 Eastern business concern. The Colonel wants to sell out his share at a high price, but the others are not willing to pay it. In my opinion that is the reason for all the trouble."

NEW POLICE CLINICS TO BE OPENED JAN. 1

Surgeons Will Be Required to Keep Hours in the Various Borough Headquarters.

NOW TREAT MANY AT HOME

Men in Need of Attention Must Often Travel Long Distances to Private Offices.

A radical change in the operation of the surgeons branch of the Police Department will be inaugurated Jan. 1, it was learned at Police Headquarters yesterday. Clinics for the examination and treatment of members of the department will then be established at each of the five borough headquarters offices.

This will make it necessary for the twenty-three department surgeons to be in attendance at the clinics at stated periods instead of treating policemen in their own offices, where, under the present system, they can also attend to their private patients.

Under the existing system a patrolman living in Staten Island may be on duty in an inspection district whose police surgeon lives in the Bronx. When the policeman is in need of medical attention he must, if he is able to travel, go to the surgeon's office, notwithstanding the inconvenience involved. With the establishment of borough clinics, policemen will receive medical attention at clinics in borough headquarters.

At present the only police clinic is that presided over by the Chief Surgeon, Dr. Daniel J. Donovan, at Police Headquarters in Manhattan.

With the exception of the chief surgeon, police surgeons receive $4,400 a year and are at the call of the department twenty-four hours a day. This, however, does not prevent some of them from attending to their private practices, as Police Department cases, involving men on sick leave, can frequently be treated at the surgeons' private offices.

Under the new systems the surgeons will be compelled to be in attendance at the various clinics at regular periods and consequently will not have so much time available for private patients.

Members of the Police Department, however, are expected to benefit by this saving in time.

Columbia and Dartmouth to Debate.

Columbia University will oppose Dartmouth College in the first intercollegiate debate of the season this evening in the McMillin Academic Theatre. The question is "Resolved: That Co-education, as in State Universities, Be Adopted in New England Colleges." The Columbia speakers, who will uphold the affirmative, include Beryl Levy, 390 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, Alton Wolfert, 544 West 157th Street, and Oswald Vischi, 2,075 Mapes Avenue. Mr. Vischi was President of the Freshman Debating Society last year.

FOREIGN SWIMMERS ENTER CATALINA RACE

Five Nations Will Be Represented Mrs. Schoemmell Denies She Will Wear Suit.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 16 (AP).—Entries representing Greece, Ireland, Norway and Denmark lend an international aspect to the Wrigley marathon channel swim to be held next month between this mainland and Santa Catalina Island for prizes totaling $40,000. Spiros Spingos has entered for Greece, Martin E. Ferris and Walter L. O'Haver will represent Ireland, Harry C. Hansen, Norway, and Pete Peterson, Denmark.

Clarabelle Barrett of Pelham, N. Y., who came within a half mile of completing the English Channel swim, is a competitor. Miss Barrett went to Catalina Island yesterday to establish headquarters and begin training. The list of women entrants include Mrs. Charlotte Moore Schoemmell of New York, whose proposal to substitute black axle grease for a bathing suit in the marathon has stirred much comment. Officials announced that she had agreed to wear a suit.

Among the men entered from the East are Charles Toth of Boston, who negotiated the English Channel in 1923, and Peter Meyer of Cincinnati. Henry Sullivan of Boston, who also crossed the English Channel in 1923, is in training near here, but has not officially filed his entry for the marathon. There are fifty-five entries from California.

Mrs. Schoemmel will not substitute a swimming suit for her customary coat of black axle grease in competing in the Catalina Island marathon, her manager, George H. Maines, said yesterday, according to The Associated Press.

Maines asserted that not only would she refuse to do so, but that he had assurances from J. H. Patrick, representative of William Wrigley, that no restrictions were contemplated on this score.

According to Maines, two other women contestants, Clarabelle Barrett, New York school teacher, and Eva Morrison, New England champion, will be clad only in grease for the swim.

FORD DANCES APPROVED.

Dearborn Jury of Parents and Teachers Upholds Old Steps.

DETROIT, Dec. 16 (AP).—The old fashioned dances sponsored by Henry Ford are wholesome and can be held offensive by no right-minded person, in the opinion of a jury of school officials and parents of Dearborn, which decided tonight to continue teaching the dances in the schools here.

The decision of the parent-teachers jury was reached after attending an exhibition of the dances by school children which followed protests from the Rev. Dr. Frederick C. Krumpling, an evangelical minister, and a group of churchmen, who declared teaching of the old-fashioned steps had a tendency toward immorality among pupils and should be banned in the schools.

As the children went through the old steps, including a polka and quadrille, they were applauded by the audience of mothers and fathers as well as the teachers, and at the end the protesting group was severely criticized.

MEXICO REFUSES TO HALT OIL LAW

Envoy Replies to Producers' Association Here, Saying That They Have Asked Concessions.

RIGHTS PROTECTED, HE SAYS

Attorney Adds Regulations Meet Opposition of Industry and Guarantee Foreign Interests.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 16.—Luis Morones, Secretary of Commerce, Industry and Labor, today replied to the recent telegram sent to him from New York by the Association of Producers of Petroleum in Mexico.

The Secretary informed the producers that Mexico would not extend beyond Dec. 31 the time within which the oil companies must comply with the law. He said there were several misstatements in the producers' telegram.

The producers complained that the new Mexican oil law, which is to go into effect next month, made no "provision for the adequate preservation and the valid recognition of their pre-constitutional rights" (rights acquired before 1917).

They added that they did not see how "any valid confirmatory concession can be issued to them under the law."

Señor Morones denies that El Corono, El Aguila, the Atlantic, Los Chijoles, the Richmond Oil Company, which, he says, is a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of California, and the Transcontinental, which he describes as a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, are foreign companies. According to their articles of registration, the Secretary says, they are Mexican companies, the shareholders being regarded as Mexicans because they renounced any right to appeal to their own Governments from the rulings of Mexican courts.

In regard to the statement in the producers' telegram that "as to the very extensive rights acquired in fee ownership before May 1, 1917, the companies are not aware of any application for a confirmatory concession," Señor Morones says that El Aguila Company has requested a confirmatory concession to property known as La Esmeralda and that the Transcontinental has requested one to a lot in Amatlan.

Morones Professes Surprise.

Señor Morones denies that delay in granting concessions has been due to his office. It is due, he says, to the inopportune presentation by interested companies of legal documents.

The producers' telegram said that formal application had been made by some of the oil companies "for confirmation of certain of their rights evidenced by leases of fixed duration acquired before May 1, 1917, but went on to say that the industry "is not yet officially informed as to the manner in which the Government proposes to recognize and confirm such rights."

These statements, the Secretary says, cause his department much surprise, as the interested companies were advised in time of the text of the regulations in order that they might study them, as some companies had objections which were duly noted.

The Secretary goes on to say that the stipulations were made known to the interested persons and to all companies during the periodical conferences which the directors of the companies held in this city.

Señor Morones declares that his department is always ready to answer questions regarding the interpretation of the law, as it is its aim to give both individuals and companies in the oil industry all the facilities compatible with the law in order that they may comply with it. The companies have had an opportunity to become familiar with the regulations and the point of view of the Ministry, which were explained at the conferences, he says, adding that explanations of them had also been made in writing.

In the view of his department, he says, the oil law and regulations meet the necessities of the industry and duly guarantee investments, giving legal value to acquired holdings in prohibited zones of the country. Therefore, he concludes, the Government has once again shown its good faith in guaranteeing the interests of foreigners in the oil industry.

In his reply Señor Morones incorporates a list of concessions which he says have been applied for by various companies.

Kellogg to Hold Firm on Stand.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—The State Department has no intention of moving in an effort to have Mexico extend beyond Jan. 1 the time for the coming into force of the Mexican oil laws, nor has it any thought of renewing its diplomatic discussion with Mexico over the situation which has brought relations between the two countries into sharp focus.

In official circles it was reiterated today with a marked air of finality that there was nothing further to be said through diplomatic channels. What Secretary Kellogg had to say in his last note on the subject, which pointed out the alleged confiscatory character of the new laws and regulations, it was asserted, called for no amplification.

The position of the State Department is based upon treaties and international law, and for that reason it is not advised of any steps American oil companies owning property in Mexico may be taking in the face of the regulations requiring them to apply to Mexico for "confirmatory" concessions by Dec. 31.

BRENT PREDICTS ERA OF CHRISTIAN UNION

But Bishop Doubts Religion and Science Have Been Reconciled.

BUFFALO, Dec. 16 (AP).—After forty years in the ministry, twenty-five of them as a Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, the Right Rev. Charles H. Brent believes that eventually there will be a union of all Christian churches.

Although he wishes he could believe a reconciliation between Christian religion and science has been reached, he cannot find that to be the case, despite the existence of a better understanding.

Bishop Brent expressed these beliefs in an address today at ceremonies commemorating his twenty-fifth anniversary as a Bishop. He said that the world today appeared worse than formerly because society now lies before us like an open book.

"It is true, I suppose," he went on, "that our day has struck a disturbed patch of history. At any rate, suppressed disorder has burst through the surface of things. The responsibility for the eruption rests squarely on the shoulders of all the people, the rich, the educated, the privileged being the most culpable.

"All the ninepins of life have been knocked over by our own bowling. We are now engaged in the effort to set them up again, though with no certainty that some one will not send another ball hurtling down the alley of time and mess up the human situation again. Be that as it may, we have no cause for complaint or dismay."

RAILROAD CLUB DINNER.

Gives Christmas Season Party at the Commodore.

"The Battle of the Century," which has been fought at various times since 1900, and in various places including Boyles Thirty Acres, Philadelphia and Toledo, was re-enacted last night at the Christmas Season Dinner of the New York Railroad Club by Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, the baseball comedians. On an elevated platform in the Hotel Commodore ball room, and before 3,500 railroad men, the two engaged in a mutually destructive boxing bout and high diving contest. Altrock left the ring bleeding ketchup in several spots.

Dinner music was played by the New Haven Railroad orchestra. A little railroad grand opera, featuring the Signors Charles Kullman, Marshall Burwell and the Signorina Nordin, opened the entertainment. The one speech of the evening was by Father Duffy of the "Fighting Sixty-ninth," who asked employers to be well disposed toward ex-service men seeking jobs.

Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion, arrived in time for the amateur boxing carnival, in which young railroad employes participated.

Patrolmen Arrive at Report of Red Demonstration Plan as Arbitrators Open Hearings.

BANTON PROMISES HELP

Tells Employers He Will Inquire Into Alleged Gang Operations—Communist Meeting Tomorrow.

Arbitration hearings designed to settle the dispute between 20,000 cloakmakers and the American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers Association were begun yesterday in the offices of Impartial Chairman Raymond V. Ingersoll, 131 West Thirty-first Street, and will continue today and tomorrow. The arbitrators are Judge Bernard L. Shientag, Professor Lindsay Rogers of Columbia University and Herbert Lehman.

A formidable array of policemen was on hand in the vicinity of the Greeley Square Arcade Building, where the conference was held, when a report reached the police that the Communist and Left Wing elements of the union were planning a demonstration. The building runs through from Thirtieth to Thirty-first Street. At the hour scheduled for the meeting six mounted patrolmen took up their station at the Thirty-first Street entrance, twenty patrolmen waited at the Thirtieth Street Police Station directly across the street, several patrolmen guarded the main hallway and seven members of the Industrial Squad under Sergeant John J. Broderick were stationed in the building. The expected demonstration failed to materialize.

Appeal to Banton.

Representatives of the Merchants' Ladies' Garment Association and the American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers' Association, the jobbers and submanufacturers respectively, called on District Attorney Banton yesterday accompanied by George Wickersham, Joseph Blumberg and Louis Solomon, their counsel. They asked for a Grand Jury investigation into charges of violence by gangsters in the cloakmakers' strike.

Mr. Banton promised his cooperation, said he would assign detectives to the case and assured them he would do everything in his power to bring the culprits to justice. He suggested that the employers give him affidavits and other evidence. If the evidence is sufficient to warrant prosecution he agreed to place the matter before a City Magistrate.

Both the officers of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and the deposed officers of the General Strike Committee announced yesterday that they were anxious for a "showdown" of the rank and file as to which side the union members were supporting.

The Left Wing and Communist leaders, who were deprived of their power when the international union took over the conduct of the strike, issued a call directed to the cloakmakers and dressmakers to meet at noon tomorrow in Madison Square Garden. The circular bristled with an attack on President Sigman.

Enrolment Drive Planned.

Mr. Sigman's reply was to issue a statement to the rank and file to be present at the Madison Square Garden and protest "against their betrayers who are seeking to bolster their failing fortune." At the same time he announced that an enrolment campaign of those workers who are supporting his administration as opposed to the Left Wing and Communist leaders will begin on Monday at the International Offices, 3 West Sixteenth Street.

Morris Hillquit, for the union, and Harry Uviller, for the submanufacturers, made preliminary arguments before the Arbitration Board yesterday. Mr. Hillquit maintained that the submanufacturers should not obtain reorganization rights, as they were not as responsible as the Industrial Council. He declared frankly that the union did not deny the charge of discrimination in favor of the Industrial Council and said that the latter received the right of reorganization because of the complaint that the present system made for insufficient productivity, while the submanufacturers had no such complaint.

Mr. Uviller argued that the union leaders, referring to the recently deposed group of Left Wing and Communist officers, headed by Louis Hyman, had promised to his members the same agreement as that accorded to the inside manufacturers.

SOVIET UNION POET WRITES TROTSKY FABLE

Shows How Ex-Leader Persisted in Attempting Political Suicide Despite Attempts to Save Him.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW Dec. 16.—The last nail in the political coffin of Leon Trotsky was hammered today by the Soviet "Poet Laureate" Demyan Byedni, with a little "Fable" after the manner of La Fontaine, which was published in the Pravda and the Moscow Worker.

The fable relates that a peasant was busily ploughing a field when he was interrupted by a despairing citizen throwing himself into a near-by river. Three times the citizen plunges into the river and three times the peasant stops work to rescue him. Finally, the citizen ascends a tree and hangs himself dead. Later the peasant, blamed for his failure to prevent the suicide, replies:

"Brothers, I have got work to do. I thought perhaps he had gone up the tree to dry his clothes."

"What is the moral of my fable?" ends M. Byedni. "Surely it is clear enough when applied to M. Trotsky & Co."

The same thing was put differently by a Communist holding an important business post:

"We are fed up with discussions. It is a man-sized job to run this country, without arguing about it. Some of these oppositionists do not know the revolution is ten years old."

This allusion to M. Trotsky's theory of a "permanent revolution," meaning the impossibility of a compromise either temporarily or permanently with the capitalist world, is bitterly attacked by the Soviet press. The above-quoted Communist declared it is entirely untrue that the opposition squabble has caused a change in the Soviet policy abroad.

"We are engaged in peaceful economic reconstruction, naturally on Socialist lines," he said, "which is obviously required to supply the machines, &c., from the Western world, with which we are anxious to collaborate on business terms."

Certainly the Soviet Union budget for the coming year, published today, compares favorably with the fiscal estimates of most European States. Expenditure amounts to 4,760,000,000 rubles and is covered by revenue, leaving a surplus of 160,000,000 rubles. Capital expenditure for economic purposes is 830,000,000 rubles, of which 500,000,000 rubles is for industry. Expenses of the "Economic Administration" have decreased about 15 per cent.

3 DIE FROM AUTO MISHAPS.

Woman Is Killed at Far Rockaway After Truck Hits Auto.

Mrs. Gretchen Brauer, 62 years old, of 1,539 Leland Avenue, Far Rockaway, was killed yesterday on Carlton Avenue near Rockaway Boulevard, when a Standard Oil Company truck struck a small automobile, glanced off and hit her. The truck then plunged through a hedge to a lawn and pushed over a tree before stopping. Bertram Foy of 270 Vincent Avenue, Lynbrook, L. I., driver of the truck, and Joel Goldsetter of 221 Beach Eighty-seventh Street, driver of the automobile, were held without bail on homicide charges for further hearings in the Far Rockaway court.

A man about 70 years old with a gray beard was crushed to death last night beneath a delivery truck which backed on him at Christopher Street and Dumont Avenue, Brooklyn. Witnesses told the police that the driver left the scene apparently unaware of the accident.

Gaidne Prochila of Rockville Centre, L. I., died early in the morning in the Rockville Centre Sanitarium of injuries received on Wednesday night when the truck he was driving skidded and hit a tree on the Foxhurst Road near Baldwin, L. I. A part of the steel framework of the wind shield of the truck pierced his brain. He was 26 years old and had been married only four months.

TWO CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE.

Lost in National Park (N. J.) Home When Mother Goes on an Errand.

Special to The New York Times.

WOODBURY, N. J., Dec. 16.—Two children were burned to death in a fire that destroyed the home of Harry Heritage at National Park, three miles from here this morning. The mother left the children, May, 3 years old, and William nine months old, asleep in the crib while she went on an errand to a near-by store. On her return, a few minutes later, the mother saw flames bursting from the side of the little one-story frame house. The mother, 26 years old and a cripple, made frantic efforts to reach the babies, but failed.

Three fire companies responded and John Miller, a volunteer fireman, brought the two children from the burning building, but both were found to be dead.

MEDALS ARE AWARDED FOR BEST BUILDINGS

Fifth Avenue Association Gives First Prize to Gould Realty Co. for Aeolian Structure.

The Fifth Avenue Association's first prize, a gold medal and diploma, for the best designed new building erected in Fifth Avenue in the past year, has been awarded to the Gould Realty Company for the new Aeolian Building, 589 Fifth Avenue, and the association's certificate of award has been awarded to Warren & Wetmore, architects of that building.

The new Aeolian Building is to be sold at public autcion on Jan. 24 by Joseph P. Day, for the Gould estate. Announcement of the awards was made at the nineteenth anniversary dinner of the Fifth Avenue Association at the Waldorf-Astoria last night by Captain William J. Pedrick, Vice President and general manager.

Second prize, a silver medal, was awarded to the One Park Avenue Corporation for the building known as 1 Park Avenue. The association's certificate was awarded to the architects of that building, York & Sawyer.

First prize for the best alteration on a building in the Fifth Avenue district, went to H. F. Dawson for the Dawson Building, 19 East Sixtieth Street.

Colonel Michael Friedsam, President of B. Altman & Co., and President of the Fifth Avenue Association, presided at the dinner. Former Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on City Plan and Survey, assured the members that he was convinced by the character of the men with whom he had been associated in the survey, that their report to the Mayor would prove to be a great surprise to those present when its contents were made public.

Lawson Purdy, Vice Chairman of the Zoning Subdivision of the City Committee on Plan and Survey, told of past efforts at zoning and expressed the belief that the Ohio Supreme Court decision upholding the constitutionality of zoning laws would go a long way toward upholding the committee in its zoning proposals.

UPSETTING THE APPLE CART.

It was hoped a few days ago by the regular Republicans of the Senate that Governor SMALL of Illinois would see the inexpediency of appointing Colonel FRANK L. SMITH, and that the latter would see the inexpediency of accepting an appointment as successor to the late Senator MCKINLEY for the term ending March 3, 1927. Colonel SMITH is sure of trouble enough when he presents his credentials as Senator for the six-year term by election. Senator WATSON, whom nobody suspects of being soft-boiled, solemnly warned him that he would be put out if he tried to come in. Words wasted. The Colonel is of such delicate composition that he has never comprehended why all this fuss should be made about his primary campaign funds. He is angry. He is sore. He is suspicious. It is an indication of the charming political conditions in his State that he is reported to believe that any other appointee than himself or his campaign manager "would work against his chances in the Seventieth Congress."

That sensitive plant, LEN SMALL, expands to the occasion. SMITH was "the choice of the voters." There has been no charge of corruption at the general election. How about the primary election? Doubtless a great deal will be heard about the right of Illinois to be represented by two Senators. That is subject to the equal right of the Senate to determine the qualifications of its members, appointed or elected. Irrespective of any suspicion of corruption, that right is exercised inconsistently. Thus in 1914 the Senate refused to seat FRANK B GLASS of Alabama, though an old law authorized the Governor of Alabama to fill vacancies in State offices. So a Senator is not a State officer. Last January the Senate seated for political reasons Mr. NYE of North Dakota appointed by the Governor under the phantom authority of a section of a Prohibition Enforcement law empowering him to appoint "State and district officers." So a Senator is a State officer, though North Dakota statute after statute distinguishes between State and Congressional elections.

The Senate can do substantially what it pleases in the matter of excluding members; and the reasons given are not necessarily the reasons that control. The subject is capable of long serial treatment. Most of the country will pray that the great and little constitutional lawyers of the Senate will refrain from wreaking themselves upon it in this session and so causing that extra session which only mischief-makers want. Senator ASHURST has had a resolution up his sleeve for some time in readiness for the appearance of SMITH. This assumes that under a rule of the Senate a resolution calling in question the eligibility of a member is privileged and can be switched off the track only by a roll-call or motion to adjourn. It is notable that Senator WALSH of Montana, a sounder head, did not seek this advantage from the rule so interpreted, when he introduced and carried his resolution to investigate charges against Senator GOULD.

Fair-minded men on both sides of the chamber ought to be able to find some way of settling the status of SMITH without hundreds of miles of yawp and an extra session. He seems to have deliberately thrown away most of his friends in the Senate. The main case against him is matter for the Seventieth Senate. The Committee on Privileges and Elections ought to be able to deal with him in this. At any rate, the public business ought not to be held up because a person, sure to get his deserts, is as pig-headed as he is insensitive.

THE LARGER JURY.

There is no occasion to rail at the Washington jury which brought in a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of the prosecution of ex-Secretary FALL and Mr. DOHENY for conspiracy to defraud the Government. Such a charge is notoriously hard to prove under the rules of law. Senator WALSH of Montana, who had so much to do with uncovering the repulsive facts which led to the prosecution, points out that it was necessary to establish the existence of a conspiracy "beyond a reasonable doubt." If the jury, in the conscientious discharge of their duty, felt that such proof had not been laid before them, in a way to comply with the charge of the Judge, there is nothing more to be said, so far as they are concerned. But Senator WALSH justly observes that men may be acquitted in a criminal trial for acts which nevertheless remain utterly "reprehensible."

This is a distinction which the public will not fail to grasp. The things of which Messrs. FALL and DOHENY were accused, though first done in a corner, could not remain there. They have been set forth in all their suspicious detail so that every thinking man and woman in the country who follows public affairs has arrived at an impression of the truth. These people are the larger jury before which Secretary FALL and Mr. DOHENY were really tried. That jury of the whole citizenship has received a deep impression which nothing in the course of the trial at Washington, not even the verdict of the jury of twelve men, can weaken, much less obliterate. The belief of the great mass of the people is that a scandalous impropriety, if not a crime technically, marked with many circumstances and suspicions of official corruption, actually took place. The men concerned in it must have known what they were about. They were no neophytes in business or in public life. It is clear that they perceived from the first how damaging to their reputations would be a disclosure of the facts. When the facts did come out, a conviction was formed in the public mind which is just as indelible today as it was before the Washington jury failed to convict.

It is fortunate that there are moral penalties, sometimes more grievous to endure than the most severe which the law can inflict. When they rightly fall upon a man, he cannot escape from them. They are like a mark upon his forehead as long as he lives. And it is unquestionably this kind of condemnation which has been visited and will continue to rest upon the men whom the Washington jury has acquitted.

CIVILIZED HOUSING.

Compared with the magnitude of the problem, the first attack on New York's obsolete and unsanitary tenements under the new State Housing Plan is only a modest beginning. The sum of $200,000 pledged on Wednesday for investment in limited-dividend and tax-free corporation stock will doubtless grow as new tenement housing passes from theory into practice. Nevertheless, it is of the highest importance that theory itself should be brought down from the clouds. The admirable preliminary report of the State Housing Board should dispose once for all of visions of model habitations available at fantastically low rentals. It is shown that the five-dollar-a-month room is possible only by a charitable subvention equal to the rent. The basic unit in the Housing Board's report is the $12.50 room. The very lowest rental visualized for any type of modern construction is $9.25 a room, and that is possible only on land costing $6 a square foot. Under no type of modern construction can Manhattan housing be supplied for less than $10 a room on land costing more than $8 a square foot, and out of 1,052 Manhattan sites only 136 are purchasable at less than $9 a square foot. If nine-tenths of the present tenement housing is to be replaced, we must think of a new rent scale of $40 to $50 a month for a four-room apartment.

Thus reduced to concrete terms, the problem is simplified for comparison both with present conditions and with new housing possibilities outside of the congested districts. It would have added something to the value of the housing report if the present average family rental in the tenement districts had been included. We should then be in a position to know what increase in rentals is entailed by substituting new houses for old ones. If the gap is not too wide, other considerations than economic will help to bridge it. Tenement congestion is not entirely a problem of poverty. It is in part a problem of education to higher standards. Provided the cost of education is not too high, we may confidently expect that the city's tenement dwellers in great numbers will desire and find a way to pay more for better habitations.

One thing cannot be overlooked. The solution of the problem must come in considerable degree elsewhere than in the congested districts. Governor SMITH was a bit too impatient when he declared that people will go on living where they want to live and not where some theorist tells them they ought to live. He was thinking of cheap housing in the outlying boroughs. As a matter of fact, people do not insist too stubbornly. They have been flocking out of Manhattan, which has 400,000 less residents today than it had ten years ago. But whether they want to stay or not, it is evident that part of them will have to go if there are to be model tenements in the present congested districts. The present "dumbbell" tenement covers 88 per cent. of the building lot. The most compact of the projected types covers 58 per cent. With a reduction of more than one-third in Manhattan's floor space, it seems obvious that the thinner boroughs will have to be utilized.

A SPEECH THAT CHANGED VOTES.

The story is hackneyed of the United States Senator who said that during the thirty years of his service at Washington he had heard many speeches that changed his convictions, but thanked Heaven that he had never heard one that changed his vote. Last Tuesday, however, a speech was made in the Senate which did change votes. It was delivered by Senator WADSWORTH of New York in support of his amendment to the Immigration act, providing for the admission as non-quota immigrants of the wives and minor children of resident aliens lawfully admitted to the United States before 1924 who have declared their intention to become citizens. The numbers of such admissions are not to exceed 35,000. When the matter came up Senator REED of Pennsylvania, in charge of the bill, was disposed to treat the amendment in a cavalier manner. He declared that the proposal of Mr. WADSWORTH had been before the Senate frequently, and added: "I think I know that four-fifths of the Senate are opposed to the adoption of the amendment." His hope was that the Senate would dispose of it "summarily" and proceed to pass the original bill.

Senator WADSWORTH began his speech by admitting a certain discouragement over Mr. REED's prediction of the defeat of the amendment by a vote of four to one, but he nevertheless felt impelled to proceed with his argument. He did it mainly on the grounds of common humanity. Such disruptions of families as have occurred under the Immigration law, although never intended by Congress, have become in many cases so pathetic and even heartrending that Congress ought to put a stop to them. Mr. WADSWORTH went on with his address in so persuasive a manner and with so fine a spirit, being ready courteously to answer all the questions addressed to him and to meet satisfactorily the objections which were raised, that a visible change of sentiment took place in the Senate. At least two Senators who had expected to vote against the amendment, Senator BINGHAM of Connecticut and Senator BRUCE of Maryland, rose to announce that they had been convinced and converted. There must have been several others of the same mind, for when the vote was taken the amendment was agreed to by 39 yeas against 37 nays.

This, of course, is not the end of the matter legislatively. There may be a reconsideration. It is possible that the amendment will be imperiled when it comes to a conference between the two houses of Congress. But even as the matter stands, the decision of the Senate was noteworthy as showing that, at least in non-partisan matters, reason and humane considerations may transform an expected minority into a majority.

A PLEA FOR WALKERS.

The Newark News is greatly daring when it proposes that the ridge-top road in the South Mountain Reservation, built for the use of automobilists, be turned over to walkers and riders. The new highway runs from South Orange to Washington Rock, famous for its Revolutionary memories. It looks out over a champaign bounded in the east by the hills of Staten Island. It was from Staten Island that the British and Hessians marched over Galloping Hill road to Springfield, and were checked there in a sharp engagement by the Colonials. Springfield has its Revolutionary burying ground, and there still stands the white-steepled church whose minister, the Rev. Mr. CALDWELL, threw hymn-books to the American soldiers for wadding. In front of the church is a statue to the Minute Men, with an inscription that stirs the blood of their descendants. All about Springfield and Millburn is historic ground. The view takes in the hills as far as High Bridge in the south, and to the north gleam the waters of Newark Bay.

On the Morristown pike traffic policemen have to handle thousands of motorists at the Springfield crossroads, hard by the church, on Sundays and holidays. Hitherto they have had the use of the picturesque county or valley road that connects Millburn with South Orange Avenue. Elsewhere in the South Mountain Reservation they were not allowed to go. It is a concrete highway paralleling a sparkling tributary of the Rahway River. In future, unless the plea of The Newark News is heeded, the ridge road will be given over to the automobile people. All the rest of New Jersey as far west and south as the Delaware is theirs to explore. By thousands they would roll along to Washington Rock and have the new road pretty much to themselves. Equestrians and walkers would not be wanted, nor would they feel like intruding.

The new highroad was not built with the approval of the home-makers of Maplewood and South Orange nestling under South Mountain. They protested, but in vain. The Reservation has been their playground. Newark and all its suburbs have shared it. To quote its defender and would-be conserver:

> South Mountain Reservation is the last stand of primeval nature in Essex County easily available to hundreds of thousands of its residents. It is a bird refuge; it is a wild woodland; it is a walkers' and riders' paradise.

The four-footed and winged creatures have not been frightened away by the procession of pleasure cars that honk along the valley road, which the hikers avoid. But if the automobilists are to have their will of the ridge road, it may be another matter. It is not necessary to the happiness of the folks on wheels, whose name is now legion, to monopolize Washington Rock, as they will do if the Essex County Park Commission does not relent. Should they refuse, much of the charm of the grand old Reservation chasm will vanish for the light-hearted troops of riders and the carefree hikers and picnickers.

TELEVISION.

> For he looketh to the ends of the earth
> And seeth under the whole heaven.

This was one of the poetical statements used by ZOPHAR by way of comforting JOB in his many tribulations, in order to illustrate the omniscience and omnipotence of the Almighty. JOB at last yielded, saying:

> I know that thou canst do all things
> And that no purpose can be restrained.

Once the scientist said in the mood of JOB, "With GOD all things are possible," but these are things "too wonderful for me, which I knew not." Now he is unwilling to say that there is anything impossible with man. Speech at great distances was for ages never thought of as a possibility, and, even after communication by wire was achieved, not dreamed of as feasible without the assistance of wire. Sight at great distances has at last been made possible by telephotography, the carrying of images across thousands of miles.

Now comes in prophecy of actual achievement the almost instantaneous flight of images in motion across seas and continents, just as LUCRETIUS, nearly two thousand years ago, explained their movement in his theory of the visibility of objects near and far: the air being filled, as he conceived, with millions of images, ever passing and crossing one another in every direction, some swifter, some slower, in infinite complexity, yet in no confusion, "very unsubstantial, yet "keeping their forms as they speed on "their way to the senses." He went even further in describing these as being traversed by images of the mind and these in turn by the majestic images of the gods. But the amazing thing is that images do now actually cross one another in every direction and in "infinite complexity" and yet keep their forms intact and become visible to the eyes thousands of miles away.

Television is an accomplished fact by means of radio photography, but it remains so to quicken the process of transmission as to make moving objects visible in life size on a screen at a distance. What is required, in the language of a related art, is a brush of light that will more swiftly bring these images into view. As Dr. E. F. W. ALEXANDERSON of the General Electric Company explained to the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, it will be necessary to increase the operating speed from 40,000 to 300,000 picture units per second in order to get pleasing results. The "brushes of light" have been multiplied. Even so the "painting" cannot be done rapidly enough. And there seems to be a question whether mechanical power can be sufficiently swift to recover these images. But that in some way, if not in the mechanical acceleration of these brushes, the thing will be done cannot be doubted. What needs to be done being known, the way will be found. For that confidence, we have the support not only of past achievement but of the eager and never-satisfied effort of the human mind.

Science's search will continue till it can say as JOB did at the end of the greatest interview in all literature between man and the Voice of the Whirlwind:

> I have heard of thee by the hearing ear,
> But now mine eye seeth thee.

HALF TRUTHS ACROSS THE SEA.

Characterizing American novelists as creatures of "boundless energy," Mr. FRANK SWINNERTON, who has just returned to London from a lecture tour here, has a number of tactful things to say of them. Unlike the returning English writer who feels free to deliver himself of all the unkind words that may be said once a man is on home ground again, he conceals criticism under a veil of praise. Perhaps he really has no cruel thing to utter, and the generous words he uses are all that he has to say, though that seems unlikely. For even American writers find faults in each other, and Mr. SWINNERTON is not less shrewd and observant than they. So one must suppose that a restraint not rare in him, but not often found in members of his craft when they talk of their fellows, has curbed his expression.

He spoke admiringly of American literary adventurousness. It experiments, makes mistakes, accomplishes some things almost by accident out of its sheer brute force and abundance, and never stagnates. All this sounds like admiration. So does his mention of the American "moderns," of whom he named CABELL and GERTRUDE STEIN, and among whom he would doubtless include SHERWOOD ANDERSON, MAXWELL BODENHEIM, BEN HECHT, and a number of others, some good and some unintelligible. Of their work he said, "I honestly believe there is something in it." Perhaps he hopes to find it some day.

With his feeling for style and the beauty of words, it is not surprising that he should think there is "something in" CABELL. Yet he also said of that poetic novelist that he "could make nothing of him." This hint might give us the clue to his real or, at least, his complete feeling about American novelists. It is impossible to doubt his sincerity when the truth of his epithets is so obvious. Any one can see that our writers may right fully be called virile, adventurous, prolific, energetic. They are world-beaters along the lines of quantity production and bold experiments. But when that is said, there still remain some cutting things, which Mr. SWINNERTON is too kind to say, about clarity, delicacy, brilliance, characterization, construction and witty dialogue.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Thinking in Billions.

People not old can remember the time when the appropriations made by Congress and the operations of the United States Treasury led to the saying that we must learn to "think in hundreds of millions." Now we have jumped to the need of thinking in billions. Reports of the receipts of the Government from income taxes on Dec. 15, together with the retirement by the Treasury of short-term certificates, indicate that the financial transactions of that one day amounted to more than $1,000,000,000.

The surprising thing about it is that this vast transfer of funds took place without causing the slightest disturbance in the money market. Of course, this was largely because the operation had been carefully planned for in advance. In its essence, it represented little more than the exchange of pieces of paper. No large amount of money actually changed hands. It was a case of credits canceling credits, very much as in the daily proceedings of the Clearing House.

Nevertheless, the incident stands out as a striking evidence of the vast scale on which the business of the banks and of the Treasury is now conducted. We have become accustomed to it by easy stages. The tremendous sums put at the disposal of the Government in the subscriptions to Liberty bonds during the war, in amounts which beforehand the shrewdest financiers would have declared it impossible to raise, taught Americans more than they had known about their illimitable financial resources, and made it easy for them mentally to pass from millions to billions. Yet the ease with which such large operations as those of Dec. 15 are now got through with shows strikingly both the perfection of our banking machinery and the new mental attitude of the American people in such affairs.

Lucky Error in Forecasting.

Forecaster SCARR can sometimes make a mistake and be blessed for it. Predicting the weather is not yet an exact science. The local bureau is often right for days together—and gets no credit for it. Should it be wrong for forty-eight hours, as sometimes happens, no quarter is given. The censorious never tally its successes.

Mr. SCARR came a cropper when on Tuesday he predicted a fall of snow and a cold wave. Three-tenths of an inch of snow sifted down, and while the air was nipping yesterday morning the cold wave did not come. Yet Mr. SCARR was never so popular. The department stores and the Christmas shoppers put in a long and busy day.

A second heavy fall of snow accompanied by a cold wave would have given December a bad name, and the cost to the municipality would have reminded Controller BERRY again that there isn't enough of a surplus to paint the monkey house in Central Park. The Weather Bureau cannot promise balmy weather, but it has taken in the snow signal. December may redeem itself after all.

Life Spans Longer and Better.

To Dr. HAVEN EMERSON one is grateful for an interesting new light on the sufficiently familiar problem of the prolongation of life. In the space of sixty years the average expectation of life has risen from forty years to fifty-eight years. There is of course, general appreciation of the fact that this gain of nearly thirty years in the life span does not mean that the scriptural limitation has been raised from seventy years to nearly a hundred. We still meet very few centenarians.

It is common knowledge that the average life expectancy has been raised chiefly by the preservation of infant life. Sixty years ago one out of every four babies was sure to die in infancy. That rate has been vastly reduced. But there are those to point out that the so-called degenerative diseases are on the increase. Modern medicine and sanitation keep alive the weak babies through middle manhood when the "artificially" maintained machine breaks down. What anti-toxin saves at six months heart disease claims at the age of forty-five or fifty.

Even if the prolongation of adult life is not what it is sometimes imagined to be, it has been sufficient to work a great social change, as Dr. EMERSON remarks. Men may die before their time of heart disease at fifty, but many fewer die of tuberculosis at thirty, thirty-five, forty. And this means that fewer children are left without a bread-winner. "We have succeeded," says Dr. EMERSON, "in raising the family unit to the longevity point where the children usually reach the age of self-support before being deprived of one or both parents."

A Diplomat Highly Brilliant.

Most of the documents recently published by the British Foreign Office relating to the origins of the war are serious enough, but a few gleams of humorous incident appear. One of them has to do with the action of the British Chargé d'Affaires at Belgrade when the bombardment of that city began. He at once departed for Nish along with the Serbian Government, leaving the British Vice Consul in charge of the legation. That official had the happy inspiration of transferring all his secret archives along with the official cipher to the German Legation in Belgrade.

His reason apparently was that the German Legation was much less likely to be shelled than the British, and that the precious documents would be safer there. This astonishing action was reported to Sir EDWARD GREY, who promptly sent off a telegram ordering the instant destruction of the secret papers. Next he got a report that the British flag was flying "over a portion" of the German Legation. Presumably this was above the rooms occupied by the clever Vice Consul, and it was not until these official British secrets had been in the German Legation for thirty-six hours that word finally came to the Foreign Office that "the ciphers and all highly secret archives have been carefully destroyed by fire."

It does not appear that the Germans in Belgrade took advantage of the wonderful opportunity, offered them by the innocent enemy, to make themselves masters of the reports of the British Intelligence Service, or to possess themselves of the confidential British code. This fact, however, does not diminish the lustre of the British Vice Consul's brilliant achievement.

GEN. HERTZOG'S SPEECH.

Mr. Louw Sees In It No Change From His Former Attitude.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of today you publish a report from your South African correspondent, under the headline "Hertzog Amazes South Africans."

After giving a short report of the speech delivered by General Hertzog on his arrival at Cape Town, your correspondent describes it as "a change of front," "revolutionary," and as fraught with "consequences unpredictable." He ends by predicting that this speech will cause a 'political earthquake" in South Africa.

If your correspondent had been following political events there during the past year or more, he should know that there is nothing whatsoever in the reported speech of General Hertzog which is in any way inconsistent with his well-known speech on imperial relations delivered at Stellenbosch on May 15 of this year, or with his later speech at Cape Town on the eve of his departure for the conference. Furthermore, your correspondent is quite incorrect when he states that the Dutch section of the population regards English-speaking South Africans as "interlopers." The Dutch-speaking section has the warmest regard for those English fellow South Africans who have made the country their home, and who regard it truly as such.

There will be no "serious consequences," nor any "political earthquakes" in South Africa as a result of this speech, and it is a pity that such misleading reports should be published, which cannot but create wrong impressions here and shake the confidence of business men and others who are interested in the Union of South Africa. Books for Seamen.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Each year the value of books as presents is being more widely recognized. By careful planning the giver tries to steer clear of what his friend has already read, and to choose what he knows he will most enjoy.

That is exactly the American Seamen's Friend Society's method of providing compact loan libraries for our merchant seamen on the high seas. Fifty boxes now are being filled with new books carefully selected by our own librarian. Soon these fifty libraries, each containing about forty books, will go to sea on American ships. They will give pleasure to thousands of seamen, and the fortunate donors who have sent us $25 for each unit will get a cheery letter of thanks from chief officer or bo'sn, or whoever acts as librarian on the ship. This will be repeated whenever the box is reshipped on other vessels, for it is kept in good condition for several years' use.

Who is going to be sponsor for these libraries? Some one may wish to express his affection for a friend who really does not need anything he could select. What finer expression of regard than to start a loan library on its voyage of service in the name of such a friend. Let us know the name of your friend and send your check for $25 to the American Seamen's Friend Society, 79 Wall Street.

BRUISING BREEZES.

To do the thing we know is wrong,
Not wrong to those around,
But to ourselves, is a rude wind
That hurls us to the ground.

From there we either rise at once,
Glad that no one could see,
Or lie a while quite stunned to think
Our frame so frail could be.

And then we either skip along
Or walk sedate, with ease,
Knowing our smart, neat pantaloons
Won't show the black-bruised knees.

Little we think unless we learn
To dodge the wind's quick pace,
Perchance some day a breeze may lay
Us naked in the market-place!

THE PASSAIC STRIKE.

Dr. Thomas Tells Wherein It Differs From the Cloakmakers' Tie-Up.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While I very often differ from the opinions expressed on THE TIMES editorial page, I have come to expect in it some such regard for facts as characterizes to a high degree your news columns. It was, then, with genuine astonishment that I read your editorial this morning on "Class War Strikes." I should not intrude upon your space to argue your philosophy but I desire to enter a vigorous criticism against the way in which you have coupled together the strike of textile workers in Passaic and the cloakmakers' strike in New York. I speak with a fairly intimate knowledge of both strikes and with a record for protest on many occasions against Communist tactics. It is a matter of simple fact that the Passaic and New York strikes differed widely in conduct and in results. This can be proved by brief reference to the course of events in the heroic eleven months' struggle in Passaic.

The Passaic strike was a mass movement of exploited textile workers. Mr. Weisbord appeared on the scene when no other leader was active. He began to organize. The companies forced what many thought was a premature strike by their policy of discharging men who joined the union. The original demands of the strikers were moderate. From the beginning Weisbord with excellent judgment emphasized the labor union character of the strike and succeeded amazingly well in repressing all violence. By August, with the ranks of the strikers unbroken and their morale high, he eliminated himself, as did also his principal associate, the non-Communist, Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, in order that an A. F. of L. union, the United Textile Workers, might carry on.

The employers, who had used communism as an excuse for not negotiating with the strikers, unanimously refused to negotiate with the U. T. W. Every responsible leader of the strike and the rank and file of the workers themselves have for a long time been willing to reach a settlement on the one essential basis of the recognition of the union. It has taken about four months of struggle under the excellent leadership of Mr. Starr to compel the Botany Mills, the largest in Passaic, to grant this essential condition of peace. The Botany Mills only yielded when every other attempt, including the restoration of the 10 per cent. cut in wages, had failed to win their workers back.

It is the well-founded belief of the Passaic workers that recognition of the union, given the numbers and enthusiasm of the union workers, means the unionization of the mills, the establishment of collective bargaining and the elimination of the espionage system. This victory and the present morale of the Passaic workers have brought more encouragement to those who are interested in the progress of labor than any similar achievement for a long time.

There are, however, still some important mills in Passaic which have not settled and there is still need for relief. It is therefore most unfortunate that at this juncture your editorial should couple in the public mind the Passaic strike, with its high morale, its absence of gangsterism, its remarkable solidarity, and the strike of the cloakmakers, which, to put it moderately, has not been characterized by any of these things. The fact that Communist leadership, though under very different conditions, was to be found in both strikes by no means justifies this wholesale and quite misleading attack upon them both.

CONTINUATION SCHOOLS.

Objectors Are Urged to Acquaint Themselves With the System.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is to be regretted that Edward Saphir and others who feel as he does do not visit the nearest continuation school, where they will be cordially invited to ascertain the real conditions by seeing for themselves.

It is true that the boys and girls who attend continuation school must hold jobs to support their families. That is why each of the continuation schools has organized an employment bureau which cooperates with the New York State Department of Labor and which has contact with the employers throughout the city. In fact, placement and vocational guidance are the chief objectives of the general continuation school.

There is always a good demand for the services of boys and girls who attend continuation schools. There are times when this demand cannot be filled. In fact, according to labor statistics, there is no group of employes, irrespective of age, which has fewer unemployed than those who are attending continuation school.

Mr. Saphir is right when he says that there are many poor children in the continuation school. This type of school is the only one where poor children can continue learning while they are earning. The continuation school is the working boy's high and trade school. It helps the youth to make an intelligent choice of occupation, teaches him how to secure advancement and supervises his start at work, for every continuation school teacher must visit parents and employers to observe the pupil's home and employment conditions for the purpose of aiding in betterment.

As far as prosecutions for truancy are concerned, a visit to one of the courts will convince any one that in the continuation school we have a means to reduce the number of idlers drifters and delinquents.

So many people like Mr. Saphir believe that the working boy and girl should be offered the opportunity to go to evening school instead of day continuation school. It is because the evening schools have been tried out for this group and have proved a failure for them that the continuation school has been established.

The Merchants' Association of New York City has recently issued a leaflet describing the policies and objectives of our continuation schools. Those who are interested could write to that association for the circular.

THE DEMOCRATIC SOU

It Would Vote for Smith From Despite Personal Feelings.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Several recent contributors propounded the query, Will the support Governor Smith for the idency? She will. Smith's nom will not have the becalming effect the "Marseillaise" is said to have French riot. But after the and lamentations are over, swearing with much pent-up that she will never consent, consent. So please count the Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, North South Carolina, Texas and V total 114, in the Smith column.

These same States will, march in serried ranks through convention hall shrieking against nomination of the New York and against the modification of rule which permits one-third delegates to block the will of thirds, but if these hurdles are and Smith is given the leadership South will take her medicine game man facing a firing There will be some irreconcilables, heavy can't-stomach-him vote, absence from the polls and a quickened interest in the rare sport of angling on election day, but when the tumult and shouting are over it will be found that the South's solidarity has not departed from her. Pillars of small head to the incubations of the ris of Georgia, Heflin of Alabama McMillan of South Carolina. Just ask them if they will support Smith if he is nominated. That will fetch them up.

All of the office-holding Democrats, the "regulars," the timid souls who shudder at the thought of breaking life-long records, together with the liberal-minded citizens with lofty ideals who recoil at a religious test for political fitness, will support Smith.

Prohibition is strongly entrenched in the South, and the old majorities by which the dry dispensation was ushered in would, no doubt, be repeated if the issue should be put to another referendum. But all the large towns and cities remain fairly well irrigated with smuggled wet or home-brew and moonshine. Many of those who use these decoctions are dry. Many of these and practically all the pure-bred prohibitionists who square their conduct with their principles are against Smith for the presidency.

But the great impediment that slows Smith down is his religion. Senator Underwood recently issued a broadside for the New York Governor, but it fell outside the breastworks. Senator Underwood has lived long, his flame lacks oil, to be the victim of other spirits." But when the gods part, the half-gods arrive. The politics of the South are largely in the hands of a lot of time-serving opportunists, practised in the arts of following the yokelry who are ready to follow any Pied Piper who plays the tunes they like to hear.

The spectacular era of the Ku Klux Klan has passed, due to internal schisms and a heavy tonnage of dues-paying members, but public sentiment in some communities is still addled by this peculiar form of fraternalism. The Klan has ceased to be a secret order and has become an underground political organization of waning influence and numbers.

All the signs on the horizon of the South, economic and political, are growing more reassuring. That "unyielding stability of opinion" so long recognized as the worst incubus on the South's intellectual life is going its way, the land of problems is becoming a land of progress; everywhere is manifest the broadening influence of trade and industry and education; the South is learning to speak in terms of the vocabulary of today.

The fact that the Republican party claims so few adherents in the South is not derogatory of its powers of analysis or perspicacity. The Republican party for a decade or more has not had a program or leadership that appealed to any who have a capacity for discriminating differences or appraising values. Therefore, those Southern Democrats who bolt Smith, not having ever heard any good reasons why they should vote the Republican ticket, will permit their indignation to go only to the point of not voting at all.

But Smith's nomination will not drive the South out of the Democratic electoral column, and there are unmistakable factors working in his behalf which we believe would give him this crowning honor at the hands of the American people. Smith would be the third Democratic President to occupy the White House since the Civil War.

The Rights of Foreigners.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Archdeacon Dodshon's statement that foreigners living in America who refuse to become citizens should be registered is one that I have often heard, but never before from a man of intelligence, such as the Archdeacon undoubtedly is. Might it not be worth while to give it serious consideration?

I am a foreigner, residing here by virtue of a treaty between my own country and the United States, which guarantees to citizens of either country the right to enter and carry on their business in the other. Would the Archdeacon violate that treaty or negotiate for its abrogation?

Furthermore, there are many Americans residing in foreign countries who are engaged in promoting American trade, but who have no intention of relinquishing their nationality. Would the Archdeacon have these American carrying on his business in London, Constantinople and Peking become Englishman, a Turk and a Chinaman respectively?

The Graves Ruling Questioned.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent opinion given by Commissioner Graves, which was adverse to the continuance of public school building by the American Liberties Union, ought, it seems to me, on this occasion more widespread public consideration.

The points made by the Commissioner do not seem to me to be well taken. To determine in advance that the statements of any person or organization are disloyal or subversive is both unfair and dangerous. No law is perfectly adequate on this point, but in case statements are made which are disloyal there is always redress. This is a generally well-recognized principle. But regardless of how much more interested people may be in early American furniture than they are in early American ideas?

COOLIDGES HOSTS TO MANY DIPLOMATS

HEADS OF MISSIONS GUESTS

Dined With Wives at One Large Table—Musicale Follows in East Room.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—President and Mrs. Coolidge tonight gave at the White House the largest State dinner of the year, entertaining in honor of the ranking member of the Diplomatic Corps, the chiefs of missions and their wives. Because of the great size of the corps—fifty-two nations have diplomatic representatives here—the other guests were limited to the Secretary of State and Mrs. Kellogg, Senator and Mrs. Borah, and Representative Porter, Messrs. Borah and Porter heading the respective Congressional committees that deal with foreign affairs.

The guests were seated at one large table in the State dining room. They included the Belgian Ambassador and Baroness de Cartier de Marchienne, the Ambassador of Peru, the Ambassador of Mexico and Señora de Tellez, the Royal Italian Ambassador and Mme. de Martini, the German Ambassador and Baroness Maltzan, the Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Matsudaira, the Ambassador of Brazil, the Ambassador of Spain and Señora de Padilla, the Secretary of State and Mrs. Kellogg, the Minister of Portugal, the Minister of Denmark, the Minister of Uruguay and Mme. Varela, the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter, the Minister of China and Mme. Sze, the Minister of Hungary and Countess Széchényi and the Minister of Finland.

CINCINNATI WAR MEMORIAL.

A "Hill of Remembrance" Planned and First Gift of Land Made.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Dec. 16.—The Times-Star, in an article entitled "The Hill of Remembrance," says today:

'Goat Hill is to be the Hill of Remembrance. Definite steps have been taken to give effect to the vision outlined by Adolph S. Ochs, of THE NEW YORK TIMES when he was here last Summer that 'capped by a parthenon and with hanging gardens on its slopes, this memorial would be a thing of beauty and a joy forever.'

"The proposal of Mrs. Buckner Wallingford and the Municipal Art Society to make this unsightly but commanding and potentially beautiful eminence a war memorial has reached the point where plans, sketches and drawings made by the architect, Frederick W. Garber, have been submitted to Colonel Sherrill, an estimate of the cost—$800,000—has been arrived at and the first gift of land upon the hill has been announced. The gift comes from the estate of Mrs. Bellamy Storer, through her son-in-law, Count Pierre de Chambrun of France, and it is expected that donations of land from other quarters will follow.

"The site of this hill, on the west side of Reading Road, opposite Deer Creek Commons, is admirable for the project. The plans for a surmounting structure, perhaps a colonnade of Greek columns and for the landscape treatment of the hillside with terraced ways ascending it, shows a proper understanding of natural advantages and of the architectural opportunity they present.

"The project thus to create an acropolis for the Ohio Valley in memory of those who have served their country in war is of such dignity that the presence of the nation's President is indicated when the hour shall arrive to dedicate a completed task."

DEFICIT OF MUSEUM IS MET BY TRUSTEES

1927 INCOME TO BE LARGER

Fosdick and Other Bequests Will Become Available to Meet Increased Costs.

The increased costs of living and materials resulted in a deficit of $74,756 in the operating expenses of the American Museum of Natural History during the past year, which was met by the trustees at a meeting in the office of J. P. Morgan yesterday. The total income from every source, including the city maintenance fund of $410,375, was $1,020,178. The expenses were $1,094,935.

The financial situation for the coming year will be relieved by the bequest of the late Wood Fosdick, the income from a portion of which will be available in 1927, and several minor bequests will help meet the increased costs of operation.

Three Vacancies on Board.

There are three vacancies in the Board of Trustees, one caused by the death of Cleveland H. Dodge and the others by the resignations of Walter Douglas and Adrian Iselin. The nominees for these vacancies are Oliver G. Jennings, Kermit Roosevelt and James H. Perkins.

The new Honorary Fellow of the Museum, unanimously elected yesterday, was Baron de Cartier de Marchienne, Ambassador from Belgium. He will deliver one of the addresses at the Akeley memorial meeting in the main hall of the museum on Dec. 21, at 4 o'clock, at which President Henry Fairfield Osborne will preside.

President Osborne also announced $2,000,000 of new endowment since Jan. 1, 1926, including the Fosdick and Harkness bequests. When these bequests are paid $5,757,172 will be needed to increase the endowment fund to $20,000,000. This endowment will be necessary to operate the museum in all of its educational and scientific departments at full capacity, the museum now operating at only two-thirds of its capacity.

Trustees at the Meeting.

The following trustees were present at the meeting: J. P. Morgan, Chairman of the Executive Committee; Henry Fairfield Osborne, President; Childs Frick, Ogden Mills, Felix M. Warburg, Cleveland E. Dodge, George D. Pratt, Percy R. Pyne, Junius S. Morgan Jr., Clarence L. Hay, Douglas Burden and A. Hamilton Rice.

A book embodying the studies of William K. Gregory and Milo Hellman on the evolution of human teeth from the dryopithecus, showing by this means the gradual development of man from a primitive anthropoid, from which the modern anthropoids also sprang, has just been issued by the museum. It shows the relationships between man and the apes, although both have progressed so far from their common ancestor that the markings of the teeth now differ widely. Dr. Gregory yesterday described it as just one more link in the chain of evolutionary proof.

Hyman, Treasurer and a director of the institution since 1903, whereupon it was resolved to express the sentiments of the members of the board in the following minute.

It is with deepest sorrow that we have learned of the death of Samuel L. Hyman, who has most faithfully served the hospital for upward of twenty-three years.

During this period he has given freely of his time and his means to advance the interest of the hospital in every possible way; he worked unselfishly and effectively in developing the resources of the institution, was always ready to lend financial aid when this was required, and his loss will be keenly felt by us all.

For years he had devoted himself not only to the finances of the hospital, as its Treasurer, but also to the many other departments of the institution. He was an active member of the House, Dispensary, Training School and Conference Committees, and looked after every detail in connection with the work of the respective committees.

Through long years of association he had endeared himself to all, and his demise fills us with a deep sense of personal loss. The community has lost a splendid citizen, who maintained a broad interest in all work involving the relief of the poor and suffering.

To the family we extend our sincere sympathy in this great and irreparable loss.

Resolved, That the Board of Directors attend the funeral in a body on Sunday, Dec. 19, 1926, at 10 A. M., from his late residence, 233 West 83d St., and that an engrossed copy of this resolution be sent to the family of the deceased.

From the Founder's Writings

It Is the Giver Who Maketh the Gift Valuable

be it a box of candy, a bedstead, a bracelet, a bottle of perfume or a beaded necklace.

Whatever you choose will turn into a breastpin of everlasting sunshine if it arrives on Christmas Eve.

To forget and neglect and say to yourself you fully intended to do it will only add to your discomfort. When one's house is burning down it is altogether too late to think of digging a well to have water handy in case of fire.

"Christmas comes but once a year," mind you that.

With a background of over a thousand years, Spanish embroidery is deservedly high in the vogue again today. Our new collection features the first showing in America of many of the larger examples. Birds from France
Ordered by Telegraph from San Francisco are Shipped to Japan

The Wanamaker Bird Shop literally girdles the globe—not only in its quest, but in the delivery, of fine and rare birds. This particular order was for certain exquisite parakeets which a bird fancier just outside of Paris took a year to breed—with a coat of a rare new blue, instead of green!

In China the people are so fond of singing birds that the men carry them about in cages—each trying to have the best singer. Now Japan is catching the bird habit—but going after birds of particular breeding—of unusual plumage, as well as birds gifted with song.

Who Gives a Bird, gives song to cheer the whole year long

Here are gay visitors from Borneo and Madagascar, Australia, Africa and fair Cathay. There in a cage the necklaced lark beloved of the dweller in Tientsin. Here, a scarlet tanager inviting you to admire his brilliant wingings. Naughty parakeets colored like Persian poems saucily lure you. Love birds langorously coo "take us two"—they only dwell happily in pairs, and lovely they are, green or yellow.

Do you know the clarina? His trilling throaty song and his beady bright eyes would win any heart to complete subjection. He hails from Mexico tho he doesn't look it.

There are little birds—waxbills, finches, Java sparrows and, of course, ever to be adored canaries—canaries white—canaries yellow—lizard canaries wearing gold crowns, and pepper fed canaries (did you know that those glorious deep orange fellows are fed on pepper from their first peep?) Oh, the things there are to learn about birds if you love them—! And there are people here who do love them and who will tell you all about them so that you may care for them intelligently and give them with a thought of their rare qualities.

You'll learn that England breeds canaries for color; Germany for song; France for frills and furbelows, and Belgium for high shoulders. You see, there is much of interest, much of beauty and much sweet music and glittering twittering in store for you when you come to choose a singing gift to bear your happiest message to some one very dear when it is Christmas day!

Birds are priced from $5.95 each to $50 a pair—There are cages and stands too in every color and at all prices.

FUND LIFTS BURDENS FROM NEEDY HOMES

$500 GIFTS IN DAY'S LIST

MORE SCHOOLS AID CAUSE

Children Hold a Little Home Fair and Give the Proceeds to Help the Neediest.

Contributions of $15,122.28 increased the total for the Neediest Cases yesterday to $127,808.69. The fund is approximately $143,000 below last year's total of $260,996.26, which provided for [illegible] of the city's neediest cases.

One of the large contributors yesterday was Will Rogers, who sent a check for $500 with the following letter:

William Penn Hotel,
Pittsburgh.

Hundred Neediest Cases:

Enclosed find check. Would have kicked in sooner, but had to wait till I thought of that many jokes.

It's a great charity, one if not the best there is. Yours,

WILL,
Mayor of Beverly Hills, Cal.

P. S.—Chaplin, Fairbanks, Lloyd and Mix are our neediest cases there. I am going to clean the town morally when I get there.

A contribution of $500 to the neediest cases arrived yesterday from France, with the following letter:

Hotel d'Orient,
Mentone.
Dec. 6, 1926.

Hundred Neediest Cases:

I wish some of the bright sunshine here on the Riviera to penetrate into the sad homes described by you and perhaps the enclosed check for $500 may bring this about. Permit me to make this offering of love in memory of my dear son, Herbert, and believe me to be,

Very sincerely yours,
MARTHA MAINZER.

Appeal Is Heard Abroad.

This is the second contribution this year from France. Others have come from Austria, Italy, England and Honduras. Checks for the Neediest Cases have arrived from nearly all of the Eastern States. One yesterday came from Kansas and two from Ohio. On previous days contributions were received from Alabama and Texas.

"The $500 I herewith enclose for the Hundred Neediest Cases Fund," wrote George W. Ochs Oakes, "is a donation which I feel it is a privilege to make, for it seems to me there is no benevolence more judiciously dispensed; moreover, the beneficiaries receive 100 per cent. of it."

Other large contributions were $500 from Mrs. J. D. Parsons Jr, $500 from Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Chadbourne, $500 "In Memory of My Mother," $300 from Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Sumner, $250 from Mrs. Clark Kling, $250 from Joseph Stroock, $250 from Irving T. Bush and $250 from May Nichelsbury.

E. M. Statler, Miss A. M. Condit and Ellen M. Clark each gave $200. George Parmly gave $150, and the same amount was given "In Memory of S. J. Richmond."

Contributors of $100 included Burton Emmett, J. K. Anderson, Ralph Lyon, "In Memory of Jules E. Mastbaum," by M. G.; Adelaide F. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. William I. Spiegelberg, Charles E. Lord, Farr & Co., Bob and Miss Rudolph Zinsser, Roy L. De Brauwere, Mrs. S. S. Block, Mrs. T. F. Torrey, Shirley S. Lloyd, Henry M. Duys, "In Memory of Gordon Ware," William Harris Douglas, Ellen Nelson, B. E. Levy and Max Halperin.

Seventy contributions were made in memory of dear ones.

"I have always believed," wrote Irving T. Bush, "that the best charity is to help people to help themselves, and it seems to me that the work with the Hundred Neediest Cases is an outstanding example of this kind of help. I enclose my check for $250."

More School Contributions.

Port Washington, N. Y.,
Dec. 14, 1926.

Hundred Neediest Cases:

The grade schools of the Port Washington schools send the enclosed check for $30 to help the fund for the Hundred Neediest Cases. They do not have any special case in mind, as each one appears to be as deserving as another, so they ask that you apply it wherever it will be most helpful.

The boys and girls send this small donation with the sincere wish that the fund this year will permit you to accomplish even greater good than you have accomplished in the past years. With best Christmas wishes, I am,

Very truly yours,
MOLLIE C. MITCHELL.

The girls of Miss Fine's School, Princeton, N. J., who have contributed for several years, sent a check for $50 yesterday from their Community Chest to the Neediest Cases.

"For three years I have been able to send money to help the poor people," wrote Ninette Joseph of Beechhurst, L. I. "In 1924 I saved $5, last year I saved $5, and I am glad to say that this year I have been able to give $10. I have read the cases of the Hundred Neediest and I am very sorry for them. Daddy gave me some of the money for Christmas and then I read about the cases. Then I said to Daddy I wanted to give it to the poor people. So I am sending my savings bank check for $10. I am so sorry for all the poor people that I really can't tell you which one to give it to."

The following are passages from letters accompanying contributions:

J. E. H.—Please find enclosed my check for the Neediest Cases offered with gratitude for the chance of my own better fortune.

Mrs. Harry Stokes—I am enclosing a check for $5 that my children raised at a small fair in their home. They want it to be used for Helen, Case 14 and for Raggedy Ann, Case 22, with all of our best wishes for your success in this wonderful work.

D. J. Conroy, Miami, Fla.—This small contribution from the "hurricane" zone I trust will help swell the total for your wonderful work beyond last year.

Little Child Sends Aid.

Horace W. Gilmore, aged 8 years, Circleville, Ohio—I am sending $1 for the Hundred Neediest Cases Fund.

Mrs. R. Schafer, Mount Airy, N. C.—I am enclosing my check for the Hundred Neediest Cases in memory of my dear parents. I thank Heaven for the privilege and am grateful to be able to give.

D. V. W.—Not what we give, but what we share.

Anne Schuyler Ferguson—I am just a little girl of half past four and I want to send a wee bit to make some other child happier. Every Christmas of my life I have done this.

"Out of Work"—It would not seem like Christmas without the Hundred Neediest Cases. I am glad to continue with a small subscription and wish it could be more.

Katherine Thompson, Deerfield, Mass.—I am a working girl sending a check which is small, hoping it will do some good.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Swanson—Enclosed please find check for $50 to be used whenever necessary, in the name of Him who went about doing good.

Nelson Miles, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.—Please use this dollar for little Davy.

Mrs. J. F. Teichner—Giving is surely more blessed than receiving. Wish I could have the happiness of helping each of the Neediest Cases. May this mite do its bit.

Mrs. Gilbert Ridler—Again it is my privilege to help in this great work you undertake each year and enclose herewith my check for $25 to be used where you know it is needed most.

Miss M. E. White—Enclosed please find check for $10, my small contribution to some one of the Hundred Neediest Cases, preferably to the case of the aged mother of 95 years and her daughter of 65 years.

Helga Holch—I have read the One Hundred Neediest Cases in THE TIMES and I feel I could not really enjoy my Christmas unless I gave a little bit to the poor. I am terribly sorry that I cannot send more, but as I am only 12 years old, that is as much as I can give just now, but it is given with the best Christmas wishes to every one.

A Friend—I am enclosing my small donation toward the Hundred Neediest Cases and wish with all my heart it could be what I long to make it, a goodly amount. The cause is one of the noblest and finest and may it bring sunshine to many at Christmas.

Junior Stetson—This represents the savings of a small boy. Will you please use it to help some other little boy find some measure of happiness this coming year.

A.—A raw cold day like this makes us think of the many who have not steam heat and all the other comforts we take for granted. Trust this will help a little in the general fund, and I sincerely hope that this year's fund will far exceed all previous ones.

Mrs. R. V. H.—I enclose a small contribution for Case 100 and only wish I could send thousands for this splendid fund. A plan which carries families over hard places and makes them independent once more is, to my mind, the greatest of all social services. Please list this "In Memory of Herbert," and accept my thanks for giving me the opportunity to have even so small a part in this noble work.

Good Wishes For the Fund.

Miss L. S. Holcomb—Please use the enclosed check for Case 64. This is such splendid work, calling the attention of the public to these unfortunate cases. I hope the fund for this year will exceed any previous year.

Carl V. Badger, Bradford, Mass.—Kindly accept and apply my small check to some real needy case, whether it be in the 100 lot or not, hoping the returns will be sufficient to aid 1,000 or more.

Max Halperin—It gives me great pleasure to be able to enclose my check for $100 for the Neediest Cases, with every good wish for this urgent and worthy cause.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Cohn—Humanity is stirred by these great efforts to help the poor. May the enclosed check bring aid where it is needed.

Little Richards—I am sending a small check for this wonderful work. I wish I could do more for my little brothers and sisters who are in want.

J. M.—A grown-up June who knew an unusually happy childhood hopes the enclosed bit may be of service to June (Case 80).

M. O. T., Philadelphia—I have already sent you a contribution for the Neediest Cases, but I enclose another one. I am prompted to do this after hearing Dickens's "Christmas Carol" read at an entertainment last evening. If this were done generally, I think you would easily exceed last year's record.

Eugene L. Townsend—I am very glad to enclose my check for $10 to help your Hundred Neediest Cases. For some years past I have been glad to give to such a worthy cause as yours and I intend to contribute my donations annually. I hope very much that the fund will go over the top this year.

Shirley and Jane Berman—Sister and I wish to send our small contribution again this year. Sincerely hope to be able to make it much more next year.

Grade Alpha I, Ethical Culture School—Enclosed please find $5, which may help to brighten the life of some poor family. It is our earnest wish for the goal to exceed by far that of last year and that many more families will be made happy for at least another year.

L. and R. Mah Jong Fund—This $10 is from the winnings at a game of mah jong.

Two Little Boys—Please find check for $5 for this worthy cause from two little boys residing in Harrisburg.

Anonymous—Enclosed is a check in the amount of $10 to apply as needed "In Memory of My Dear Father," a former contributor to this charity.

Contributions have been received from Mrs. Samuel D. Levy, "In Loving Memory of Isaac Berg," $5, and from John H. Ball, "In Memory of Grandparents," $25. These were incorrectly acknowledged on an earlier date.

The following are cases not covered specifically by contributions:

Aid Asked for This Family, One of Many in Distress

CASE 46.—Two Child Breadwinners and Six Mouths That Must Be Fed.

It was a cold day. The visitor found the mother and five of her six children wearing their overcoats, huddling about their tiny oil stove and shivering. The $500 insurance left by the father was gone, most of it paying doctors' bills and funeral expenses. In the time that the mother had after caring for her little ones she worked feverishly, but she had been able to earn only $2 to $5 a week. Dorothy, 17, had left day school and was working in a factory for $13 a week while attending a night trade school. Julia, 16, is now earning $10 a week as an errand girl. The younger children are Elizabeth, 12; Anna, 8; Robert, 6, and 4-year-old Jimmie, who has a paralyzed foot. They cannot be fed on the earnings of the two girls. It will be a year or more before the family is independent, and until then it requires aid.

Amount needed, $700.

CASE 47.

Her Husband Is Dying and Her Son Is Paralyzed.

Victor had infantile paralysis when he was 9 months old. He is 9 years old now and is almost totally paralyzed on the left side. He has just enough control over his left foot to brace it at an odd angle as he shuffles along. He cannot play with the other boys. But Victor's future is only one of the problems of his family. His father, a machinist, is dying in a tuberculosis hospital. Donald, 7, suffered a broken arm and is just recovering. The mother, an energetic woman, has tried to provide for them by opening a candy booth with the help of a distant relative. She works night and day, but her earnings can be reckoned in pennies. As a last resort, when everything else failed, she appealed for charity.

Amount needed, $300.

CASE 62.

An Orphan Girl, Twice Homeless, Who Again Must Find a Shelter.

Her father died when Clara was 11 and her mother placed the child in an institution. Every day, as many times as she could, Clara would run to a window, hoping to see her mother come up the brick walk to visit her. For weeks she watched, but her mother never came. One day Clara found a chance to run away from the asylum. She went to the house where they had lived. There she learned that her mother was in a hospital. She hurried there and reached her mother's bedside. The woman was too sick to recognize her, and soon after she died. A family that had known Clara's father took the girl. They kept her for a long time. Misfortune befell them and they felt obliged to give her up. With aching hearts they broke the news to Clara. She went silently to her room and the next morning, when the agent of the association called, she could not keep back her tears. "They do not want me any more," she said. Clara has one more grade to finish in school. Then she can learn a trade. Shelter, food and kindness must be found for her.

Amount needed, $450.

The Father Is Helpless and the Mother Too Ill to Work for Four Children.

The younger children do not understand the change that has come over him. In place of their gay, affectionate father, there is a strange, silent figure, deeply depressed, taking no interest in anything. His eyes are covered with heavy lenses, one of them painted green. He cannot go out to work, but stays at home all day, almost helpless. He is growing worse as a victim of that baffling malady—sleeping sickness. When their father became ill, their mother would come home carrying huge bundles of clothes and would work on them day and night. But she is sick, too. Her disease causes her hands to swell so that she can no longer work. Harry, 16, is now a plumber's apprentice. He earns $11 a week and is the only breadwinner. The other children are Mollie, 11; Helen, 8, and Abie, 4 months. Relief is asked to carry this distressed household through the Winter.

Amount needed, $770.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, 114 Fifth Avenue. (Telephone Ashland 5380.)

CASE 55.

A Widow Breaks Under the Burden of Supporting Three Little Ones.

It looks like a haunted house. There is not a trace of paint on its three stories. The boards are loose, warped and colored a water-soaked gray. Fragments of the tin coping hang crookedly from the edges of the roof. Up on the third floor, under the leaky roof, behind rattling shutters, lies a little boy in a plaster cast. This is Francis, 5, the eldest child. Maude is 3 and Nicholas 1. Their mother stays with them, working on great bundles of men's clothes, which she carries to and from the factory. By unceasing toil she has managed to support her little flock during the two and a half years of her widowhood. She could not watch the children all the time. Francis got out into the street and was hit by an automobile. This anxiety, added to the heavy strain she is under, is draining her health. She will break down completely unless help comes from the outside.

Amount needed, $650.

CASE 94.

Seven Fatherless Children and a Mother Too Ill to Support Them.

One look at Nellie, 12, told the school nurse that something was wrong at home. She had dark circles under her eyes, and her little body was a bundle of skin and bones. It was found that her six sisters and brothers were equally gaunt and pathetic. Their father had just died of heart disease after a long illness during which the savings melted away. The mother was worn out trying to care for the invalid and the six children and to earn an income by sewing on buttons. They were in three rooms, two of which had no windows. Tommy, 15, has been under treatment for tuberculosis and is now attending the boat school. Nellie has asthma. The mother has a weak heart and needs rest. Contributions are asked to keep the mother and her children from being parted.

Amount needed, $720.

CASE 70.

Two Elderly Sisters, Who Are Fearful of What the Future Holds.

They are two aged sisters. Martha, 60, earns a few dollars a month by sewing at home. Agnes, 62, goes out to work, but has been able lately to earn only $19.50 a month. Martha is epileptic and recently her attacks have been occurring at the rate of one a week. The doctor attributed their frequency to her worry over the neediness of the little household and over the future. The women were comfortably provided for until two years ago, when their brother died. They had then to sell most of their belongings and move into poorer and poorer quarters. Often they have fasted a day at a time to keep expenses down. Both are in fear of what the future may have in store for them.

Amount needed, $525.

CASE 29.

Crippled, He Labors to Keep His Family Together.

Robert Frazer, 27, hobbled daily to the hospital on his artificial leg to obtain treatment for blood poisoning which threatened to make necessary the amputation of the other leg. He was completely broken and desperate. His condition roused the interest of an employe at the hospital, who found that the patient, his wife, Louise, and their two little girls were facing eviction. For days every cent they could get had been used to buy milk for the babies. Immediate help tided them over that crisis. Under treatment the father's leg is improving. Before the amputation he was a truck driver. Now he is being taught to make paper hats, the kind that are popular at cabaret parties. But the Frazers have practically no income as yet, and Polly, 3, and Peggy, 1, should have special care.

Amount needed, $600.

CASE 36.

The Father Gone, a Mother and Four Children Facing Starvation.

The mother and four children sleep in one bed, the only one they have. A fifth child is expected soon. The rent is two months overdue and the landlord has threatened to dispossess them. Mother and children are undernourished and frightened. The oldest is Fred, 8, who is in 2B. Jack is 6, and Tom is 3. Mary, 2, is a cripple from infantile paralysis and walks with difficulty, dragging a heavy iron brace. They were well treated by their father until recently, he lost his mind and disappeared. The mother must find a helping hand.

Amount needed, $1,000.

CASE 75.

Five Fatherless Children Who Are Always Having to Move.

Anna, 10, is only in the second grade, and Sally, 8, and Rose, 7, are only in the first, yet they are unusually bright children. They never have a chance to get used to their school. They are always on the move. They are dispossessed almost as soon as they get a new home. Their father died last March, leaving them penniless, and it has been a heavy struggle for them since then. In addition to the three school children, there are Bess, 4, and Edward, 2. Bess is barely recovering from diphtheria. For months they have hardly ever had a nourishing meal. The children are poorly clothed. They are all living now in three small rooms which the sun never reaches. The mother must have aid to raise her helpless brood.

Amount needed, $660.

CASE 33.

Darkness Comes Upon the Mother of Three Little Ones.

Mary was left alone with three small children—Joseph, 5; Michael, 4, and Maria, 2. She had the children cared for at a day nursery while she beaded dresses. Her eyes were not perfect and they grew steadily worse as day after day she strained her sight to follow the microscopic bead patterns. One morning she found that nothing appeared before her left eye but a deep fog. She will have to undergo an operation. Generous help now will save her from the thing that she fears most—the possibility that her children may be taken from her and placed in asylums.

Amount needed, $1,080.

CASE 59.

Two Little Boys Whose Parents Ran Away From Them.

They were two thin, white-faced little boys, frightened and crying. Emil was a mite of 6 years with blond hair and blue eyes. Don, 5 years old, was just like him, only smaller. They were alone in the world. Their father had run off; then their mother had deserted them. "Why didn't mother want us?" asked Emil, when he finally got up courage to inquire about what was happening to him and his brother. The social worker could not give a satisfactory answer. Don stutters, but after several trials he asked, "Where did father go?" There was no answer to that, either. Both children must have prolonged treatment and care.

Amount needed, $600.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Dec. 16.—I see where Governor Hard Surface Road Len Small appointed this fellow Smith to go to the Senate now. He was not supposed to be thrown out of there till next session. It looks like a wise move to get the verdict six months in advance and put everybody out of their misery. Seat 'em! Cheap Senators never got a country anywhere.

TRI-BOROUGH BRIDGE COMES UP MONDAY

Goldman to Tell of Plan Which Then Goes to Berry for Opinion on Financing.

WALKER FOR BOND ISSUE

If Private Capital Is Justifiable for Interstate Span, He Feels, It Is for This One—Also Backs Tolls.

Mayor Walker announced last night that Albert Goldman, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, would present to the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate on Monday a plan for the proposed tri-borough bridge to connect Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens, on which $50,000 has been already expended in making borings. The plan will then be referred to Controller Charles W. Berry, the Mayor said, to determine whether the city has available financial resources for the project.

The cost of the proposed bridge, which will be a "Y" shaped structure, is estimated at $50,000,000. Should the Controller report on the ground of lack of funds adversely, the project will be referred to the Mayor's City Plan and Survey Committee, an unofficial body of citizens appointed by Mayor Walker, for a report on a method of financing.

Meanwhile Mayor Walker will seek a solution of the question of the policy of financing tunnels or bridges needed to relieve East River traffic congestion and the need for a traffic link between Richmond and Brooklyn.

The City Plan and Survey Committee will also be asked to report on the suggestion of Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee for a separate Bridge and Tunnel Authority with powers subject to the Board of Estimate.

Although Mayor Walker was empowered by the Board of Estimate a week ago to appoint a special committee of the Board of Estimate to study the traffic problem between boroughs separated by the East River, he is not ready to announce his committee and may leave the study of the whole problem to the City Plan and Survey Committee.

The Mayor said last night he had been studying the problem of traffic relief on the Queensboro and other East River bridges. If it be a good thing for the neighboring States of New York and New Jersey to finance jointly a huge Hudson River bridge, which will be of tremendous benefit to that neighboring State, as well as to New York City, he has been unable to find any good reason, he said, why it would not be desirable to link effectively the sister boroughs of the city, even though it involved the issue of bonds and future toll charges, as in the case of the Hudson River bridge project.

The Mayor's idea is that a resort to private capital, with bridge tolls to defray the interest and amortization charges on the bonds, was even more justifiable from the city's point of view for easing communication between boroughs, than a resort to like measures in the interest of an interState bridge. The Mayor believes that thousands of car owners would gladly pay a reasonable toll to assure a prompt crossing on new East River bridges rather than be subject to the delays now common on the Queensboro span.

He cited the fact also that thousands of tourists willingly pay the toll to cross the Bear Mountain Bridge rather than continue driving along the familiar east side of the Hudson.

IDENTIFY SUICIDE AS BANDIT POLLASTRO

Italian Police View Body of the Fugitive Who Shot Himself in France.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 16.—The Italian who shot himself when he was discovered riding the rods of a French train two days ago was positively identified by Italian police who came to see his body today as the bandit Pollastro, whose murderous feats close to the French border nearly precipitated an international quarrel last week.

The man who was accused of murdering ten persons, nearly all of whom were Italian policemen, was penniless when he escaped to France and took the Marseilles-Paris train. When the ticket collector came around he said a friend in the next coach had his ticket and was told to get it. He disappeared and later was discovered astride a buffer between two cars. When the train stopped at Nuits-sous-Ravières French police tried to arrest him but he fired a bullet through his head, dying almost instantly.

Today an Italian police sergeant and one of his men saw the body and recognized it as that of Pollastro. How he escaped from Italy is not known, but it is recalled that belief that one of his confederates was aboard the Ventimiglia-Menton train a few days ago sent Italian police hurrying into France on a locomotive and an automobile, and avoiding a diplomatic incident by the technicality of not getting out of the vehicles onto French soil.

MAYOR HEADS BOARD ON BUREAU MERGERS

Will Conduct Inquiry in Move for the Reorganization of the City Departments.

WIDE POWERS ARE GRANTED

Berry and McKee to Aid Survey and Recommend Changes to Save Money.

TO ALTER PENSION SYSTEMS

Controller Named by Estimate Board to Put Them on More Scientific Basis.

Mayor Walker, Controller Berry and Aldermanic President McKee were designated yesterday as a special committee of the Board of Estimate to investigate all branches of municipal activities with a view of recommending such reorganization and consolidation of city departments and bureaus as may effect economies of administration and prevent overlapping and duplication of effort. The resolution directing such an inquiry was unanimously adopted by the board.

The proposed reorganization is expected to affect not only the bureaus and departments directly under City Hall, but also in all of the five boroughs where there might be duplication of effort in any of the city's work.

Under authority of a second resolution, the Mayor appointed Controller Berry a committee of one to make a comprehensive survey of the various municipal pension systems with a view of placing them upon a more modern and scientific basis.

The resolution directed toward a reorganization of the city departments follows:

Resolved, that a committee of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment be and the same hereby is constituted to investigate the organization of the City Government for the purpose of making recommendations for amendment to or revision of the city charter. Such committee shall consist of the Mayor, the President of the Board of Aldermen and Controller. Such committee may employ a secretary and such stenographic and clerical assistance as may be necessary.

Wide Powers for Committee.

Such committee shall examine the provisions of the Greater New York Charter and of such special statutes as pertain to the City of New York, shall investigate the powers, duties and functions of the various departments of the city and of all branches of the City Government, shall make suggestions for elimination of duplication of powers, duties and municipal service, for the reorganization and consolidation of the various departments and bureaus in the City Government and for the simplification of governmental activities in the city.

Such committee shall recommend such amendments to the Greater New York Charter and other laws pertaining to the city or such revision thereof or other changes therein as may be necessary to carry out its suggestions.

Such committee shall report from time to time to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, or to a Charter Commission of the city if any be established pursuant to the City Home Rule law, or to the State Legislature, or to such other public authority as the Board of Estimate and Apportionment may direct.

Such committee may take and hear proofs and testimony, subpoena and compel the attendance of city officers and employes and other witnesses, compel the production of books, papers, records and documents, and otherwise have all the powers of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for the purpose of taking proof and testimony as is prescribed by law.

In anticipation of the proposed consolidation survey, Commissioner of Accounts Joseph A. Warren, as Secretary of the Committee on City Plan and Survey, recently circulated a questionnaire among the more than 100,000 municipal employes designed to get data for the Board of Estimate committee to aid it in its work. The questionnaires inquired as to the detailed duties of each officeholder.

To Study Pension Systems.

In appointing Controller Berry to conduct the survey for the placing of the pension system on a scientific basis, the Board of Estimate empowered him to engage whatever actuarial or clerical assistance might be necessary. He was directed to make a complete study of all the pension funds and systems and to make recommendations for the necessary legislation to place them on a more scientific basis. It has been the contention of city officials for many years that most of these pension systems are on an unsound actuarial basis.

The introduction of the resolution calling for the pension reform was prompted by an item before the Board of Estimate yesterday which required the transfer of funds amounting to $6,000 to make up a deficit in the Health Department pension system.

Mayor Walker said the Controller should make a study of each separate pension system. "The city," the Mayor said, "should have a more understandable, durable and equitable pension system rather than the many piecemeal funds which were established in the past. The chief object we want to attain is the establishment of a uniform system."

Controller Berry and other public officials have criticized the methods by which the pension funds were conducted and have urged reform. The Controller has sounded a warning on several occasions that dependents upon these various pension funds might suffer loss of their allowances if the present unscientific methods were continued.

The major pension systems are the New York City Employes' Retirement System, the Teachers' Retirement System, and like organizations in the police, fire, street cleaning and health departments.

Urged to Settle Typographical Row.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 16 (AP).—Federal Judge Robert C. Baltzell here today advised the contending factions within the Executive Council of the International Typographical Union to follow the procedure contemplated in the by-laws of the union to settle the proposal for restricted voting rights for mailer members. The Court gave attorneys for the mailers, who are seeking an injunction against a referendum vote on the proposed restrictions, and for Charles P. Howard, President of the Typographical Union, until tomorrow to agree on a method of procedure.

GOVERNMENT BEGINS TICKET 'TRUST' SUIT

28 DEFENDANTS ARE NAMED

Virtual Monopoly on Manufacture in Country, Division of Business and Price-Fixing Are Charged.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—First steps to break an alleged virtual monopoly in the manufacture and distribution of theatre tickets were taken by the Department of Justice today when it began civil proceedings for an injunction under the Sherman law against the American Amusement Ticket Manufacturers Association and twenty-seven other defendants. The suit was begun in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

The petition charges that the combined production and sales of the accused corporations represent about 85 per cent. of all the amusement tickets manufactured, sold and used in the United States, that the defendants have assigned and allotted buyers of tickets to one another to be held as exclusive customers, and have agreed that no one of them will sell tickets to a customer assigned to another at prices less than those charged by the ticket corporation to whom he has been assigned.

The Government charges further that the defendants have exchanged information with regard to sales and prices through the medium of the American Amusement Ticket Manufacturers Association at its headquarters in Washington in order to effectuate and enable them to observe the alleged agreements. The Government seeks to break up this alleged practice.

The Court is asked to decree that the defendants are engaged in a "combination and conspiracy" in restraint of interstate trade in amusement tickets, and to enjoin them from further engaging in such combination and particularly from further agreeing with regard to the assignment and allotment of customers and prices, terms and conditions of sale.

13 Corporations, 14 People Named.

The defendants include thirteen corporations engaged in manufacturing amusement tickets in Pennsylvania, Illinois, New York, California, New Jersey, Nebraska, Massachusetts and Arkansas, and fourteen individuals, each affiliated with one of the corporations, which latter are the Globe Ticket Company, Philadelphia; Ansel Ticket Company, Chicago; Arcus Ticket Company, Chicago; Automatic Ticket Register Corporation, New York; Columbia Printing Company, Chicago; Elliott Ticket Company, New York; Hancock Bros., San Francisco; International Ticket Company, Newark; Rees Ticket Company, Omaha; Simplex Ticket Company, Chicago; Trimount Press, Boston; Waldon, Williams & Lick, Fort Smith, Arkansas, and the World Ticket and Supply Company, New York.

The individual defendants include Edgar S. Bowman of New York, Treasurer of the Automatic Ticket Register Corporation; Clifford Elliot of Scarsdale, N. Y., Secretary of the Elliot Ticket Company; Charles Manshel of Newark, President of the International Ticket Company; E. L. Gosnell of Rochester of the Specialty Printing Company and J. C. Enslen of New York, President of the World Ticket and Supply Company.

All are alleged to be engaged in interstate trade in amusement tickets, and the Government charges that for the past three years the defendants were engaged at and within the District of Columbia in the alleged "combination and conspiracy." It is charged that the defendants organized and maintained the American Amusement Ticket Manufacturers Association, that they are members of it and made agreements in violation of law.

Illegal Restraint Is Denied.

J. C. Enslen of 240 West Seventy-fifth Street, a defendant in the suit against the ticket manufacturers, last night denied the Government's charge that the association had been guilty of illegal restraint of trade and price-fixing.

"Since 1926," he declared, "prices of theatre tickets have fallen from 24 cents a thousand to 20 cents, and for large quantities to 16 cents a thousand. This reduction has been the result of free and fair competition."

Mr. Enslen, who is President of the World Ticket and Supply Company, 1,609 Broadway, said that the annual sales of the members of the association totaled $10,000,000, which constituted a majority of the business done in the industry.

TOLLEFSON TRIO'S RECITAL.

Well-Known Organization Wins Deserved Applause.

The Tollefsen Trio, composed of Augusta Tollefsen, pianist; Carl H. Tollefsen, violinist, and Paulo Gruppe, 'cellist, gave a chamber-music recital at Town Hall last evening. The trios on the printed program were by Wolf-Ferrari, Niels Gade and Gretchaninov, but a Beethoven trio, Opus 1, No. 3, was interpolated between the last two, as yesterday was the anniversary of Beethoven's birth, which occurred in 1770.

The Tollefsen Trio, which has been in existence for twenty years, showed the result of its long collaboration in its flexible and sensitive ensemble. Each of the musicians is a solo-artist, but they played together with devotion and mutual understanding. The trio by Wolf-Ferrari labeled Opus 5, shows his early kinship with the theatre. It is rich in color and generous in its melodies; there is not a moment of discord or harshness. The first allegro was particularly melodious; the presto, a gay and joyous contrast. The larghetto was not so interesting, but the final allegro, with suggestions of dance rhythms, was the most modern, the least consistent, of the four movements. The executants played with unflagging vigor and sympathy, and were recalled twice.

The next number, the "Novelleten," Opus 29, by Niels Gade, was an interesting and beautiful example of that composer's workmanship. He too had the gift of melody, but of quite a different order. His was lyric, and tender. His instrumentation was orderly, well balanced and perfectly proportional. The Tollefsen Trio brought out these qualities with technical and interpretive skill. The andantino and the larghetto, with their touching melodies, called forth special demonstrations of satisfaction.

It was at this point that Mr. Tollefsen announced the inclusion of two movements of the Beethoven trio, the "Theme and Variations" and the "Minuet." The first gave one a sense of comfort and solace; the second dissipated that impression. The trio of Gretchaninov, which ended the concert, brought the note of fire and passion, of intensity and prodigal melodic invention; it created a feeling of ecstasy. The musicians excelled themselves in this fine piece, producing a corresponding enthusiasm in an audience which had been prodigal of its applause.

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

Mme. Schumann-Heink Honored.

The audience that filled Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon and evening to listen to a Wagner program by the New York Symphony Society assembled to enjoy the music and to honor two distinguished musicians of long and fruitful record in their procession. These were Walter Damrosch, conductor of the New York Symphony, whose retirement from that position at the end of this season had been announced twenty-four hours previous, and Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, soloist yesterday, now celebrating by a concert tour her golden jubilee as one of the greatest singers of her generation.

There were ceremonies customary on such occasions. There was something else—something of the glowing enthusiasm which is commonly accredited to youth, and often possessed in a superlative degree by those of maturer experience and the spirit of great art. A program of music by Wagner was the fitting observance. Mr. Damrosch has been a leading factor in the introduction and popularization of his music in America, and was his exponent at a time when Wagner was not commonly accepted as he is today. Mme. Schumann-Heink's first season at the Metropolitan was made notable by several of her Wagnerian impersonations, and she carries the traditions of her rôles, as few living singers do, in head and heart. Moreover, these two artists have time and again collaborated in Wagnerian performances; memories must have crowded thick and fast upon them as they stood side by side on the stage.

The ceremonies took the form of the presentation of a jeweled brooch to Mme. Schumann-Heink from the directors of the Symphony Society, Harry Harkness Flagler, President of the society making the presentation speech. The audience stood up to welcome Dr. Damrosch and Mme. Schumann-Heink when they appeared, and remained standing during Mr. Flagler's address. Mme. Schumann-Heink was given a "tusch" by the orchestra when she appeared to reply. Every one bent forward to hear her words, which were those of thanks and acknowledgment, and touched with the informality and humor which gains her so quick a response from her audiences.

Mme. Schumann-Heink sang the Erda scene, the warning to Wotan, from the third act of "Rheingold," and most of Waltraute's Narrative from "Die Götterdämmerung." She sang those passages with the most impressive feeling and an employment of the voice which her colleagues, young or old, may well envy her. The voice had of course to be used with special care, but there are not many contraltos now singing Wagner who achieve such an artistic impression, remaining at the same time so well within their resources. Only in the Waltraute music was there the passing evidence of effort. If any one had expected to witness a memorial service, they were corrected long before Mme. Schumann-Heink had ended. Her tone was warm and vivid with feeling, it sustained phrases with a masterly observance of line and the import of the text. How much she achieved with her material! How potent was the coloring of the voice and the epic spirit that infused it!

Mr. Damrosch accompanied Mme. Schumann-Heink with care and admirable discretion. He also conducted performances of the Bacchanale from Act 1 of "Tannhäuser," the Entrance into Walhalla from "Rheingold," Siegfried's Rhine Journey and his own excellently contrived excerpts from the last act of "Tristan and Isolde." They include the introduction with the English horn solo, the madly exultant passage which follows the arrival of Isolde, and the "Love-Death." Of these performances, that of the "Rheingold" music and of the "Tristan" excerpts were particularly eloquent. Throughout the concert there was felt the afflatus of Wagner's music and of those who were privileged to be young and inspired in its propaganda when it was still a new and revolutionary thing. Mr. Damrosch's love for his art was audible and visible; his sincerity and devotion to his task were the qualities which have brought him esteem and honor these many years, and worked for the advancement of his cause.

The following is Mr. Flagler's speech of presentation to Mme. Schumann-Heink:

"My Dear Mme. Schumann-Heink:

"You are celebrating this year the fiftieth anniversary of your first appearance on the concert stage by a golden jubile which is carrying you through the length and breadth of this land.

"Everywhere grateful hearts again respond to the magic of your voice and art, but New York claims a special pride in this noteworthy year, in that it was the scene of your early triumphs in the operatic world.

"Those of us who were fortunate enough to hear the great Wagnerian performances of the early years of 1900 at the Metropolitan Opera House can never forget the wonderful impersonations which you called into being. Your Ortrud, Frieka, Bragone, Waltraute, Erda, a gallery of operatic portraiture which quickly became, and remained, the standard one.

"Today you return to us in the splendor of your matured art to renew the joys of the past, and to give to the younger generation an example of singing and interpretation in the truly grand style.

"The Symphony Society has had evidence in the past of your generous and warmhearted interest in its welfare, and today it is again honored by your appearance at this concert.

"On behalf of its officers and directors, I have the pleasure of presenting to you this brooch, in token of their gratitude and affectionate admiration, with the hope that for a long time to come the world may be made happier and better by your beautiful art."

The Philharmonic Society.

There was a first performance in New York of Carol Szymanowski's Third Symphony, called, "The Song of the Night," at the concert given by the New York Philharmonic Society, Willem Mengelberg conductor, last evening in Carnegie Hall. The symphony is in effect a hymn to the night. It is a setting for enormous modern orchestra and — originally — chorus, with solo tenor, of verses by the Sufic poet of Persia, usually known as Jalaluddin. The poem is an apostrophe to the midnight skies, at first mysterious, then sensuous, exultant, mystical in tone. The version employed last night dispensed, with the composer's approval, with the chorus. The solo tenor part was taken by Lauritz Melchior, the Wagnerian tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

There need be no question of the sincerity of Mr. Szymanowski in writing this music—and we are among those who hold that sincerity is after all an important matter in musical composition. But the symphony, or symphonic poem, as originally it was called, seems to be a terrible amount of ado with little or nothing accomplished. Salient or convincing ideas fail to appear. There are orchestral mutterings and outbursts; there is elaborate fuss and now and again a harmonic or instrumental effect suggestive, perhaps, of the mystery of night and the whirling galaxies of the skies. But the mood is seldom accomplished, and then for no length of time. The music is in places very noisy and much influenced by Scriabin. Also, there was once a composer who wrote a tone poem "Zarathustra." Zarathustra's night song seemed to be present in spirit if not in exact notation in Mr. Szymanowski's score.

The performance of a hitherto unknown work was probably a very adequate one. Certain it was, and very evident, that Mr. Mengelberg had omitted no effort to do the composer justice. Mr. Melchior had to shout at the top of his voice to sound through the orchestra. He sang the notes, which are very difficult and surely ungrateful for a singer, and that was much, under the circumstances. It must be added that later, in the performance of Siegfried's sword song, Mr. Melchoir also sang very loudly, with metallic effect in his upper tones. This did not add to the natural beauty and expressive quality of his vocal organ. His singing was spirited and the interpretation in the character of the part. The voice should have been used more respectfully.

The orchestral pieces were Glinka's overture to his opera, "Russlan and Ludmilla," and two Wagner excerpts. The performance of the "Lohengrin" prelude was somewhat dragging and heavy-handed. But Mr. Mengelberg did capitally with the lively overture of Glinka. It has little in common with the more significant pages of the opera, but it is excellent Russian music of the type that Germans might call "lutspiel"—not particularly distinguished, not redolent of the Russian soil, not prophetic of the Russian school to follow Glinka, but a stirring overture for a show in the theatre, treated as such by Mr. Mengelberg and his men, and enthusiastically applauded by the audience. The end of the concert came with the prelude to "Die Meistersinger."

ROXY CIRCUIT PLANS CHAIN OF THEATRES

Roxy Theatre and Roxy Mansion Will Be Nucleus of Film Houses in Metropolitan Area.

Formation of the Roxy Circuit, Inc., capitalized at $150,000,000, for the erection of a chain of motion-picture theatres in Greater New York, was announced yesterday by Herbert Lubin, President of the new company. A charter was filed on Wednesday by the United States Corporation at Dover, Del., according to the statement by Mr. Lubin, who said the incorporators are Richard Bennett Jr., C. C. Winters and Peter G. Brennan, all of Brooklyn.

The Roxy Circuit has acquired control of the Roxy Theatre, now nearing completion on Fiftieth and Fifty-first Streets, near Seventh Avenue, and also the site at Lexington Avenue, Fifty-eighth to Fifty-ninth Streets, where the construction of the new Roxy Mansion will commence shortly. All the proposed theatres will be under the direction of Samuel L. Rothafel, known throughout the motion-picture world as "Roxy."

Roxy will be Director General of the new enterprise, and William E. Atkinson, formerly Vice President and General Manager of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures Corporation, will be General Manager. Walter W. Ahlschlager of Chicago, who is responsible for the Roxy Theatre, will build all the theatres under Roxy's control.

When asked last night regarding current reports that the Roxy Theatres would be amalgamated with existing chains in the metropolitan district, Mr. Lubin said: "While at the present time these reports can only be regarded as advance rumors, it is not impossible that such a plan may be effected."

There is a general unrest among the independent theatre owners today, Mr. Lubin said. Emphasizing the need of theatres to keep pace with the progress of the motion picture itself, he said:

"There are approximately 20,000 motion picture theatres in the United States, of which only about 2,000 have seating capacities of over 1,000 seats. There are only 1,000 theatres which are modern houses and about 100 are up-to-date theatres in respect to cooling, ventilating and heating systems, etc. As far as adequate presentation of programs is concerned the lack is appalling throughout the country. It is not necessary to leave New York City in order to ascertain that scarcely a single theatre in New York City, with the exception of those in the downtown section, makes any attempt at adequate presentation even to the extent of having a first-class orchestra.

"We are now working on plans that we hope will meet the situation as it exists particularly in Greater New York."

NEW THEATRE THE MASQUE.

Name Chosen for Third of Chanin Houses Now Going Up.

The third of the three playhouses now being built by Chanin Theatres, Inc., in Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth Streets, will be known as the Theatre Masque. It will be the smallest of the three, seating about 800 persons, and is designed primarily as an experimental house. It will be in West Forty-fifth Street. Adjoining it on the east will be the Royale, another Chanin house. On the west, at Eighth Avenue, will be the Chanins' twenty-eight-story Lincoln Hotel. The third of the Chanin houses, to be called the Majestic, will be in Forty-fourth Street, adjoining the Broadhurst Theatre.

All of these buildings are now under construction. It is hoped to open the Theatre Masque before the end of January. The first attraction, as already announced, will be "Puppets and Passion," a play from the Italian.

MARILYN MILLER ILL.

Mary Eaton to Take Title Role in "Sunny" at Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16.—Owing to the serious illness of Marilyn Miller in New York, the title rôle in "Sunny," opening at the Forrest Theatre next Monday for a three weeks' return engagement, will be played by Mary Eaton, formerly co-starred in "Kid Boots" with Eddie Cantor and with Leon Errol in "Sally."

Miss Eaton is to appear in a new production under the management of Charles Dillingham in a few weeks, but has consented to play in "Sunny," a rôle in which she has previously appeared, for the Philadelphia engagement.

"Sunny" had its original presentation here nearly two years ago, before going to New York.

Miss Miller could not be reached at her home last night for verification of the report of her illness. She appeared as usual in "Sunny" last week at the New Amsterdam Theatre, where the piece ended its run on Saturday night, but was known to have been desirous of obtaining a longer vacation than the single week permitted by the reopening of the show next Monday.

After the Philadelphia engagement "Sunny" is booked for Boston. It is not believed that Miss Eaton will be available for long, since the new production in which she is to appear is to open in about a month. Both this production and "Sunny" are under the management of Mr. Dillingham.

4,000 Hear "Die Meistersinger."

Curt Taucher sang the Prize Song in Wagner's heroic comedy, "Die Meistersinger," at that opera's third hearing of the season at the Metropolitan last night. Mmes. Easton and Howard Messrs. Whitehill, Meader, Schützendorf, Bender and Tibbett reappeared, and Mr. Bodanzky conducted. There was an audience of nearly 4,000 capacity for the remarkable work, which held the stage from 7:30 o'clock until close on midnight. Mr. Setti's chorus and Mr. von Wymetal's stage mob again gave a good account of themselves in the most notable of Wagnerian ensembles.

Want Cars for Crippled Children.

There will be a special performance at the Paramount Theatre on Monday for the crippled poor children of New York schools and hospitals. Those in charge of the affair are facing the problem of how to transport the many helpless children to and from the theatre. The committee made an appeal yesterday to persons having automobiles who will volunteer the services of their driver and car for two hours Monday morning. They are asked to telephone Evelyn Goldsmith, at the Hotel Majestic.

THE PLAY

By J. BROOKS ATKINSON.

Mack and Byrne.

HANGMAN'S HOUSE, a dramatization of Donn Byrne's novel of the same name, in four acts, by Willard Mack. Settings by Louis Kennell; staged by William A. Brady ...; produced by Mr. Brady Jr. and Dwight Deere Wiman. At the Forrest Theatre.

Irish romance was rather frost-bitten last evening along Broadway when "Hangman's House" was revealed at the Forrest Theatre. After writing most of the other plays in town Willard Mack has knocked this piece together in his spare time, using Donn Byrne's novel of the same title for his lumber yard. For nearly three acts the play spoke lyrically of love, Ireland and other romantic concepts. Then for a few ludicrous moments it surrendered to a horse race.

"I'll ride the bairn!" exclaimed the noble hero nobly, and like a flash he reappeared on the stage in a jockey's flaring uniform. It was for a lady's honor; he looked grim enough to chew tacks. In the meantime there had been a fine show of proud, blooded stock, tossing their heads nervously, stamping their feet and threatening to propel parts of the scenery in the general direction of the audience. After a quick change of setting the horse race was on! Two passionate steeds, mounted by jockeys as light as thistledown, were assaulting the treadmill backstage; and in the foreground, one sportive animal gracefully cleared an obstacle as high as a croquet wicket. Wel, Dermot McDermot of Dermotstown, who had promised his sweet mother never to ride another steeplechase, won the race by five lengths; and became touchier about a woman's honor than ever before in his life. While a light cloud was crossing the moon, the girl of his dreams confessed that she had never been a wife to her husband, and didn't like the drunken old blighter anyway. In the next scene the retchid critter committed suicide.

Every one in the audience, as well as the authors of the play, knew that she should never have married the miserable cad, the blackguard, the infernal old rapscallion. If she had not, there would be no need of going into the matter here. Obeying her father's last wish she married him without knowing the truth about his foul past. Even then the play might have been considerably curtailed, for "Citizen" Hogan, who knew his past, was on his trail, first disguised as a monk and later as a crippled beggar, and always hovering like a sinister threat in the background. He had several splendid opportunities to shoot the villain during the play—or to shoot almost anybody else within range. But like a well-bred character of the drama he waited until the last act, when he came near getting shot himself. Only a scratch. He will recover. The villain, thank God, is dead.

For the expression of all this balderdash several good actors are employed. As Lord Chief Justice O'Brien, the sinister "hangman" of Ireland, Mr. Kilgour gives a notably fine-grained performance, dignified and authoritative. Miss Alexander looks radiant as Connaught O'Brien, whose lamentable misfortunes never dim the sparkle in her eyes. Mr. Abel is very lugubrious about love and honor as Dermot McDermot. Mr. Kennedy impersonates the Irish brogue and temperament whenever there is time. Others introduce local color at the race track.

'THE DYBBUK' REVIVED IN GRAND STREET

Neighborhood Playhouse's Production Given With Few Changes in Leading Roles.

THE DYBBUK (English version), a play in three acts by Ansky, adapted from the Habima production by Henry G. Alsberg. Directed by Alice Lewisohn; settings and costumes by Aline Bernstein; revived by the Neighborhood Players. At the Neighborhood Playhouse.

In order that the part of the town lying below Fourteenth Street might not be without its own version of "The Dybbuk," a revival of the production made in English at the Neighborhood Playhouse a year ago was presented there last night. This production, according to the program, was adapted from the Habima presentation, which also is now being shown in New York, and it, as all "The Dybbuk's" followers are aware, was directed in considerable part by David Vardi, an alumnus of the Moscow Theatre group.

Of chief interest in the revival was the performance of Betty Linley, who has succeeded to the Mary Ellis rôle. To one who did not see Miss Ellis in the part and therefore had no preconceptions whatsoever, Miss Linley left something to be desired in the earlier scenes, but in the last act when the "dybbuk" is in possession of her being and speaks through her she was excellent.

There have been few changes in the leading rôles, and there still are telling performances by Edgar Kent as Rabbi Aesrael, Dorothy Sands as Leah's foster mother and several others. "The Dybbuk" as acted in Grand Street remains a colorful, exotic and strangely haunting evening in a theatre far removed from the Broadway variety.

It has a somber and eerie beauty, and in its group scenes, woven in a deep, rich pattern, the racial, religious and folk emotions are given eloquent and impressive expression. And no matter how it compares with the presentation at the Mansfield this "Dybbuk" has the advantage for some members of the audience of being in a language that they can understand.

SOREL AT HER BEST IN "L'AVENTURIERE"

Talents of Comedie Francaise Actors Are Excellently Displayed in Augier's Comedy.

L'AVENTURIERE, a comedy in four acts, by Emile Augier. Presented in French at the Cosmopolitan Theatre.

Dora Clorinde	Cecile Sorel
Monte Prade	Louis Ravet
Fabrice	Rolla Norman
Cecile	Paulette Noizeux
Horace	Marc Darnault
Dario	Guy Favieres
Un Valet	M. Dapoigny
Don Annibal	G. de Sax

Fifth in the program of plays presented by Cécile Sorel and her company at the Cosmopolitan Theatre is "L'Aventurière," enjoyed last night by admirers of the Comédie Française and its mature traditions. Mme. Sorel showed wisdom in including Augier's play, old-fashioned though it is, for it gives her a part which calls forth the best power she possesses. It is in addition an excellent means of displaying the ability of other members of her company, and on its own account gives much contrast and dramatic clash.

Its superb disregard of reality, the probabilities and common sense is magnified by the production. There is no nonsensical attempt to gloss over its artificiality. On the contrary, all the make-believe is turned into a beautiful asset. So it emerges a racy, sweet-smelling, beguiling valentine. Never does it come near to touching a deep emotion, but it never bores. There is much emotional acting, but even in her most despairing moments the courtesan remains herself, at once calculating and reckless, with a disdain for the event that keeps her—and the audience—from suffering too much over her misfortunes.

The story will be remembered by those who saw the production when Mme. Sorel and her company were here before. She is still the astute, charming, volatile adventuress. Louis Ravet is again the harassed old gentleman from Padua whom she has ensnared. He is delightfully pompous with his daughter, who tries by fair means or foul to dislodge his inamorata; suitably melting and tender with that fair villainess; not inconsolably heart-broken when the plotting of his children finally results in her departure.

The other members of the cast are appropriately defiant of the restraints of realism. Rolla Norman is dramatically purposeful, vigorous, determined in every line and gesture meaning ruin for the lovely lady. But even when he denounces her openly, he does not approach the complacent moralities shot at her by the young daughter of the house. Perhaps his sex is against him; the perfect reproach for the adventuress must come from a woman.

An ingratiating piece of comedy is performed by G. de Sax, who plays Madame's young brother. The program does not specify their respective ages, but there can be no question about the matter. No one but a young brother could make such a comic nuisance of himself, letting cats out of bags as fast as he could speak. The audience took him to its heart when he drank, actually swallowed, two entire bottles of rosy liquid. Glass by glass it disappeared, while murmurs of wonder and approval rose. When the eighth glass was filled and raised there were whispered bets that he would never down it, and when he did a sigh of mingled horror and admiration filled the house.

The décors and costumes are proper to the play. Gentlemen in violet doublet and hose or elegant black, according to their age and station, and ladies in basques and wonderfully draped overskirts suit its spirit. They wave their arms, stamp their feet, grimace and breathe hard in the best manner of the period. When Madame enters, gracious, smiling, head tipped back and hands fluttering, they cease, as they should. Her gowns rattle with pearls as her arms do with bracelets. She is the centre, the bright light, the flashing color.

Tonight and tomorrow night "Maitresse de Roi" will be given. The Saturday matinee will be "La Dame aux Camélias."

Opera Violinist Weds Chorus Girl.

Gualtiero U. Gastelli, a violinist in the orchestra of the Metropolitan Opera Company, was married to Dorina Desana, a member of the chorus, yesterday at the Marriage License Bureau. The bridegroom gave his age as 36 years and the bride gave hers as 30. The ceremony was performed by Deputy Clerk J. J. McCormick.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Say It With Flowers," announced for midnight performances at the Garrick, has closed.

Announcement is made that "The Strange Prince," recently acted for a single matinee at the Booth, will be seen at regular evening performances in about two weeks.

Irene Franklin and Jerry Jarnagin are returning to New York on the Paris, due next Monday.

Elizabeth Mears, daughter of John Henry Mears, will have a rôle in "Judy," which her father is producing.

It is announced that B. M. Kaye, author of "She Couldn't Say No," is associated with Paul Moss, Inc., as lessee of the Klaw Theatre. They will take over the theatre on Jan. 12.

Etiénne Girardot is a late addition to the cast of "Mayfair," opening in Newark next Monday.

Outsider Captures the Feature Race at New Orleans as Favorites Tumble.

OTHER LONG SHOTS SCORE

Shasta Irish, Blackstone and Sleepy Head Finish First Over a Heavy Track.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 16.—Seven claiming races made up the card at Jefferson Park this afternoon, and while good fields went to the post class was lacking. The weather was cold and the racing course remained heavy. It was a day of long shots, Shasta Irish paying $181 for $2 in the opener, while two others paid better than $50 in the mutuels. Only two favorites won and at short prices. Finnerty scored a double, winning on Myra G. in the fourth and with Harbor in the sixth.

The named event was the Catahoula Purse, a gallop of a mile and a sixteenth for three-year-olds and upward, and the winner, Mrs. W. J. Potter's Polvo, was one of the long shots. This five-year-old son of Sweep and First Peep, which hadn't looked like winning in any of his three starts here, suddenly came to life to beat five others and paid his backers $53 for each $2 investment.

Comes Through on Rail.

Polvo was the rank outsider of the lot and might not have won if D. Smith had not used bad judgment in his ride on George De Mar, the even-money favorite, which finished a length and a half back of Polvo. Whitacre, despite the heavier going, slipped Polvo through on the rail and saved ground, while George De Mar, after being taken back, went up on the extreme outside and lost a lot of ground.

To such as had a bet on G. E. Chopin's Shasta Irish the day opened with a bang. The race was for maidens of all ages at six furlongs and Shasta Irish was the rank outsider in a field of twelve, never having been even in the money in her many starts. This miss is a slow beginner, and didn't really get going until the race was nearly over, when she caught Keystone State tiring and got up to win by half a length. Basket Picnic carried most of the money and finished tenth.

Favorites Out of Money.

Another long shot scored when J. I. Smith's four-year-old colt Blackstone beat eleven others in the claiming dash at six furlongs and paid $20.20 for $2. It was another blow to the form players, as E. H. Von Roenn's gelding Hats Up, the favorite, quit badly after showing the way in the early part of the race and finished out of the money.

It was the same story in the claiming race at a mile and seventy yards, in which the favorite, the Four Oaks Stock Farm's Sea Court, finished fourth in a field of eleven. The winner was also a long shot, B. Gentry's Sleepy Head paying $17.60 for each $2 ticket. Northern Star was the early pacemaker and established a good lead early. Sleepy Head was off slowly, but began to run around the far turn, took Northern Star's measure and won by a length and a half in a driving finish.

JOCKEY McATEE UNSIGNED.

Forced by Illness to Decline to Renew Contract With H. P. Whitney.

Linus (Pony) McAtee will not ride for the Harry Payne Whitney stable during the coming season. McAtee has not been in the best of health and when his contract expired he told James Rowe Sr., Mr. Whitney's trainer, that he did not feel strong enough to continue the work for so extensive a stable. He has not signed a contract to ride for next season and probably will rest during the Winter.

McAtee, one of the best riders in the country, has starred especially in his handling of two-year-olds. The Whitney riders next season will be Abel, Workman and Benham.

H. G. BEDWELL BADLY HURT.

Blacksmith, away well, closed fast in the stretch, but swerved over toward the rail, badly bumping Odd Seth. He then drew away to win, but was driving hard. Odd Seth was probably best and would have won but for being bumped at the furlong pole by the winner. Harry Carroll, always close up, had no mishaps. Leonard G. ran a good race. Hats Up quit badly.

Special to The New York Times.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 16.—Joe Turnesa of the Fairview Club, Elmsford, N. Y., and C. R. Spickard, a local player, with a 63 score, won the professional-amateur medal play handicap competition over the Del Paso Country Club course today. The event was a prelude to the Sacramento open tournament, which will start tomorrow.

Partners were drawn by lot and the amateurs were allowed their full handicaps, which gave those with handicaps higher than 18 two strokes on some holes. Spickard, a golfer of less than two years' experience, had a handicap of 19, and he was able to help Turnesa on several holes.

The Del Paso professional, Frank Minch, playing with R. J. Mallett, a handicap of 15 man, was placed second, with 64. Minch missed a putt on the home green to tie the leading pair. There were only two prizes, Turnesa getting $100 and Minch $50, and their partners receiving cups.

Walker Gets a 67.

Cyril Walker of Leonia, N. J., former national open champion, had a 67 on his own ball, but finished outside the prize money, with a net score of 65. His partner was a handicap 2 man, George Ritchie of San Francisco, holder of the Olympic Club championship in that city and winner of the California State fair golf championship last year. Another professional from the New York district, Harold Sanderson of Hollywood, at Deal, N. J., finished fourth. He was partnered by F. S. Moulton, Chico, Cal. Their score was 66.

George Duncan, playing his first round of competitive golf since his arrival from England, was not scoring well. With a handicap 24 man as his partner, Duncan finished almost at the end of the list of fifty-four teams, with a score of 75.

KNAPP-FELTS : IN THE NEW YORK MANNER

On the ethics of presenting a Christmas gift to yourself

Is it right to be your own Santa Claus? It all depends, we think, upon the gift. For example, we would consider it hardly proper to use Christmas as an excuse for giving one's self a steam yacht, or a motor car or even a simple little town house. But a hat . . . a useful, ornamental and inexpensive hat . . . particularly a Knapp-Felt hat . . . what could more beautifully express the spirit of the joyous Yuletide? It is not necessary to give until it hurts . . . Knapp-Felts are most conveniently and modestly priced. Soft brown is a smart and becoming color. Greys are good, too. Treat yourself today, while the good old Christmas spirit still runs merrily in your veins.

N. Y. Yacht Club Elects Commodore Nichols to Third Term

NICHOLS RE-ELECTED N. Y. Y. C. COMMODORE

Vice Commodore Vincent Astor and Rear Commodore Aldrich Are Named Again.

THIRD TERM FOR NICHOLS

Race Committee Also Will Be the Same, With Gherardi Davis as Its Chairman.

Following the annual meeting and election of the New York Yacht Club last night at the clubhouse, 37 West Forty-fourth Street, it was announced that Commodore George Nichols had been re-elected to head the club for another year. Vice Commodore Vincent Astor and Rear Commodore Winthrop W. Aldrich also were re-elected to continue in office through 1927.

The coming year will be the third term for Commodore Nichols. He succeeded Commodore Harold S. Vanderbilt on Jan. 1, 1925. Commodore Nichols has been a racing yachtsman almost since boyhood and under his leadership the club has widened its racing policy considerably, especially as regards the smaller classes.

Commodore Nichols is the owner of two racing yachts, the fifty-footer Carolina, one-time King's Cup winner and last August the winner of the Astor Cup for sloops and the R Class sloop Gimcrack.

George A. Cormack, who has served as Secretary of the club for the last twenty-five years, was re-elected to that post without opposition. Mr. Cormack succeeded the late J. V. S. Oddie in 1902. Henry A. Stickney was elected Treasurer to succeed the late Tarrant Putnam.

The Race Committee will be the same as that of last year. Gherardi Davis will be Chairman and will be assisted by Clinton Mackenzie and Edmund Lang. This committee handled the racing fleet last year with great efficiency and the racing yachtsmen registered their satisfaction. The Membership Committee for 1927 will be made up of Charles Lane Poor, Chairman; Henry A. Bishop, H. G. S. Noble, George M. Pynchon, E. Townsend Irvin and Captain Kenneth M. Bennett, U. S. N. Harold W. Webb was re-elected Treasurer.

The prizes offered by the club for last season's races, including the New York Yacht Club Cup for the R Class, were on exhibition in the model room.

WARREN DOW WINNER IN HAMMOND FOILS

Saltus Club Fencer Clinches Victory in Fourth Final Bout—Thirty-nine Compete.

Duplicating the feat of his brother, scored a week ago, Warren Dow of the J. Sanford Saltus Fencing Club won the Hammond foils competition at the New York Athletic Club last night. Dow qualified in one of six strips, into which the field of thirty-nine was divided, and then won four bouts in the final round to carry off the prize. At the time Dow won his fourth bout in the final round, no other competitor had a mathematical chance of equaling his mark, and as it was late his fifth final round bout was not fenced.

The field was one of the largest to turn out for a junior competition in recent years and represented ten colleges and universities. Yale, Columbia and New York University, J. Sanford Saltus Fencing Club, the Washington Square Fencers' Club, the Fencers Club, the New York A. C. the United States Navy, the New York Turn Verein and the Roxbury School were represented.

The J. Sanford Saltus Fencing Club had three of the six qualifiers. They were Dow, Marcel Pasche and Herbert Twyeffort. The Fencers Club qualified two and the New York A. C. one.

The qualifiers:

Strip No. 1, Herbert Twyeffort, J. Sanford Saltus Fencing Club; Strip No. 2, H. A. Hayes, Fencers' Club; Strip No. 3, Warren Dow, J. Sanford Saltus Fencing Club; Strip No. 4, Marcel Pasche, J. Sanford Saltus Fencing Club; Strip No. 5, Bela Nagy, New York A. C.; Strip No. 6, George Pardigon, Fencers' Club.

The summaries:

Dow defeated Hayes 5 to 1, Pardigon 5 to 3, Pasche 5 to 4 and Fuertes 5 to 3; Pasche defeated Hayes 5 to 4 and Twyeffort 5 to 4; Fuertes defeated Hayes 5 to 3 and Pardigon 5 to 4; Pardigon defeated Twyeffort 5 to 4 and Pasche 5 to 2; Twyeffort defeated Fuertes 5 to 2; Hayes defeated Twyeffort 5 to 4.

MISS WILLS LEAVES FOR TOURNEYS HERE

Is on Way From Coast and Says She Probably Will Enter Indoor Tennis Events.

BERKELEY, Cal., Dec. 16 (AP).—Helen Wills, former woman's national tennis champion, left today for New York to spend the Christmas holidays and at the same time probably to open a campaign which she hopes will lead to the honors she was forced to give up a few months ago because of illness. She defaulted her singles title in the national tourney this year.

Discussing the possibility of playing tennis in the East, Miss Wills said: "I have received so many invitations that I will probably enter many of the indoor events."

Miss Wills announced she had written a book of poems and another on how to play tennis. She said she hoped to have both published in the Spring. The court star was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. C. A. Wills.

Breadon Insists Hornsby Will Lead Cards Next Year

CHICAGO, Dec. 16 (AP).—Rogers Hornsby will manage the St. Louis Cardinals next year, President Sam Breadon said tonight in settling rumors of various trades involving the leader who piloted the Cards to St. Louis's first world's championship. "All this talk of trading Rogers to New York, or elsewhere, is the bunk," Breadon said. "He will be managing the Cardinals next year, although we have not come to terms yet."

JOE WRIGHT TROPHY PUT UP BY OARSMEN

Donated by American Rowing Association for the Annual 150-Pound Crew Test.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16 (AP).—John Arthur Brown, Chairman of the Rowing Committee of the University of Pennsylvania and secretary of the American Rowing Association, announced today that the association had established officially the Joseph Wright Challenge Trophy for 150-pound crews.

The trophy, a permanent one, is to be placed in competition at the American Rowing Association regatta, called the American Henley, on the Schuylkill River the last Saturday of May.

The trophy is in recognition of the introduction of 150-pound crews by Joe Wright, when he was head rowing coach at the University of Pennsylvania, and also for the "great contribution to American rowing" made by the veteran coach.

In 1919 the American Rowing Association officially recognized the 150-pound eight and since that time lightweight crews have become a part of nearly every rowing program. After leaving Pennsylvania Wright coached the Penn A. C. oarsmen. He recently resigned that post to take charge of the Argonauts of Toronto.

BROWN SWIMMERS BEAT CANADIANS

McGill-Toronto Team of Dominion Champions Loses, 34-27, Relay Deciding the Meet.

TWO RECORDS SHATTERED

Merchant of Victors Clips Brown Standard, While Pool Mark Falls Before Lorenzen of Toronto.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 16.—Brown opened its swimming season by defeating the combined Toronto-McGill team here tonight, 34 to 27. The losers compose the Canadian intercollegiate championship team. Brown nosed out its victory in the relay when Captain Hull, swimming anchor, finished two feet ahead of Johnny Goss after the first three men had fought on even terms.

Two records were set when George Merchant, a junior and New England intercollegiate backstroke champion, won the 100-yard back stroke in 1 minute and 12 4-5 seconds and Francis Lorenzen of Toronto won the 100-yard breast stroke in 1 minute 16 4-5 seconds. Merchant's mark is a new Brown record while Lorenzen's time betters the old pool record.

The Canadians won four first places and five of the races were decided by a margin of a yard. Morton Gibbons, Canadian open and intercollegiate champion diver, gave one of the finest exhibitions ever seen in the Brown pool.

Clayton Bourne, Canada's Olympic swimmer, defeated Dixwell Goff of Brown by a scant two feet in the 100-yard free style. Goff had previously swam second to Goss in the 220 by a stroke.

50-Yard Dash—Won by Hull, Brown; Litchfield, Brown, second; Clarholm, McGill, third. Time—0:23 3-5.

300-Yard Relay—Won by Brown (Balser, Bearse, Litchfield, Hull). Time—1:46 3-5.

HOPPE BREAKS EVEN, BUT INCREASES LEAD

Loses to Matsuyama, 300-362, Wins, 400-133, Having High Runs of 225 and 243.

Kinrey Matsuyama, national junior 18.2 balkline billiard champion, won one of the two blocks played yesterday in his 4,800-point, twelve block handicap 18.2 balkline match with Willie Hoppe, in progress at the Strand Academy, but fell further behind his opponent notwithstanding. The score at the end of the eighth block is 3,070 to 1,242, with Hoppe leading.

Matsuyama played brilliantly to win the afternoon block yesterday, 300 to 362, but bowed to Hoppe, 133 to 400, in the night block. Despite a high run by Hoppe of 225 in the first inning of the afternoon block, Matsuyama rallied strongly and came back with an unfinished run of 240. This run was extended to 296 when he ran 56 at night.

Hoppe, however, came back at night and went out with a run of 243 in the fourth inning. Both men have now had thirty-six innings of play and Hoppe's grand average is 85 10-36, Matsuyama's 34 18-36.

The scores by innings:

Afternoon.

Matsuyama—1 0 7 34 18 240—300.
Hoppe—225 0 5 14 46 65—362.

agreement, effected when Landis first was elected, to require anti-draft leagues to declare themselves before April 1, 1921, was amended to read April 1, 1927, leaving the present draft situation unchanged.

Each major league selected three representatives to confer with the draft committee of the minors, and they will report back to the major league meeting in February, when schedules are to be adopted.

The club owners refused to fix the date of the closing of the 1927 season by striking out the provision in the major league rules which ended the past season on the last Sunday in September. The closing date was left to the decision of the February schedule meetings, but Oct. 2 generally was agreed upon.

The club owners also voted an increase in pay for Landis's secretary, Leslie O'Connor, from $10,000 to $12,500 a year.

Waiver Price Increased.

The quotations on players was increased, when interleague trades are made by the waiver route, from $4,000 to $7,500. Players exchanged between clubs of the same major league, however, will still pass at the nominal price of $4,000.

In memory of Francis Richter, for many years editor of the American League Guide, who died a year ago, the club owners appropriated $500 for a monument at his grave.

Colonel Ruppert and Judge Emil Fuchs of the Boston Braves were appointed to draw up a plan providing help for needy ball players.

The National Baseball Federation, the sand-lot organization, also received encouragement from the big leaguers. It asked for some small participation in the world's series receipts for the promotion of amateur baseball, and Clarke Griffith of Washington, E. S. Barnard of Cleveland and Garry Herrmann of Cincinnati were delegated to arrange it.

Sale of the Columbus American Association Club to the Cincinnati Reds for a player farm likely will be concluded tomorrow, it was said tonight by the Columbus officials.

Jack Hendricks, manager of the Reds, announced the only deal of the day, the outright purchase of Ray Kolp, a right handed pitcher, from the St. Paul American Association Club.

Eddie Collins is toog good a man to drop out of the American League, Connie Mack said today, adding that he had an appointment with the ex-manager of the White Sox within the next few days to talk terms.

Bob Quinn of the Red Sox and Dan Howley, new manager of the St. Louis Browns, reached a preliminary agreement on a trade which would send one player to St. Louis in exchange for three, but neither would mention any names.

Got $7,500 as a Judge.

In 1920 when Kenesaw Mountain Landis was engaged as commissioner of baseball, he was a Federal District Judge in Illinois at a salary of $7,500 a year. He was reluctant at that time to leave the bench, but the financial inducement seemed too overwhelming. However, he proposed to the baseball owners that perhaps they had better deduct the amount of his salary as judge from the $50,000 leaving the figure at $42,500.

Will H. Hays, who became arbiter of moving picture affairs in 1922, is reputed to receive a salary between $100,000 and $150,000, the former figure being most generally accepted.

Longer Practice Big Help To Crews at Washington

Working Outdoors Early This Month After Weather Here Had Driven Eastern Oarsmen to Cover—Olympic Aspirations Expected to Spur Activity in Spring.

By ROBERT F. KELLEY.

For almost a month now, the crews of these parts have fled the rivers and many of the oarsmen have been idle, waiting for the close of vacations and the following examinations before working on the indoor machines.

But the University of Washington can row the year around and has been hard at it this season, according to reports from the Coast. That may explain some of its success.

Rusty Callow has had as many as fifteen crews on the water at one time. They were still rowing out of doors early this month. Washington, of course, is expected to come East to defend the laurels won last June, and indications are that the Huskies again will play one of the leading rôles.

Callow has lost Ulbrickson, the big stroke who was the real hero of the finish when Washington made the slim margin of one second bring them victory over the Navy last Spring. He has lost several other of his big fellows. But he himself said last Spring that his freshman boat was one of the best he had had at Washington. All of them were available for Fall practice and all of them have been out.

According to those well informed with things at Washington, Callow never has to contend in a serious fashion with football during his Fall season, for rowing is the big sport at Washington. The rowing captain is the demigod that football captains are in most other places

It is likely that Navy, if it has any sort of crew, will come back to the Hudson next year, as it is a key year in rowing, looking to the Olympics of 1928.

It has been reported that Yale was laying extensive plans for the training of its crew and that the Yale Olympic eight is ready to enter the lists again.

But Eli will have plenty of opposition, for about the most imperishable of rowing honors is that of being the Olympic crew. Winning crews at Poughkeepsie and New London may be forgotten, but once a man rows in the Olympics he is always remembered as a member of the Olympic crew.

Every coach has the dream that he may win the honor with his boatload, and this season they will all be gunning for the blue ribbon of 1928.

The new Rockefeller glass enclosed gymnasium which Princeton is about to erect will add a wrinkle to the training of crew men. Princeton keeps the crew men in training the year around, whether or not they are working on machines or water.

The feature of this gym is to be an outdoor atmosphere throughout. The glass is to be merely a protection against the rain and snow. Here the crews are expected to do their machine work as well as rope climbing, and it may toughen them so that they can take to the water a week or so earlier in the Spring.

There will be no boat race on Lake Cayuga on Spring Day. Cornell's traditional day of days has almost always been featured by a boat race. This year it falls on May 21. The boat race with Harvard comes on May 28, the following Saturday, and the athletic authorities petitioned to have this later date made Spring Day. The Faculty ruled that this was too near examinations and Harvard was unable to change dates so there will be no race attempted.

KILLEFER IS SIGNED TO COACH BROWNS

Leaves National League After Long Service to Assist Manager Dan Howley.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16 (AP).—Bill Killefer, who assisted Rogers Hornsby in piloting the St. Louis Cardinals to a world's championship, has signed to coach the St. Louis Browns next year, it was made known tonight.

President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals announced he had given Killefer his unconditional release, and then Killefer announced he had signed with the Browns. He will be first assistant to Dan Howley, the Browns' new manager.

Killefer leaves the National League after many years of service with the Philadelphia, Chicago and St. Louis clubs. He came to Chicago from the Phillies ten years ago with Grover Cleveland Alexander, his battery mate, and eventually Killefer rose to managership of the Cubs.

Last Winter Killefer joined the Cardinals as assistant to Hornsby and before long he had engineered the acquisition of Alexander by the Cards.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 (AP).—Ottawa's winning streak in the national hockey league that had reached nine victories with only one draw, ended tonight when the Detroit Cougars whitewashed the Senators 5 to 0. It was their first defeat of the season.

The Cougars outskated the league leaders, beating them into early submission with a vicious combination attack.

Canadiens and Bruins Tie.

MONTREAL, Dec. 16 (AP).—The Montreal Canadiens and the Boston Bruins played a 2-2 tie game in a national hockey league contest here tonight. One overtime period was played.

The game kept the crowd in a continual uproar. Oliver made the tying score for Boston with only two minutes to go in the final regular session, after the Bruins had scored three goals that were disallowed. Both teams frequently objected to Referee Marsh's decisions and at one point he had to leave the ice while it was cleared of paper and coins.

Harvard Break Causes Princeton Change in Rating Hockey and Soccer Title Teams

With Harvard Missing, Hockey Team Must Beat Yale and Other U. S. Colleges.

SOCCER REQUISITE CHANGED

Eleven Must Win All Regularly Scheduled Games to Gain Top Rank—Varsity Awards Made.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 16.—Amendments to the constitution of the Princeton Undergraduate Athletic Committee with regard to the qualifications necessary to entitle Tiger hockey and soccer teams to championship rating have been made because of the severance of athletic relations with Harvard. The committee also awarded minor sport championship "P's" to members of Coach Al Nies's victorious soccer team.

The Tiger hockey players formerly were required to defeat both Harvard and Yale to claim championship honors. With the Crimson absent from the schedule, the amendment in regard to hockey reads as follows:

"The team will be considered a championship team if it defeats Yale and all other regularly scheduled American colleges. If a tie ensues with Dartmouth it will be considered arbitrary and the team's status will be left to the discretion of the committee."

Three contests with the Eli hockey team have been arranged for this season, and it was decided that men playing in the majority of the Yale games should receive the varsity "P".

A similar situation exists in regard to soccer championships. The committee ruled that a soccer team winning all its regularly scheduled games shall be considered a championship team.

The minor sport championship "P's" were awarded to the men who completed their season at the top of the Intercollegiate Soccer Association with only one defeat. Three of the men were placed on the all-collegiate soccer team selected by Coach Nies, who has coached his fifth consecutive championship team at Princeton this Fall.

Those who received the awards:

SHARKEY CANCELS BOUT.

Hurts Hand in Smith Fight—Calls Off Montgomery Battle.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 16 (AP).—Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, has cancelled his engagement with Sully Montgomery at Boston on Dec. 20 as a result of an injury to his right hand received during a fight here last night with Homer Smith.

A protest to the State Athletic Commission by George Lawrence, manager of Smith, was threatened today because Referee Jack Michaels declared Sharkey the victor by a knockout. Lawrence conceded that Sharkey had piled up a big advantage, but asserted Smith was groggy from the effects of an alleged foul in the first round.

C. C. N. Y. ELEVEN GETS FIRST CAMP

Acting President Robinson Donates 310-Acre Farm at Brewster for Team.

City College for the first time in its history will have a football training camp next season. Acting President Frederick B. Robinson announced at the dinner last night at the Hotel Imperial for the 1926 eleven that he had donated his 310-acre farm at Brewster, N. Y., for the purpose.

Acting President Robinson said that, although scholastic study holds the premier place in a college curriculum, athletics also now play a prominent part, and promised whole-hearted support from the entire Faculty, undergraduates and alumni for the football team at the college. His farm will be converted into a training camp and quarters will be prepared for the entire squad for a three weeks' stay. He praised Coach Parker for the splendid record which the eleven compiled.

More than fifty prominent City College graduates attended the affair, which was sponsored by Arthur Taft, a member of the 1920 class, and the City College Club. Edward F. Unger, '11, a former Assistant District Attorney, was toastmaster.

Among the speakers were Dr. Robinson, Bernard Naumberg of the 1894 class, who is President of the City College Club; Professor Walter W. Williamson, Faculty Manager of Athletics at C. C. N. Y.; Coaches Harold J. Parker and Roy Plaut, Captain Tige Seidler and the two captains-elect, Johnny Clarke and Sam Donstein. Telegrams were received from Senator Robert F. Wagner, Coach Nat Holman and several other prominent City College alumni who were unable to attend.

Nineteen varsity letters were conferred upon the varsity players who were present and gold footballs were awarded to Captain Seidler, Joseph Tubridy, Maurice Josephberg, Alvin Dreiband, Edward Gall, Frank Longo, Irving Packer, Tubby Raskin, Tiny Lipsitz, William Cohen, Arthur Rosenbluth and Manager Elmer Settel, the graduating members. Coach Harold J. Parker received a special gift from the members of the squad.

BOUTOT WINS BOUT IN MET. TOURNEY

Stops Simpson, English Boxer, but Garden Crowd Disapproves of the Referee's Action.

O'MORRISSEY ALSO SCORES

Knocks Out Oliver in Third Round of 175-Pound Special—7,000 See Contests.

Rosario Boutot, State heavyweight amateur champion, scored a victory over Douglas Simpson, formerly of Cambridge University, England, in the feature engagement at the Metropolitan Association A. A. U. boxing tournament in Madison Square Garden last night.

After Simpson had won the first round by a wide margin Referee John Gaddi awarded the bout to Boutot when he floored Simpson with a stiff right to the jaw. Simpson was stunned by the blow and no count was taken, but when he staggered to his feet, he protested that he be allowed to continue. The crowd of 7,000 strongly expressed its disapproval of the verdict.

In the first round Simpson had Boutot's head bobbing back repeatedly with short jabs to the jaw. Occasionally he would cross over with a right to the face. Boutot was beaten to the punch on practically every occasion but none of Simpson's blows appeared strong enough to floor his opponent.

Boutot showed to better advantage in the second. His defense was more thorough and his punching more accurate. After an exchange he swung a terrific right to Simpson's chin which gained him the verdict.

William O'Morrissey defeated Ollie Oliver in the 175-pound special bout. O'Morrissey subjected Oliver to such a severe battering in the third round that the referee stopped the bout and awarded it to O'Morrissey on a knockout.

DELANEY DISPLAYS FORM IN WORKOUT

Loses No Time in Starting Drill After Arrival Here—Gorman in Good Shape.

Interest in the Christmas Fund boxing carnival which Promoter Humbert Fugazy will stage in the Fourth Regiment Armory in Jersey City Monday night was increased when Jack Delaney, light-heavyweight champion, arrived in the city yesterday. The titleholder will meet Bud Gorman in the feature ten-round bout. A host of admirers accompanied Delaney to Stillman's gymnasium, where he worked out. He appeared in wonderful shape as he drilled before a crowd which jammed the hall to the doors. He worked eleven rounds. He did four rounds of bag punching and rope skipping, boxed four rounds with Jack Warren and shadow boxed for three rounds. His exhibition of sparring aroused much enthusiasm.

Gorman stepped into the ring after Delaney had withdrawn. He looked in excellent shape as he engaged in a vigorous workout. He sparred four rounds with Charlie Nashert.

CANZONERI BOXES GRAHAM TONIGHT

Faces the Bantamweight Title Contender in Garden—Green to Meet Burrone.

Defying a year of spectacular upsets that has seen challengers as well as champions toppled, Bushy Graham of Utica, contender for the bantamweight title, will risk his high ranking tonight when he faces Tony Canzoneri of Brooklyn, in Madison Square Garden. The bout will feature a card of four ten-rounders. A crowd of about 15,000 is expected to see the show.

Graham, recognized by the State Athletic Commission as the foremost challenger of Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, the champion, and matched to meet the titleholder in the Garden on Feb. 7, will have much at stake in this battle. He will enter the ring a favorite.

In Canzoneri, Graham will be facing a cool youngster who in the past six months probably has come forward faster than any other in his division. A former star in the amateur ranks, the little Brooklynite has scored many victories since invading the professional ranks. Graham will hold a slight edge in speed and also will have an advantage in experience, but Canzoneri has proved himself to be a determined youngster and fighting with a possible crack at the world's title for an incentive he is apt to provide unexpectedly stiff opposition.

One of the other ten-rounders on the card will bring forth Johnny Green, Harlem bantam, who will oppose Vic Burrone of Greenwich Village in the semi-final. Andy Martin of Boston will square off with Carl Tremaine, Cleveland veteran. Tremaine outpointed Martin about a year ago when the Boston bantam was just beginning to come up. Pete Sarmiento, the plucky Filipino, will tackle Dominick Petrone of Harlem in the opening ten-rounder.

Kaplan Breaks Pool Record.

REIGN OF TERROR PROTECTS SLAYERS

Citizens of Wilmerding, Pa., Fear Vengeance of Bootleggers, Blamed for Officer's Death.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 16.—A reign of terror, inspired by bootleggers, was revealed as existing in Wilmerding, near here, today when three men charged with slaying Constable Harry Davenport were freed. Davenport supposedly was killed for revenge after numerous raids on bootleggers and underworld resorts. Residents of the town told State troopers that they "were scared to death."

The State troopers were called on yesterday to help run down the assassins after Burgess Bishop and Police Chief Martin had stated they could not control the underworld element. Both admitted that the bootleggers had so many henchmen and sympathizers in the borough that they could do nothing with the forces at their command.

Deputy Sheriffs and a number of county detectives have been trying since Sunday to trace the gunmen who slew Davenport. No progress has been made and the officers are hampered by the fear of the townspeople that any one giving information to them will be summarily dealt with by the underworld.

Detectives employed by the Citizens' League of Pittsburgh are aiding the State troopers.

TELLS OF PARK LAND DEAL.

Moses Says W. K. Macy Threatened to Prevent Taylor Estate Sale.

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Dec. 16.—Robert Moses, President of the Long Island State Park Commission, testifying in the suit of the Pauchogue Land Corporation to set aside the commission's appropriation of the 1,500-acre Taylor estate at Great River for park purposes, said today in the Suffolk County Supreme Court here that W. Kingsland Macy, Chairman of the Suffolk County Republican Committee, told him prior to the appropriation in December, 1924, that he would "use all his political and other influence" to prevent the State's acquisition of the land.

The questioning on this was not pursued, but later Mr. Macy told reporters that he had not made such a statement and that he had denied it during an examination preceding the trial.

Mr. Moses was on the stand practically the entire day, going into further details of the appropriation of the land for $250,000, the lack of money for its purchase and the way it was provided through a gift of August Heckscher in September, 1925, whereupon Governor Smith signed a second appropriation bill. The plaintiffs contend that the land was worth more than $250,000 and that its appropriation was illegal because there was no money at the time to pay for it. Mr. Moses will be examined further tomorrow.

PRESBYTERY OUSTS PASTOR

Members Deny Fundamentalism Was Involved in Crombie Case.

LEAD, S. D., Dec. 16 (AP).—By unanimous vote the Black Hills Presbytery, meeting as an ecclesiastical court, today deposed A. H. Crombie, fundamentalist and former pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here, from the Presbyterian ministry. Neither Mr. Crombie nor his counsel was represented at the hearing, which grew out of friction between the pastor and members of his congregation. Mr. Crombie, however, filed objections, maintaining that the hearing was illegal.

Fundamentalism against modernism was the basis of the controversy at Lead, Mr. Crombie charged, but this the Presbytery officials denied.

Actor Tells President He Was Born Near Plymouth, Vt.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Otis Skinner visited President Coolidge today to pay his respects and was invited to luncheon. President Coolidge learned with surprise that the actor was born within striking distance of Plymouth, Vt., and had fished the same streams and played with some of the same boys the President had known as a youth in the Vermont mountains.

Mr. Skinner said that he had enjoyed, as a boy, fishing in Pinney Run, which flows through the meadow opposite the Coolidge acres and abounds in small trout. He said that he had caught "a mess of fish" there many times.

RED CROSS UNABLE TO GIVE AID IN SYRIA

Director Replies to Appeal for Relief of War Sufferers Facing Winter Famine.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Much to its regret, the American Red Cross today declined to grant an appeal for aid in the present famine situation in Syria, where thousands of civilians are reported in great distress. The appeal came from Badie Zabian, Secretary of the Syrian Wounded Relief Committee.

The refusal to aid was based on the decision that "continuing poverty" did not come within the scope of Red Cross activities abroad, and its action today was communicated to Mr. Zabian in a letter from Ernest J. Swift, Director of Insular and Foreign Operations of the Red Cross, as eign Operations of the Red Cross, who said in part:

"We have given your request most sympathetic consideration, for the situation which you call to our attention is one which we have reviewed on several occasions. Unfortunately, however, this condition of continuing poverty is of such a nature that it does not come within the scope of the work which the American Red Cross is now carrying on in foreign countries.

"A very definite policy in this respect was formulated some time ago by our Central Committee. It directs that the American Red Cross will only extend relief in emergencies caused by sudden catastrophies of a magnitude that cannot be handled by the resources of governmental or private agencies of the countries affected."

Calls to 29 Doctors Fail To Get One to See Sick Man

Mrs. Edith Lang of 172 Washington Street, Newark, went to Police Headquarters there last night and told Captain Philip Sebold she had been unable to get a doctor to treat William McKenzie, a boarder in her home who was ill from pneumonia.

"I called seven doctors," said the woman. "Two told me it was too cold to go out and five others said they were busy with other work."

Captain Sebold promised help. He got a telephone book and started calling up doctors. He put in answer to two calls. The twenty doctors he reached informed him that they were busy and could not visit the sick man.

Dr. Sanford Ferris of 312 South Ninth Street, the twenty-first doctor reached by Captain Sebold, went to treat McKenzie.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 16.—The disturbance that was off the Middle Atlantic Coast Wednesday night has advanced rapidly north-northeastward to the Gulf of Saint Lawrence (Harrington 29.22). The Ontario disturbance is advancing east-southeastward, with centre southeast of Hudson Bay, and with a trough extending southwestward to southeastern Missouri and thence northwestward to Northern Alberta.

Pressure is relatively low over the Texas Panhandle. An area of high pressure covers the Gulf and South Atlantic States, a second overlies the plateau and a third of increasing intensity, accompanied by rapidly rising pressure, is central over Northern Saskatchewan, with an extension eastward north of Hudson Bay.

The outlook is for snow Friday and Saturday in the lower lake region and Northern New England and for rains on Saturday in the Ohio Valley, the East Gulf and portions of the Middle Atlantic States. Elsewhere the weather will be mostly fair Friday and Saturday in the States east of the Mississippi River. The temperature will rise on Friday over most of the Washington forecast district and on Saturday in the Ohio Valley, the East Gulf and South Atlantic States. It will be colder Friday night and Saturday in the lower lake region and Northern New England.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Decline, U. S. Steel Stock Dividend Announced After Close —Franc at Season's Highest.

All the circumstances considered, yesterday's movement on the Stock Exchange may be called unusually interesting. The fact that prices should in the end have suffered a rather severe downward reaction was not of itself surprising, after the performances of the half-dozen preceding days. But the decline occurred when speculative Wall Street knew that a full special meeting of the United States Steel directors was being held and the announcement, after the close of business, that the management had recommended a 40 per cent. "stock dividend" left the mind in some wonderment as to just what had been the nature of the selling under which the 2 to 8 point declines in stocks occurred.

An obvious comment would be that the company's purpose had been an exceptionally well-kept secret. But it will also be remarked that the mind of the financial community had been turned in a different direction by the rather positive intimation of the company's Chairman, this past Autumn, that early action of this nature was not contemplated. This doubtless means only that the directors have changed their own minds since then; but it certainly leaves the matter in some perplexity, since nothing has happened in the interval to alter necessarily the point of view. That the Steel Corporation is in a position safely to distribute a special dividend from its accumulated surplus of $321,000,000 of a year ago and its nine-month surplus earnings of $39,800,000 in 1926, need not be disputed. Whether decision on such distribution was entirely wise under the present circumstances, in the present speculative mood of Wall Street, and (apparently) as a result of purposes very lately altered, is perhaps another question. But a full statement regarding the action and its particular reasons was not available yesterday. No doubt the directors' action is one more contribution to the cheerful view now prevalent of the general financial outlook.

Sterling was quoted again at $4.84⅝; which makes the withdrawal of £1,141,000 gold for export, as reported in yesterday's Bank of England statement, somewhat puzzling. It is not clear where it went. The franc again moved forward; at the day's high price of 4.01 cents, it passed the season's previous best record of Dec. 8. The reduction of its official discount rate yesterday from 7½ to 6½ per cent. by the Bank of France is recognition of the fact that special stimulus is no longer necessary to call back French capital from abroad. Probably the reduction means more than that, and amounts to a deliberate effort to remove some of the inducement for that movement.

The lower rate may be the Government's first step to control the market for the franc, whose recent violent movements have undoubtedly demoralized French trade. The 7½ per cent. rate was fixed on July 31, the very day when the Poincaré finance bills were carried in the Chamber of Deputies. The raising of the bank's bid for money, then, from 6 per cent. to 7½, was intended to produce exactly the result in return of expatriated capital which has ensued; but circumstances have greatly changed. It will be observed, however, that the rate does not even now go back to the 6 per cent. figure prevalent before that date.

Further reduction of 757,915,000 francs of the note circulation was reported yesterday in the bank's weekly statement. This brings the outstanding total 1,528,000,000 below that of a month ago and 4,722,000,000 below the high point reached on Aug. 5. The week's repayment of 250,000,000 francs by the Treasury to the bank brings those borrowings 3,050,000,000 francs below their maximum of July. This is sweeping contraction. Whether the cut in circulation has been due primarily to the Treasury's larger revenue and debt repayment or to the lessened trade activity, the upshot is the same; currency inflation is now absolutely controlled.

DISCOUNT RATE CUT BY BANK OF FRANCE

Reduction From 7½ to 6½ Per Cent. Announced—Interest Charge Also Lower.

FRANC AT NEW HIGH POINT

Exchange Not Affected Adversely by Action in Paris—French Bonds Also Advance.

PARIS, Dec. 16 (AP).—The Bank of France today reduced its discount rate from 7½ to 6½ per cent., and its rate of interest on loans from 9½ to 8½ per cent.

The market lending rate on first class collateral has been 10½ per cent., or 1 per cent. more than the Bank of France. For some time French business men have been protesting against the high rate, which frequently was supplemented by a commission of one-fourth of 1 per cent. every three months, thus making the actual charge on short term money 11½ per cent.

The 7½ per cent. rate of the Bank of France, from which it was reduced to 6½ per cent. yesterday, was fixed on July 21, when the rate was raised from 6 to 7½. The discount rate of the bank was maintained at 5 per cent. from Aug. 20, 1914, to April 8, 1920, when it was raised to 6. On July 28, 1921, it was reduced from 6 per cent. to 5½; on March 11, 1922, from 5½ to 5. On Jan. 17, 1924, the rate rose from 5 to 6 and on Dec. 11, 1924, from 6 to 7. It was reduced from 7 to 6 per cent. on July 9, 1925, but raised again from 6 to 7½ at the end of last July.

FRANC AT NEW HIGH POINT.

French Government Bonds Also Make Records in This Market.

Three developments served yesterday to focus the attention of international financial circles on the situation of France. The Bank of France reduced its discount rate from 7½ to 6½ per cent., the franc advanced to its highest quotation of the present year, and new high records were established in three bond issues of the French Government.

All three events were regarded as having an important bearing on the progress being made toward stabilization in France, which is expected to be followed by a heavy movement of American investment capital into French channels.

Wall Street bankers regarded the change in the discount rate as a logical move. They pointed out that discount rate movements usually have two objects in view: a correction of internal price movements and an effect on foreign exchange rates. For months there has been a heavy movement of capital into France, with advancing rates for the franc, and internal deflation. Falling prices have interfered with French business, and the present action is interpreted to mean that the authorities consider that the movement, both in exchange and price levels, has been too rapid. It is considered probable, however, that the franc will be permitted to go somewhat above its present level before actual stabilization is undertaken.

The franc, at its high yesterday, was quoted at 4.01 cents, but it closed slightly below that figure. Although a cut in discount rate usually affects exchange adversely, yesterday's action was regarded as indicating a return to normal conditions in France and contributed to the firmness of the franc.

The high bond records were made in French Government 8 per cents. of 1945, which advanced ¾ point to 107¾; the 7½s of 1941, which moved up ⅝ of a point, closing at 103⅝, and the 7s of 1949, which scored a net advance of a full point, closing at 99. There were advances also in many French industrial and municipal bonds. French bonds have been moving up steadily for weeks.

LARGE LOSS OF GOLD BY BANK OF ENGLAND

Net Withdrawals £1,141,000 for Past Week—Reserve Ratio Down Nearly 1%.

The statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes for the week ended Dec. 15, in pounds sterling:

Gold coin and bullion	decreased £1,141,000
Reserve in banking dept. gold and notes	decreased 1,395,000
Notes in circulation	increased 254,000
Notes in reserve	decreased 1,280,000

Proportion of the bank's reserve to deposit liabilities this week is 26.80 per cent.; last week it was 27.70 per cent.; two weeks ago, 25.93 per cent. The percentage of 30.28, on Sept. 22, was the highest for the year to date. The lowest reached thus far in 1926 was 15.36 per cent. on Jan. 6. The highest percentage since the war was 31.67, on July 29, 1925; the lowest, 7.20, on Dec. 20, 1920.

The statement compares with the corresponding week one and two years ago as follows:

	1926.	1925.	1924.

Ratio of reserve	26.80	15.87	19.00

The £164,500,152 gold holdings of the Bank of England on Aug. 5, 1925, were the largest in the history of the institution. On April 29, 1925, the week in which gold payment was resumed, they stood at £155,742,064. The lowest holdings since then were £143,711,895, on Jan. 20 last; the highest of 1926 to date were £155,930,451, on Sept. 22. Before the war the largest amount ever held was £43,634,723, on Jan. 28, 1914.

The bank's official discount rate remains at 5 per cent., to which it was raised from 4 per cent. on Dec. 2, 1925.

Pacific Gas Issues New Common.

Common stockholders of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company will have the right to subscribe at par to the extent of 10 per cent. of their holdings to an additional issue of common stock. Proceeds will be used to defray costs of improvements and extensions planned for 1927. Expenditures in the first ten months of this year totaled $18,000,000 and probably will exceed $20,000,000 for the entire year.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

After a demonstration of strength in the forenoon the general market on the New York Stock Exchange turned reactionary in the early afternoon, with the result that many sharp gains were converted into equally substantial losses before the close of the business day. In Wall Street the irregularity which developed soon after noon was ascribed to uncertainty over the action which the directors of the United States Steel Corporation were expected to take after 3 o'clock. Steel common was a spectacular feature of the day's trading. Its advance in the morning was swift and broad, apparently on the prospect of a generous distribution to stockholders. This was followed by a sharp downturn, and heavy selling of this stock exerted a depressing influence on the general market. Baldwin Locomotive also was under pressure. The net loss in this stock was 3⅝ points.

Keeping a Secret

The air-tight manner in which the action of the directors of the United States Steel Corporation was kept secret during the day yesterday from an inquisitive and highly excited Wall Street attracted a good deal of attention because of the remarkable action of the Steel shares during the morning and reports that a special meeting of directors had been called. Hundreds of inquiries were directed to the corporation and to E. H. Gary, its Chairman, as to what it was all about. Mr. Gary said no answer could be made until after 3 o'clock. This merely added fuel to the flames of speculation, and the guesses which were made included those of Mr. Gary's retirement, a $5 extra dividend on the stock, a split-up of the present shares on a basis of two or three for one, as well as a half-dozen other theories equally incorrect.

Spectacular Market Moves

Wall Street was no place for a speculator with a weak heart yesterday. Leading stocks ran up and down the scale of prices with such amazing rapidity that Wall Street was left breathless by the wild and varied changes. The main fluctuations were naturally in the market leaders, and frequently within an hour there would be a swing of as much as 3 or 4 points in an issue. It was a great day, as the financial district conceived it, for the "in-and-out traders" who were trying to "grab fractions," but it was nothing more nor less than a day of torment for those either long or short of a big block of stock.

Display of Confidence

Reflecting, as it naturally was assumed to do, confidence felt in high places over the business outlook, the action of the directors of the United States Steel Corporation in recommending a 40 per cent. stock dividend was a cause of jubilation in Wall Street after the close of the stock market. In the talk of the Street the inspiration for the board's decision was generally believed to have come from influential banking interests in the corporation. Considering, it was argued, that these bankers are among the most conservative in the country, the special disbursement should be interpreted as the best possible evidence of their faith in the country's business future. There were many in Wall Street who recalled that the recent return of one of these bankers from a long holiday abroad coincided closely with the resumption of the advance on the New York Stock Exchange.

France May Check Deflation

While a reduction in a central bank's discount rate usually reacts unfavorably on exchange, the reverse effect followed the action of the Bank of France yesterday in lowering its rate from 7½ to 6½ per cent. The reasoning generally accepted was that normal conditions had been restored in France to such an extent that support of exchange through the bank rate was no longer necessary. In a fairly active market, the franc went well above 4 cents and reached its highest point of the year. It was pointed out by international bankers that France today faces a situation almost exactly opposite to that which existed at the time of the last previous change in the discount rate on July 21. Capital was moving out of France in immense quantities and inflation was uncontrolled. Today one of the principal problems is to check deflation as a result of rapid currency appreciation, which is interfering with business.

Coal King in November

November car loadings of individual carriers show that record shipments of coal still hold the center of interest and that without them increases in traffic from that of a year ago would not be striking. Railroads in the Eastern, Allegheny and Pocahontas regions benefited most from the activity in coal. Two coal roads showed gains of more than 50 per cent. and they probably will double that amount in increased earnings. The same situation is indicated by the carloadings report for the first week in December, which shows coal shipments have reached a new high point for a single week.

Decline in Reserve Ratios

The decline in the reserve ratios of both the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and also the twelve Reserve Banks combined to their lowest point of the year was traceable to the Treasury's financing, which took effect as of Wednesday, the day of the banks' report. The New York bank's ratio is 71.5 per cent., compared with a previous low of 74.6 on July 7, and the consolidated ratio is 69.7 per cent., as against a previous low of 70.2 per cent. on Jan. 8. The combined statement showed an increase from $148,933,000 to $349,595,000 in holdings of certificates of indebtedness, the difference for the week being almost the exact amount of the new offering of $200,000,000 of Treasury 3¾ per cent. certificates. The increase in New York in this item was from $37,315,000 to $303,685,000. Both statements showed increases in deposits and decreases in bills discounted.

"Melon Day" for the Carriers

Yesterday brought forth an unusually large number of extra dividend declarations by the railroads and, according to reliable report, several more are in store for stockholders after the first of the year. Many directors are convinced that shareholders should receive their fair portion of railroad earnings regardless of what effect a liberal distribution may have politically. From long experience they have learned that withholding profits does not forward their political fortunes while it does seriously discourage those interested in railroad investment.

Scarcity of "Big Men"

It is an open secret in the financial district that the woods have fairly been combed this Fall without much success for bankers of sufficiently large calibre to hold important executive positions in Wall Street's biggest banking institutions. In the main the few changes that will be announced on Jan. 1 will be shifts from one bank to another in the district. Two or three men in Chicago, one outstanding figure in Detroit, another in St. Louis and still another in Cleveland have had offers of "Grade A" positions with banking institutions in New York and all have declined them, mainly because of the incomplete work in their own particular fields. One of the country's biggest bankers said yesterday that he could not remember the time when there had been such a dearth of available executive material as at present. In these conditions, in several institutions, a single executive is often doing work which could well be split among two or three.

MONEY.

THURSDAY, DEC. 16, 1926.

Stock Exchange call money continued easy in a quiet market. After renewals had been arranged at 5, the rate tapered to 4½ per cent. for new money, while as low as 4 per cent. was made in the street trading. Only the usual amount was withdrawn, which approximated some $10,000,000. Time money was dull and unchanged at 4½@4¾ per cent. There is a heavy demand at 4½ per cent., but the bankers charge at 4¾ per cent. kept the actual turnover down to a minimum. Acceptances and commercial paper were unchanged.

LOREE ATTACKS THE N. Y. CENTRAL

FILES BRIEF WITH I. C. C.

D. & H. Head Answers Central's Opposition to His Plan to Lease Buffalo & Rochester.

Charging that the New York Central Railroad wishes to impede formation of other trunk line systems through the unification of small railways, Leonor F. Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson Company, asked the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday to disregard a suggestion by the Central that no railroad lease be authorized unless the carriers involved connect.

Mr. Loree's charge was contained in a brief filed with the commission in answer to one filed by the New York Central opposing his plan to lease the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway, which lacks some 160 miles of connecting with the Delaware & Hudson.

Both the New York Central and the Baltimore & Ohio had designs on the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh when the Delaware & Hudson head snatched it from their grasp by a liberal offer to its stockholders. Mr. Loree's quarrel with the trunk line heads dates back to the time when they neglected to take him into their confidence in formulating a tentative plan for the allotment of Eastern railroads in general territorial consolidation. An examiner for the commission recommended recently that his proposal to lease the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh be denied and suggested that it might be considered as an addition to the Baltimore & Ohio.

"It is not strange," declared Mr. Loree's brief, "that the New York Central should desire a rule excluding the acquisition, however plainly in the public interest such acquisition might be, by one railway of any disconnected railway.

"Such a rule would have practically no restrictive effect upon the New York Central, but it would sharply restrict every possible effort to build up an effective competitive system by combinations of the many smaller railway entities that parallel or cross or are adjacent to the railways of the New York Central System.

"There are no important railways and few railways of any sort from New England and Canada to the Great Lakes and the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers with which the New York Central does not connect in the manner that would be essential to an absorption under its proposed rule.

"On these terms, none of the smaller railways could contribute anything, except the surrender of their existence, to the consummation of the policy of consolidation prescribed by Congress."

ATTACKS RECEIVERSHIP OF CHICAGO RAILWAYS

Mayor Dever Charges Plot to Defeat Plan to Unify Transit Facilities.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—The receivership of the Chicago Railways Company was part of a plot to defeat Chicago's Administration plan to unify local transportation facilities and give the citizens a fair traction deal, Mayor Dever charged today.

The charge was made when the Mayor addressed the Illinois Municipalities Conference on Home Rule for Public utilities.

The receivership, the Mayor asserted, was not at all honest and its effect would be to remove control of the lines from the Illinois Commerce Commission and to block the city's attempt to have municipal control for an indefinite time.

He charged also that the legislative act of 1913 creating the Illinois Commerce Commission, vesting in it control of public utilities, had been passed with this end in view.

While the Mayor was speaking Leonard A. Busby, President of the Chicago City Railway Company, in a letter to Alderman McDonough, Chairman of the Committee on Local Transportation, announced that his company would accept a six months' extension of the present traction ordinance, which expires on Feb. 1, 1927.

Corporation Counsel Busch promised the council subcommittee on traction that on Monday or Tuesday he would file an intervening petition in the Federal court to assure full protection of the city's rights in the receivership under the 1907 traction franchise ordinances.

$13,000,000 IN BONDS PLANNED NEXT WEEK

TRAP ROCK BONDS BOUGHT

$6,500,000 Issue to Be Offered Later —Central West Public Service Co. to Offer $4,000,000.

Although no important offerings of new bonds are listed for today, announcement was made last night of the details of about $13,000,000 in issues which will reach the market in the next week. They are mostly in the public utility and industrial issues. Announcement also was made of the private sale of a $660,000 issue and of the oversubscription of two issues which were offered yesterday.

A new issue of $6,500,000 first mortgage bonds of the New York Trap Rock Corporation, which recently completed negotiations for the acquisition of the Tomkins Cove Stone Company, thus creating a system of five large operating quarries on the Hudson River, has been purchased by William R. Compton Company and E. H. Rollins & Sons for later offering. The business of the corporation represents one of the oldest and fastest growing industries in the United States.

New financing of the enlarged Central West Public Service Company will be completed with the issuance of $4,000,000 first lien collateral 5½ per cent. bonds, maturing Nov. 1, 1956, to be offered to the public shortly by a syndicate to be composed of A. B. Leach & Co., Inc.; Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Porter Fox & Co., Inc. The company will own and operate through subsidiaries public utility properties in 129 cities and towns in five Middle Western States.

Hornblower & Weeks and Watts & Co. of Baltimore have purchased $250,000 ten-year convertible debentures of the Black & Decker Manufacturing Company, which will be publicly offered next week.

A new issue of $1,200,000 Northwest Louisiana Gas Company first mortgage bonds is being shaped up for offering early next week by a syndicate composed of Glidden, Morris & Co., Edmund Seymour & Co., Inc., and Throckmorton & Co.

P. W. Chapman & Co., Inc., have sold privately a new issue of $660,000 first mortgage 5½ per cent. sinking fund gold bonds of the Brooklyn Postal Service Station. The bonds mature in ten years and were priced at 100 and interest. The building, which will be located at 233-247 Washington Street, Brooklyn, will be leased by the Government for parcel post and service station purposes for a period extending beyond the maturity of the bonds.

H. M. Byllesby & Co., for the syndicate, announced the oversubscription of $10,000,000 Standard Gas and Electric Company 6 per cent. debentures.

G. L. Ohrstrom & Co., Inc., announced that the issue of $7,000,000 New York Water Service Corporation 5 per cent. bonds had been oversubscribed.

TAX PAYMENTS ARE HEAVY.

Federal Bureaus Are Flooded by the Fourth Instalment Com[illegible].

The fourth quarterly instalment of Federal income taxes, due Wednesday, has inundated the offices of the Internal Revenue Bureau at the Custom House with millions of dollars in cash, checks and money orders, Collector Frank K. Bowers said yesterday. He explained that it was unlawful for him to give actual figures, but said the payments exceed those of the corresponding period last year, despite seasonal unemployment and last Fall's depression in Wall Street.

The year 1925, Mr. Bowers remarked, had been an extremely prosperous one and the great majority of individuals and firms were on time with their payments. The payments vary in size from a few cents to several of more than $1,000,000.

Similar alacrity in the payments was reported by Charles W. Anderson, Collector for the Third District, with offices in the Fisk Building at Fifty-seventh Street and Broadway. Almost 100 per cent. of those owing the fourth instalment were on time, Mr. Anderson said, and the few delinquents who visited his office yesterday had valid excuses for their delay.

STATE WINS OLD BANK SUIT.

Ruling May Mean Dividend to Defunct Institution's Depositors.

A long legal effort by the Superintendent of Banks to establish the ownership of 200 shares of stock of the defunct Union Bank of Brooklyn, which failed sixteen years ago, ended yesterday in favor of the State by a decision of Supreme Court Justice Stephen Callaghan. The action was against the executors of the estate of the late James N. Brown, banker and broker. The decision may provide another payment to depositors of the Union Bank.

Brown died in 1917. The executors of his estate, Harry P. Furness, William C. Burt and W. U. Vreeland, who declined to accept this charge against the estate, were then sued by the Superintendent of Banks, for the purpose of collecting from the stock-ownership $30,000 as part of the assets of the bank. Individual holders of stock were liable in any deficiency of the bank's assets. The depositors may now receive a sixth or final dividend on their losses when the bank closed.

METAL SALES DECLINE.

Copper Price Unchanged, Lead and Tin Lower During Week.

Although the volume of sales of nonferrous metals in the last week was good, lessened activity in copper brought the total considerably short of the previous week's figure, according to the Engineering and Mining Journal. Copper prices remained materially unchanged. Lead and tin sold at lower levels, while zinc became firmer.

"Following the great activity of last week, the copper market has been comparatively quiet," the periodical states. "There has been some tendency to shade prices in the East, business of good tonnage having been booked early and late in the week at 13.575 cents and 13.60 cents a pound delivered. Zinc advanced to 7.05 cents a pound, St. Louis, and the statistics covering November were better than expected. The official contract price of lead has been cut to 7.80 cents a pound, New York, and refined stocks in the United States and Mexico have increased by 3,000 tons."

FRENCH BANKNOTES REDUCED 757,915,000

Treasury Also Repays Bank 250,000,000 Francs in Week—Heavy Reduction of Loans.

The statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes for the week ending Dec. 15, in francs:

Gold at home	.....	unchanged
Silver in hand	.....	unchanged
Notes in circulation	decreased	757,915,000
General deposits	increased	21,202,000
Bills discounted	decreased	238,488,000
Advances	decreased	41,455,000

The State repaid the bank 250,000,000 francs during the week. Advances to the State now stand at 36,450,000,000 francs, against 34,000,000,000 francs a year ago, and 22,921,704,000 francs two years ago. On Dec. 4, 1925, the French Parliament fixed a maximum of 39,500,000,000 francs for such borrowings. Previously the legal limit had been placed at 33,500,000,000 francs on Nov. 23, 1925, at 32,000,000,000 francs on June 27 and at 26,000,000,000 on April 15. The advances of 38,350,000,000 francs reached on July 21 of this year were the highest on record.

The principal items in the statement compare as follows with the same date one and two years ago, in thousands of francs:

	Gold.	Circulation.	Discounts, &c.
1926	5,548,806	52,536,447	5,756,917

Under the vote of Dec. 4, 1926, the legal limit on note circulation is 58,500,000,000 francs. The law of July 22, this year, transferring to the bank the foreign exchange held by the Treasury, raised the limit to the amount of the bills transferred, making it 59,431,000,000. The law of Aug. 10 provides that notes issued to purchase gold or foreign exchange shall not be counted in determining the legal limit. The circulation of 57,258,627,000 francs, reached Aug. 5 this year, was the highest ever recorded at the Bank of France.

The French Bank's official discount rate was reduced to 6½ per cent., from the 7½ per cent. rate to which it had been raised on July 31, 1926.

NEW BANK FORMS CHEAPER.

Simplification Saves $25,000,000 Yearly, Committee Reports.

Simplification of forms used for bank checks, drafts and vouchers is saving the country $25,000,000 annually, it was said yesterday by Frank W. Simmonds of the Clearing House Section of the American Bankers' Association. This estimate was presented to a committee of bankers, li[illegible]rchers and other interests meeting under the auspices of the Department of Commerce in Washington to review results since the simplified forms were adopted in March.

Alexander Dunbar, Chairman of the committee, said that the new forms had proved popular among bank customers. E. R. Woodson, representing the Railway Accounting Officers' Association, said that the railroads expected to make substantial savings because of the new forms. It also was reported that one lithographer, producing more than 250,000,000 checks yearly, had found that 97 per cent. of its orders called for the new type of check.

More than 100 clearing houses have endorsed the standardized forms. The Federal Reserve Board has also endorsed the program of simplification and is transmitting specifications to Federal Reserve Banks. The specifications provide standard sizes and designs for bank documents and recommend elimination of trade marks and advertising, or, when these do appear, that they be placed in the upper left-hand corner.

TO BECOME TRUST COMPANY

Central Mercantile Bank Directors Approve the Plan.

C. Stanley Mitchell, President of the Central Mercantile Bank, announced yesterday that the directors had approved a plan for converting the bank into a trust company. The institution henceforth will be known as the Central Mercantile Bank and Trust Company. The action was the final step in the program decided upon at the time the Central Mercantile merged with the National American Bank two months ago.

The Central Mercantile Bank and Trust Company will occupy the new Central Mercantile Bank Building on the old Delmonico corner, Fifth Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, early next year. Announcement was made two weeks ago that the bank had negotiated a lease for the banking space in the new 36-story building on this corner. President Mitchell will be host to all the bank's officers and employes at a dinner and dance in the Hotel Biltmore tomorrow evening.

ORDERED TO INSURE AUTOS.

Maryland Casualty Company Affected by Law in Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Dec. 16 (AP).—The State Board of Appeal, created under the new compulsory automobile liability insurance law, held today that the refusal of the Maryland Casualty Company to insure the Ford Auto Renting Company of Salem was not reasonable and proper.

The renting company rents cars without drivers. The casualty company, in arguing that it could not be required to issue a motor vehicle liability policy, declared it did not engage in such business, but that other companies did. Its officials have indicated that they will appeal from the decision.

The State law which will become operative on Jan. 1, provides that the board may require insurance companies to issue policies if the complainant is unable to obtain them.

APPROVES PARK LAND TITLE.

Attorney General Transfers to State 4,000 Acres in Adirondacks.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 16 (AP).—Attorney General Albert Ottinger today approved title of about 4,000 acres of park land in what is knows as the White Face Mountain tract, Essex County. Acquisition of this land now gives the State the title to the entire tract except for about 2,200 acres.

The total acreage of the tract is 10,692. Within it is White Face Mountain, one of the famous Adirondack peaks. About sixty per cent. of it is forest land still in its virgin state.

Central America Railways Gain.

Operating income of the International Railways of Central America for November aggregated $193,951, or an increase of 18.8 per cent. over the October figure. Operating revenue for November was $532,879, or 2.9 per cent. greater than that of October. For the first eleven months of 1926 the operating income was $2,469,142, or 6.5 per cent. increase over the same period of 1925, while the operating revenue reached $6,353,249, or an increase of 10.5 per cent.

AUSTRALIA TO SEEK NEW FINANCES HERE

Sir Hugh Denison Says About Five Billions May Be Needed for Public Works.

DENIES WALL ST. CRITICISM

Trade Commissioner Replies to Newspaper Comment on Government Financing.

New York is to become a market for Australian public financing, it was said yesterday by Sir Hugh Denison, Australian Trade Commissioner, at a Bond Club luncheon in the Bankers' Club. Sir Hugh also replied to a criticism of Government financing in Australia published recently by a Wall Street financial newspaper.

Sir Hugh said that a commission appointed by the Australian Federal Government was surveying the needs of the country in respect to public works, to determine a program for encouraging immigration on severely restricted lines.

"Within the next ten or fifteen years the commission will naturally recommend works of different kinds, which will unquestionably call for an expenditure of an immense amount of capital," said Sir Hugh. "London will naturally want to provide as much as possible of that capital, but I am satisfied that Great Britain, owing to causes which you know as well as I, will not be able to provide all the moneys necessary in the near future for these development works, and therefore I anticipate that New York will be offered a certain proportion of the issues necessary for carrying out these purposes."

Sir Hugh said that as a business man he estimated that about $5,000,000,000 would be required to finance these projects. Discussing an article on Australian finances published in Wall Street recently (Wall Street Journal), he said:

"In the course of a few days I shall cause to be circulated a complete refutation of those false comments, and I will tell you this today, that the public debt of the Commonwealth of Australia on June 30 amounted to £458,000,000, and that of this total £287,000,000 was subscribed and held by Australians themselves."

Sir Hugh said that although, before the war, no State in Australia would have attempted to raise £5,000,000 locally, the country raised £47,000,000 by the first war loan appeal. A subsequent loan of £35,000,000 was oversubscribed twice, he said. These figures, he said, refuted the statements made as to Australian finances.

G. B. Whelpley, President of the Bond Club, presided. Among those present were Gilbert G. Browne, William H. Eddy, J. V. Forrestal, John S. Elliott, Charles W. Beall, Matthew C. Brush, Cornelius F. Kelley, Charles Hayden, Paul M. Warburg, Joseph R. Swan, William Ewing and Hugh Baker.

GASOLINE HEARINGS CLOSED

Arguments in Government's Case to Be Presented in Autumn.

The Government's suit charging the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and forty-six other corporations with restraint of trade by the pooling of alleged worthless gasoline cracking processes was ended yesterday before Special Master Charles Martindale in the Standard Oil Building after nearly two years of continuous testimony.

Each side agreed to start its oral argument before the Special Master in the United States Court in Indianapolis on May 16, but Mr. Martindale said he could not prepare his report of findings of fact and conclusions of law for the Illinois Court, which will make the final decision, before Autumn.

The case involves the annual production of gasoline worth approximately $500,000,000. The Government charged that the oil companies had no right to pool their patents for cracking processes because these patents were invalidated by prior patents, and that through the pool they had coerced trade by forcing other companies using the patents to pay high royalties for their use.

The primary defendants, who bore the burden of the defense, include the Standard Oil companies of Indiana and New Jersey, the Texas Company, the Gasoline Products Company, the M. W. Kellogg Company and Joseph H. Adams of Brooklyn, inventor of the Adams cracking process owned by the Texas Company. They maintained that the pool was legal because their rights justified it and because it prevented litigation among the owning companies.

The following information has been summarized by Mr. L. A. Phillips, Vice-President of the Corporation:

BUSINESS AND PROPERTY: The constituent companies of the Federal Water Service Corporation, now owned and presently to be acquired, supply water for domestic and industrial purposes to various communities in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and California. The total population of the territories served is estimated to be in excess of 940,000.

The physical properties are in excellent operating condition, and according to engineers who have investigated the properties, the water supply is adequate for the present needs, and, with the installation of normal additions, for the future needs of the communities served. The distribution systems now total over 1,504 miles of mains, afford fire protection with 8,331 hydrants, and serve a total of 171,900 active consumers. Consistent growth of these properties is indicated by the fact that gross earnings have increased approximately 50% since 1921.

EARNINGS: The consolidated earnings of the properties are reported as follows:

	Year Ended Sept. 30, 1926
Gross Revenues	$3,835,633
Operating Expenses, Maintenance and Depreciation as provided in Present Subsidiary Mortgages, and Taxes, including Federal Income Taxes	2,084,627

EIGHT BANKS TO PAY CHRISTMAS BONUSES

Six Will Give 10 Per Cent. of Year's Salary to Employes and Officers.

OIL COMPANY JOINS LIST

The Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Co. Will Pay 5 Per Cent. of Annual Salaries.

Christmas gifts to officers and employes, in the form of bonuses, were announced yesterday by eight banks and one oil company. These announcements bring the total thus far this week to almost twenty-five institutions, which have declared bonus distributions ranging from 5 per cent. to 25 per cent of annual salaries.

The banking institutions which will distribute bonus gifts of 10 per cent. among employes and officers are the Fulton Trust Company, the Commercial Exchange Bank of New York, the Chemical National Bank, the Bank of New York and Trust Company and the Central Mercantile Bank.

The Chase National Bank announced a bonus of 10 per cent of the annual salaries of employes and officers who have been with the institution ten years or more. Those who have been in the bank's employ for less than ten years will receive bonuses on a graduated scale.

Salaried employes of the Guaranty Trust Company, other than officers, will be notified of an additional compensation allowance of 8 1-3 per cent. of their yearly salaries, averaging one month's salary.

The County Trust Company of New York, which has been in business only ten months, announced a bonus of 5 per cent. of their annual salaries to all employes.

Directors of the Fidelity Trust Company of New York have authorized a Christmas distribution, the amount unnamed, to all officers and employes, based upon their annual salaries.

The Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company will present to employes a gift of 5 per cent. of their yearly salaries for 1926.

DEALERS OVERSTOCKED WITH NEW MOTOR CARS

Shipments Reduced and Factories Holding Operations Down, Trade Paper Reports.

Steady dwindling of production will mark the closing days of December in the automobile industry, and for the most part factories are holding operations to the lowest possible point without laying off large numbers of workers, Automotive Industries reports. A large group of factories will close for the Christmas holidays, giving them an opportunity for inventory and factory overhauling.

"Shipments to dealers are being held to a minimum by practically all companies because of the increased stocks of new cars now in dealers' hands," the publication says. "The abrupt slackening in the retail movement starting in late October has caused an accumulation of cars at retail outlets considerably in excess of this season last year.

"Though there is no question of the year's output setting a new record, it is unlikely that the figure for 1925 will be greatly exceeded if the Ford Company does not resume on a fairly active basis. The Ford curtailment has seriously affected output of low-priced cars, and cars of this class normally make up the bulk of production.

"In the medium and higher-priced fields both production and sales are on a much better level. As compared with other years, 1926 will show even more advantageously from a price-class viewpoint than from that of units produced. Steady production of trucks and buses is holding the monthly unit totals high, and there will be little reduction in truck units in December as compared to the decline in passenger cars."

Registration of cars and trucks in 1926 in the United States as of Jan. 1, 1927, will total approximately 21,600,000, of which about 18,900,000 will be passenger cars, and slightly less than 2,700,000 will be commercial vehicles. The total as of Jan. 1, 1926, was 19,844,000 vehicles.

PRESS BIG ICE MERGER.

New York Interests Buy Properties in Bridgeport for $1,500,000.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 16 (AP).—Plans of New York interests to form a huge ice company merger in Connecticut went forward today when those interests exercised their option on property owned by the late Harry W. Walker. The price paid for the Bridgeport companies is said to be about $1,500,000. The companies involved are the Bridgeport Ice Delivery Company, the Naugatuck Valley Ice Company, the Berkshire Ice Company and the Sprague Ice Company.

The transaction was made through Dickmore & Co. of New York, but names of the purchasers were not made public. It is understood that New York interests are attempting to gain control of ice companies in Hartford and other Connecticut cities.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

New High for the Franc—Bank Statement and Lower Discount Brings Rally.

French francs soared to a new high at 4.01 cents, for checks, yesterday. The advance was accompanied by large size buying orders from the Continent and local banks, and coincided with the announcement by the French Bank of a cut in its discount rate to 6½ per cent. from 7½, a huge decrease in circulation, and further repayments by the State to the bank. Traders construed this budget of factors as bullish on the franc, indicating as it did improved financial conditions in France. Profit taking near the close conceled part of the early gain, liquidation bringing the rate down to 3.97½ at the final, for a slight loss.

Sterling and lira were both firm, retaining all the advantage picked up on Wednesday. Scandinavians continued irregular, while the Spanish, Holland and German descriptions were slightly lower. Swiss francs improved to 19.33 cents.

Higher silver carried the Chinese and Indian currencies forward. South Americans also displayed a firm undertone, all the Latins doing somewhat better than on Wednesday.

Comparison of the Week's Items With Those of Preceding Periods.

Yesterday's statement for the twelve Reserve Banks showed notes in circulation to be at the highest figure of the year to date, while the ratio of reserve, both for the system and for the New York Reserve Bank, was at the year's low point. FOREIGN TRADE FACTOR TOO

Favorable Balance Has Effect on Market—Bank Shares and Utilities Move Upward.

The industrial stocks were in the forefront of the over-the-counter market yesterday, and their activity and strength was generally ascribed to publication of the favorable trade balance of the United States and the many extra dividend declarations.

The feature of the group was White Rock Mineral Spring second preferred, which jumped 10 points in response to an additional extra dividend of $2.50, the regular extra of $1.25 and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25. American Meter advanced several points on declaration of $3 extra, and Atlas Portland Cement gained a point on a $1 extra. Borden was strong all day and added 4 points to recent gains, while Aeolian Weber common advanced 2 points. National Fuel Gas, Merck & Co., Wilcox & Gibbs and Draper Corporation all held firm and noted small advances on the day.

In the bank stocks section Kings County Trust, National Surety, First National and New York Title & Mortgage showed the widest improvement. Equitable, New York Trust and American Exchange Irving Trust held firm and unchanged.

Utilities continued firm, the insurance group displayed some strength, but the rest of the market remained rather listless.

ITALIAN GOVERNMENT FINANCE IN GOOD SHAPE

Three-Month Surplus Revenue 243,000,000 Lire, Against 470,000,000 Deficit 3 Years Ago.

According to the bulletin of Hambros Bank of London, "the situation of the Italian Treasury continues to be most satisfactory. During the first three months of the financial year (July-September) the State budget presented an actual surplus of 55,000,000 lire. Considering that during the above period 125,000,000 lire have been allotted for the reduction of the circulation, as part of an annual total of 500,000,000 lire, and that 63,000,000 lire have been spent for construction of railways, both amounts in excess of previous estimates, it results that the actual surplus should be 243,000,000 lire, against a surplus of 168,000,000 lire in the corresponding period of last year, and against deficits of 202,000,000 lire in 1924-25 and 470,000,000 lire in 1923-24. Public debt on the 30th September amounted to 86,418,000,000 lire, against 89,260,000,000 on the 31st August and 91,309,000,000 on the 30th June.

"This heavy decrease is due chiefly to the 2,500,000,000 lire of banknotes passed from the circulation on State account to that on trade account as a result of the payment to Banca d'Italia of $90,000,000 of the Morgan loan. These banknotes will be gradually withdrawn from circulation when the conditions of the monetary market will allow it.

"The important reduction of the internal public debt during the last three months is due, in addition to the 2,500,000,000 lire above mentioned, to the withdrawal of 1,618,000,000 of ordinary Treasury bills (from 17,832,000,000 to 16,214,000,000), and to the repayment of 848,000,000 lire of obligations 4% per cent. twenty-five years (from 1,420,000,000 to 572,000,000), which have been redeemed at 85 per cent. instead of at par."

CHELSEA EXCHANGE GAINS.

E. S. Rothchild, President, Says 1926 Will Be Record Year.

Edward S. Rothchild, President of the Chelsea Exchange Bank, said yesterday that earnings of the bank for 1926 would exceed previous totals and that the deposit account gained substantially during the year. Net earnings on the $1,500,000 capital stock, with December figures estimated, will be nearly 32 per cent., according to Mr. Rothchild. Deposits approximate $21,000,000, an increase of nearly $2,000,000 over last year's figures.

"Two branches were added to our chain this year," said Mr. Rothchild. "Several new departments were added, the most important being a bond department supervised by Lewis E. Rothchild, Vice President."

SEES TASK OF ROADS IN SPEEDING FREIGHTS

L. K. Sillcox Asserts Intelligent Inspection and Careful Repairs Can Cut Delays.

A leading task confronting the traffic and operating departments of the railroads, in the opinion of L. K. Sillcox, General Superintendent of Motive Power of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, is the low average daily movement of a freight car, which, while greater now than ever before, is still only thirty miles a day.

Mr. Sillcox recently declared in a paper delivered before the railroad division of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers that if a loaded freight car was moved at the average speed of twenty miles per hour it would cover its quota for the day in one hour and thirty minutes. What is it doing, he asks, in the other 22 hours and 30 minutes of the day?

Answering his own question, he says it is evidently standing still, being switched or running empty, and the way to increase the daily movement is to improve the efficiency of these three operations.

"We need to have the most intelligent inspection," he declares, "as well as lubrication and light repair work on locomotives and cars before each trip to obtain maximum uninterrupted mileage. A breakdown on one locomotive or car will delay the whole train, and a large number of disastrous derailments can be traced to careless or indifferent work on the part of inspectors. Careful work by inspectors will also diminish terminal delays and the attendant lost motion. All employes connected in any way with the movement of a train should perform their duties strictly on time. Successful car movement can only be accomplished by those who are out in the field and in position to watch and note every move that is made."

Develop Panhandle Gas Treatment.

A process for treating natural or casinghead gasoline from the Panhandle field has been developed by the Skelly Oil Company, which is preparing about ten tank cars a day of this gasoline. Gas from Panhandle wells contains as much as 3 per cent. of hydrogen sulphide, and gasoline derived from it is corrosive and discolors in storage. The Skelly treatment neutralizes these effects with strong alkali. It costs less than one-quarter cent a gallon for chemicals.

American Hide to Buy Preferred.

Directors of the American Hide and Leather Company yesterday voted to purchase from preferred stockholders, pro rata, about 13 per cent. of their holdings at $55 per share under the recapitalization plan recently approved by the stockholders. It is expected the offer will be made to preferred holders of record Jan. 12, 1927.

FOUR ROADS TO PAY EXTRA DIVIDENDS

Louisville & Nashville Raises Its Capital Stock to Basis of 7 Per Cent.

JERSEY CENTRAL ON LIST

H. K. Vanderbilt Sees Continuation of Good Business—Charles Donnelly Optimistic for 1927.

Four railroads rewarded stockholders yesterday by the declaration of extra dividends all payable after Christmas.

The feature of the announcements was that of the directors of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, who raised the capital stock from a 6 per cent. to a 7 per cent. basis by declaring a 3½ per cent. semi-annual payment on Feb. 10 to stock of record Jan. 14. The road paid 6 per cent in 1925 and 5½ per cent. in 1924. A stock dividend of 62½ per cent. was paid in May, 1923, and the shares at that time reduced from a 3½ to a 2½ per cent. half-yearly payment on the increased capital. Yesterday's declaration is therefore a restoration of the 7 per cent. rate on the larger number of shares. The Louisville & Nashville is controlled by the Atlantic Coast Line through ownership of 51 per cent. of its capital stock.

Directors of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Railway (Monon route) declared an extra dividend of 1 per cent. on its common stock in addition to the usual semi-annual payment of 2½ per cent. on the common and 2 per cent. on the preferred. Both are payable Jan. 1 to stock of record Dec. 24.

The Mobile & Ohio, which like the Monon is part of the Southern Railway system, announced the intention of the directors to pay an extra dividend of 3 per cent. on its common stock and the usual semi-annual payment of 3½ per cent., both payable Dec. 30 to stockholders of record Dec. 21.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey followed its established custom of declaring an extra of $2 per share. It will be paid on Jan. 15 to stock of record Dec. 27.

Opinions expressed by railroad men yesterday regarding the prospect for 1927 were decidedly optimistic.

"The outlook for the railroads in 1927," said Harold K. Vanderbilt, a director of the New York Central, "is very good. The New York Central's earnings this year should be very satisfactory and in my opinion the earnings for 1927 should be at least as good as in 1926.

"The railroads generally will have wage advances from time to time, but this should not affect earnings adversely because the roads ought to be able to handle the situation by increased operating economy and increased service. The business situation generally throughout the country is in very sound condition and it should continue this way for some time to come."

Charles Donnelly, President of the Northern Pacific Railway, scouted the idea prevalent in some quarters that 1927 would not be as good a year in the Northwest as 1926.

"There appears to be no good reason why our earnings for the first half of next year will not be as good as the corresponding period this year," he said.

Sections served by the Northern Pacific, he added, have had ample rain and snow so that moisture conditions give promise of a good crop.

PROFIT-TAKING CAUSES RECESSIONS ON CURB

Late Irregularity Induced by Stock Exchange Reports—Oil Section Active.

Prices generally were firm on the Curb Market yesterday, although in the late trading there was considerable irregularity in sympathy with the declines which took place on the big board. Profit-taking in some of the recent market leaders was quite evident, the pressure against them being sufficiently severe to bring about recessions of as much as two or three points.

The heaviest turnover of the day was in the oil section, especially in the case of the independent oils engaged in the South American field. This was on reports that the Barco concession is to be restored by the Colombian Government to the American companies.

Among the general industrial issues which made notable advances were American Cigar, British-American Oil, Marland Oil when issued, McCall Corporation and Wilcox Oil. Among the issues under pressure were Johns-Manville, Land Company of Florida, American Gas and Electric and United Biscuit.

Trading was on a smaller scale than on the previous day.

Coal Company Suspends Mining.

LANSFORD, Pa., Dec. 16 (AP).—For the first time since operations were resumed last February after the miners' strike the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company suspended today all operations until Monday, owing to market conditions, throwing 8,000 miners into idleness. Weather conditions, however, are expected to stimulate the demand for anthracite.

Heavy Melting Scrap Up $1 a Ton.

An increase of $1 a ton prevailed in quotations on heavy melting scrap in the Chicago market yesterday. The price ranged from $13 to $13.25 a ton, against $12 to $12.25 a ton previously.

SEES NO HARDSHIP IN COTTON SLUMP

E. T. Meredith Tells Advertising Men That Farmers Will Buy as Usual Next Year.

SOUTH IS SAID TO PROSPER

Dr. Tait Butler Says Total Crop Value Will Be $150,000,000 More Than Last Year.

Notwithstanding the overproduction of cotton in the South, former Secretary of Agriculture E. T. Meredith, speaking last night at a dinner of the New York Council of the American Association of Advertising Agencies at the Hotel Pennsylvania, asked that the city folk shed no tears over their lot.

"Don't worry about them," said Mr. Meredith.

Mr. Meredith's talk was full of optimism. If the cotton farmers show a shrinkage of $300,000,000 this year, due to the over-supply, they will have $1,200,000,000 left, he said. Furthermore, the loss of $1 to a farmer, Mr. Meredith asserted, means $1 gone, but to the city man it would mean five times as much because of the number of times it would change hands.

"If there is any harm coming to any one because of the shrinkage, it is a slight harm to the farmer but an enormous harm to the city," Mr. Meredith asserted.

The former Secretary assured the advertising men that the farmers' buying power will not be less next year than it has been in recent years. If they want things, they will buy them, whether they are new cars, superheterodyne receivers, phonographs or a new set of furniture, he said.

Their tastes are sometimes better than those of city dwellers, said Mr. Meredith. He told of a manufacturer who had made 7,000 radio sets to sell to the farmers, but they would not have them because they were not five-tube sets.

"He put them on sale and somebody bought them," said the speaker, "and it was not the farmer."

The farmer, he went on, has everything that the city resident has, except the subway. Besides, he usually buys the best of everything, many of them taking trips overnight to a large city, he said. The farmer wants advertised merchandise, for the most part, Mr. Meredith said, and showed how advertised goods, whether wearing apparel or groceries, had a greater demand than unadvertised, unbranded products.

Dr. Tait Butler, member of the commission selected to study the cotton situation, said that the Southern farmer had more money to spend now than at any time since 1919. He asserted that the total crop value in the South will be between $150,000,000 and $175,000,000 greater this year than last, despite the $300,000,000 slump in cotton.

RUBBER FUTURES RECOVER.

Close 10 to 60 Points Up—Business Volume Is Moderate.

Crude rubber futures yesterday recovered from the irregularity and heavy tone noted in Wednesday's trading, and at the close prices were from 10 to 60 points better than the preceding night. Strength was attributed to a reversal in sentiment abroad, which brought higher cables, and to the reentrance of buying by brokers and dealers. Business volume was moderate, 164 contracts changing hands. Fifteen new transferable notices were issued.

December led the active positions in strength, gaining 60 points. March also displayed a good undertone, closing 30 points up. The May delivery, while held down to a relatively narrow range, was also active.

Range of prices for the active deliveries follows:

9 CONCERNS DECIDE ON EXTRA DIVIDENDS

Two Resume Disbursements and Two Companies Effect Reduction in Rate.

ONE PAYMENT IS RAISED

Industrial Alcohol Co. Resumes Dividend on Common—H. S. Rubens to Retire as President.

An imposing array of dividend announcements came to light yesterday when nine companies declared extra disbursements, two decided to resume dividends, one announced an increase in its dividend rate and two effected reductions in the rate.

The feature of the proclamations was that of the United States Industrial Alcohol Company, whose directors announced resumption of dividends on common stock at the rate of $6 a share a year. This is the first payment on this stock since Sept. 15, 1921, when the rate was $4 annually. The dividends declared yesterday were 1½ per cent. quarterly on the common and the regular quarterly of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred.

At the meeting, Horatio S. Rubens, Chairman and President of the company, announced his retirement to take effect on Dec. 31. He will be succeeded in the presidency by R. R. Brown, who has been Assistant to the President. His successor as Chairman was not announced. Mr. Rubens also declared that despite the conditions of the alcohol trade this year the company's profits were satisfactory, and the cash position, after full payment for two plants acquired this year, is so strong as to guarantee the soundness of the company's position well into the future.

The Freeport Texas Company also resumed dividends with declaration of 50c quarterly. This is the first dividend to be declared since 1919, when distributions at the annual rate of $4 a share were paid.

The White Rock Mineral Spring Company announced an extra of 20c, an additional extra of 50c and the regular quarterly of 30c on the common stock; an extra of $1.25, an additional extra of $2.50, and the regular quarterly of $1.25 on the second preferred stock; and the regular quarterly of 1¾ per cent. on the first preferred stock. On Oct. 1 an extra of 20c was paid on the common and one of $1.25 on the second preferred, in addition to the regular disbursements.

An extra of $2, together with the regular quarterly payment of $2.50 was declared on the common stock of the National Fuel Gas Company. The quarterly distribution places the stock on an annual basis of $10, as against a previous rate of $8.

The St. Joseph Lead Company announced an extra dividend, payable in 1927 in four quarterly instalments of 25c each, and four regular quarterly dividends of 50c each.

Directors of the American Meter Company announced an extra disbursement of $3 a share on the no par common stock, which brings the dividends for the year to $8 as against $7 at this time last year.

An extra payment of $1 a share was announced by the Atlas Portland Cement Company. The last extra was ½ per cent. on the old $100 par stock paid on March 1, 1926. The present no par shares are on a $2 annual basis, the initial quarterly dividend of 50c having been paid on June 1, 1926.

Other dividends were declared by Greenwich Bank, $2 in addition to the regular quarterly of $3; Brooklyn Trust, 3 per cent. and the regular quarterly of 6 per cent.; Fulton Trust, 2 per cent. and the regular quarterly of 2½ per cent.; MacAndrews & Forbes, 90 cents and the regular quarterlies of 65 cents on common and 1½ per cent. on preferred.

The Fidelity-Phenix Fire Insurance Company announced a semi-annual dividend of $2 on the $25 par stock. Previously the rate was $3 semi-annually. The Abitibi Power and Paper Company declared a quarterly of $1.25 on the common stock, against the previous rate of $1 quarterly. The American Pneumatic Service Company announced a semi-annual disbursement of 75 cents on the second preferred stock, which is a reduction from the $1 per share rate of six months ago.

An initial dividend was declared by the Wayagamack Pulp and Paper Company of 75 cents on the new no par stock. The last dividend on the old $100 par stock was $1.50, paid on June 1, 1926.

Directors of the Agricultural National Bank of Pittsfield, Mass., recommended to stockholder that the capital stock be increased from $200,000 to $600,000 by the declaration of a 200 per cent. stock dividend. The bank has a surplus of $800,000 and undivided profits of $500,000.

The following regular dividends were declared:

SUPPLY BILL SETS RECORD.

Senate in Ten Days Passes Postoffice and Treasury Measure.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP).—The Senate set a new record for early passage of an appropriation bill today by approving within ten days of the start of the session the $804,022,378 supply bill for the Treasury and Postoffice Departments.

A total of $3,169,120 was added by the Senate to the bill as passed by the House and this provoked some criticism by Senator King, Democrat, Utah, who described "Coolidge economy" as a "myth" and insisted the Administration "was grossly extravagant."

Senator King pointed out that the bill, even with the Senate additions, carried $3,300,000 less than was recommended by the Budget Bureau and exceeded last year's appropriation for these departments by $5,363,000.

TO START RADIO TELEPHONY

A. T. & T. Company Will Begin Transatlantic Service Next Month.

Radio telephony across the Atlantic will be conducted by the long lines department of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, it was said by an official yesterday. The statement put at rest discussion as to whether the company would dispose of this development in accordance with the policy followed in the sale of former radio broadcasting and manufacturing businesses. Transatlantic telephony will therefore be put on the same basis as the telephone service now maintained between the United States and Canada and Mexico.

It is expected that in accordance with previous announcements the Atlantic service will be inaugurated some time next month. Rates for the new service have not yet been settled.

PUTS ON TROLLEY DE LUXE.

Newark Line Hopes to Lure Autoists by Car's Comfort.

A "de luxe" trolley car, the first of its kind to be used in the metropolitan area, made its appearance yesterday on the Bloomfield line in Newark, which is operated by the Public Service Company.

The trolley has twenty double-bucket seats, ten on each side. In the front of the car there are side seats which hold twelve passengers. The walls of the car are paneled and the upper parts are painted in imitation hardwood. The ceiling is white and the floor covered with a material giving it the effect of a linoleum rug.

The new type of car, it is the hope of the officials, will appeal to autoists who drive to the centre of the city because it affords them the same comfort.

WHEAT PRICES DROP WHEN LONGS UNLOAD

Market Is Erratic, First Breaking and Then Advancing—Close Is at a Net Loss.

MILLING DEMAND IS SLOW

Liquidation On in Oats and Corn and Both Grains Close With Net Losses—Rye Declines.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—The wheat market was erratic, breaking slightly at the start only to advance fractionally on local buying and then break 1⅛ to 1⅝ cents from the high when local longs tried to unload. The close was at the bottom with net losses of ⅞ to 1⅛ cents, with the December about 1 cent under the May against ⅝ cents at the close on Wednesday. Strength in Winnipeg, which was ⅛ cent high to ⅛ cent lower at the last, and an upturn of 1 to 2 pence in Liverpool were factors in making the upturn to the high point, but had little effect later, due to the selling coming at a time when there were apparently few buying orders in the market.

Buenos Aires was firm throughout the day and closed ⅛ to 1 cent higher. The belief that the United States was about on a domestic basis as far as wheat supplies were concerned has been a factor in bringing in local buying, although the statistical position suggests that there are 70,000,000 bushels or more still available for export after allowing for all home requirements and 75,000,000 bushels for carry-over. Milling demand is slow, as it usually is at this season, but the primary run continues to be materially less than a year ago and out of all proportion in comparison with the crop. Holiday dullness has settled over the wheat market.

Primary arrivals today 697,000; week ago, 772,000; last year, 1,261,000. Shipments, 420,000; week ago, 488,000; last year, 898,000.

Liquidation by longs was on in corn and oats with selling by holders of weekly offers a factor in the latter grain and the close was at net losses of 1⅛ to 1⅛ cents on corn and ⅛ to 1 cent on oats, the finish being at the bottom. Bulls in corn were disposed to let go due to an increase in country offerings to arrive, incident to favorable weather conditions, it being clear and cold over the belt, and while the bulk of the grain was held 1 to ½ cent above what buyers were willing to give, it was regarded as the forerunner of the annual seasonal movement, and the buying of futures was less aggressive than of late.

Primary arrivals of corn today 749,000; week ago, 794,000; last year, 1,178,000. Shipments 229,000; week ago, 325,000; last year, 471,000.

There was nothing in the news to account for the reaction in oats, but the technical position was somewhat strained due to the recent sharp advance. Rye lost ⅝ to ⅝ cents in sympathy with wheat.

Advance on Scattered Buying Is Followed by 1c Fall.

Trading in wheat futures on the New York Produce Exchange started in moderately yesterday with prices irregular. Some of the early selling was induced by unresponsive cables, but then an advance of ⅝c. came on scattered buying and the market became more active and stronger.

Buying power failed to follow the upturn, however, and profit-taking and liquidation resulted in a fall of 1c. from the highs of the day. The market closed ⅝c. to ⅝c. net lower and the undertone was heavy.

YUGOSLAVIA DENIES TREATY WITH TURKS

But a Compact Aimed Against Italy Is Said to Be in View in Both Countries.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Dec. 16.—Foreign reports of a Turko-Yugoslav treaty, based chiefly upon the arrival here of Tihomir Popovitch, Belgrade's Minister to Angora, are officially denied here. However, such a compact is under consideration in both capitals, and there is reason to believe that the Turks, who fear Italian aggression even more than the Yugoslavs, are quite willing to make a defensive agreement with Belgrade.

It is said that Kemal Pasha discussed the project with M. Popovitch before he returned; but nothing can be done until Yugoslavia forms a Government, and Premier Usunovitch has so far made no great headway in that direction.

When a Government is formed it is likely to await more definite information regarding Britain's relations with Italy and her policy toward Turkey before committing itself to Angora.

The hostility with which London regarded the three-days' visit of the Turkish Foreign Minister, Tefik Rushdi Bey, to Belgrade last Spring has not been forgotten here.

The Turco-Yugoslav Treaty, or the threat of one, remains, of course, the obvious answer of both countries to Italy's Balkan activities, according to opinion here, especially to an Italo-Bulgar compact, which some Yugoslavs consider imminent. Turkey's connections with Moscow and Yugoslavia's present leanings to Russia make a triangular agreement a development which must always be considered.

The Yugoslavs generally think that Italy is aiming much more against Turkey than Yugoslavia. Italy's need of a colonial outlet for her surplus population is widely appreciated here, but the same Serbs who have fought against the Turks highly esteem their military qualities and believe any Italian adventure in Anatolia is doomed to the same failure as Greece experienced.

The attitude here toward the Turks, moreover, is friendly enough to facilitate the conclusion of a treaty. The Yugoslavs point out that their old quarrel with the Turks, as with the Germans, now is dead and buried and that their political interests are much the same.

M. Popovitch is not the only Minister who has returned to Belgrade; the Ministers from Albania and Austria also are here and the Ministers from Rome and Paris are expected. General change of foreign policy under the new Government, rather than any specific compact, is said to be the chief reason for assembly of the diplomats here.

41 LEADING RAILROADS SHOW FREIGHT GAINS

Eastern and Allegheny Lines Have Biggest Rises in Two Weeks Ending Nov. 13.

Forty-one of the fifty-one leading railroads handled more freight for the two weeks ended Nov. 13 than for the corresponding period last year, while ten suffered declines.

Greater increases were shown in the eastern and Allegheny regions, chiefly on account of this country's heavy export of coal, caused by the British mine strike. With the exception of the New York Central all these carriers enjoyed increases which were in most instances substantial. Delaware & Hudson traffic advanced 43 per cent., Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, 21 per cent.; Lehigh Valley, 13 per cent.; New York, Ontario & Western, 64.4 per cent.; Central Railroad of New Jersey, 13 per cent. The New York Central decline amounted to 5.3 per cent.

No decreases were recorded by the major southwestern roads, these carriers enjoying unusually heavy grain and coal traffic. The number of cars handled by the Gulf Coast Lines showed an increase of 8 per cent., the International Great Northern, 17 per cent., and the Missouri Pacific 9.9 per cent. Cars handled on the Atchison, which is a Southwestern as well as a Central Western carrier, increased 13.7 per cent.

The unfavorable showing made by Central Western railroads was due principally to a falling off in the number of cars these roads received from connections and partly to a curtailed coal and livestock movement. Poor grain crops caused small decreases in the Northwest.

WEDEPOHL EXHIBIT OPENS.

Icelandic Landscapes and Portraits Are Shown by German Artist.

An exhibition of fifty-four paintings comprising portraits and landscapes in Iceland, Germany, the French Riviera and elsewhere, by Professor Theodor Wedepohl of Germany, was opened yesterday at the Gainsborough Galleries, 222 West Fifty-ninth Street, and will remain on view until Dec. 31 from 10 A. M. to 6 P. M. Professor Wedepohl and Mme. Wedepohl were present at the opening.

There are eighteen Icelandic landscapes, the first of their kind to be exhibited here. Lava pillars and depths were painted at Thingvellir. Mountains, fjords and harbors are painted in soft tones. A sleeping volcano is pictured in the distance as dark blue with snow on its sides. The blue waters near Reykjavik are portrayed, as is a fjord in a mist at Isafirthi.

The portraits include those of Mr. Coffin, American Consul General at Berlin; Gustav Schützendorff of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Mrs. Artur Bodanzky, wife of the Metropolitan Opera Company conductor; Indridi Einarsson, Icelandic poet; Dr. George Dröscher, General Manager of the State Opera House, Berlin, and Dr. Ikeda, Japanese journalist.

Professor Wedepohl's work has been exhibited at the National Gallery, Berlin, and in Munich, Dresden, Paris and Rome.

Tributes to Mr. White were paid by Arthur J. Westmayr, who presided; Supreme Court Justices Thomas W. Churchill and Edward J. McGoldrick; Meyer Goodfriend, Lionel F. Straus and John F. O'Rourke. A letter was received from Mayor Walker. A birthday cake bore ninety candles.

SELLERS DOMINATE TRADING IN COTTON

Steady Pressure Throughout Session Sends Prices Down by $1 Per Bale.

SPOT INTERESTS ACTIVE

Local Operators Buy in Last Hour, but Pressure at New Orleans Depresses Prices.

The sharp recovery of one-quarter of a cent brought out more cotton on all three contract exchanges yesterday and selling pressure prevailed from the opening. With a reduction in the floating short interest and an increased amount of cotton for sale, prices worked off $1 a bale and closed at a net decline of 20 to 24 points. Spot interests did more hedging than for some time, Southern advices indicating that holders were offering more freely at the improved price level. Local operators who sold on the advance bought the last hour, but pressure from New Orleans closed the list at lowest figures of the day.

Though Liverpool made a full response to the previous day's upturn on this side, hedging operations on the foreign exchange caused a loss of the greater part of the gain there. It was evident from the number of overnight selling orders executed at the opening of the local market that cotton withheld at lower prices prevailing the latter part of the week had become available. New Orleans weakened under the weight of contracts and, after the purchase of a block of 15,000 March at 12.40 furnished temporary resistance, prices moved steadily lower the balance of the session. There was not sufficient general buying to maintain the improvement and trade interests showed no disposition to continue taking contracts after an advance of over $3 a bale.

The organizations formed in Southern States to finance cotton on long term loans have so far received few applications, according to reports. The South Carolina Company announced the terms of agreement, showing that 9 cents will be advanced, basis middling, on notes payable May 1, 1928. After prices have advanced to 15 cents, the borrower may order his cotton sold and his loan liquidated, and at that figure the company can require liquidation.

KANSAS 'DIME 'MORAL' FINALLY EXPLAINED

Letters to Klan Officials Resulted From a Story in Judge, Naming Leavenworth Postoffice Box.

Special to The New York Times.

LEAVENWORTH, Dec. 16.—A mystery regarding the continued flood of letters, each containing 10 cents in cash, into the postoffice box of Ku Klux Klan officials has been solved at last. And it all turns out to be a very "moral" mystery.

For several weeks the Klan officials, whose identities are not revealed, have been puzzled by the letters containing the 10 cents. The writers were not very communicative. Their only wish seemed to be to learn a certain "moral."

The dimes began to pile up day by day, with the Klan officials still in the dark and beginning to get worried. Then one correspondent wrote a letter enclosing, as usual, 10 cents in cash; but a glance at it, a little investigation, and the mystery was solved—it contained a clipping.

It all grew out of a story in the Nov. 20 issue of Judge in which "Perelam," the writer of a nonsense piece, added, by way of further foolishness:

"If you want to know the moral of this story send 10 cents in cash (no stamps accepted) to Postoffice Box 137, Leavenworth, Kan."

The writer apparently picked the postoffice box number at random, never suspecting that readers of the magazine would take him at his word and ask for a moral to his story.

CONTRADICTS SHIP BOARD.

Bidder for United States Lines Sees Profit in Private Operation.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP).—Private organizations could operate at a profit the lines now operated by the Shipping Board at a loss, William F. Gibbs, a New York naval architect and engineer, testified today before the Senate Committee investigating the proposal to dispose of the Leviathan and sister ships.

The testimony of Gibbs, who is a joint bidder for purchase of the American merchant line and charter of the Leviathan and other vessels in the United States Lines, contradicted members of the Shipping Board, who said that the vessels could not be operated by any one in the near future at a profit. Gibbs compared the Government competition with other lines as "a sandlot ball team playing against a big league team."

Motta Again Heads Swiss.

BERNE, Dec. 16 (AP).—Dr. Joseph Motta, who was President of the Swiss Confederation in 1915 and again in 1920, has been elected to serve in that post again for 1927. Edmund Schulthess, who was President in 1917 and is now Chief of the Department of Public Economy, was named Vice President.

COMMODITY PRICES.

General Reaction in Cash Markets—Grains, Provisions, Metals and Cotton Lower.

Cash markets were reactionary yesterday, depreciated values being found in wheat, corn, rye, oats, lard, lead, copper, tin and spot cotton. There was a small-size recovery in rubber, while other articles were unchanged.

Yesterday's closing wholesale cash prices for commodities in the New York market, unless otherwise noted, were:

SOUTHERN PACIFIC FINISHES NEW LINE

Arizona Route Puts Phoenix on Main Road—Runs From Picacho to Wellton.

PROVIDES 2 SINGLE TRACKS

Lines of 168 and 210 Miles Each, Built at a Cost of More Than $15,000,000.

The Southern Pacific Railroad has just completed a new line between Picacho, Ariz, and Wellton, at a cost of more than $15,000,000, which places Phoenix on a main transcontinental route and provides two single track lines, 168 and 210 miles long, substantially the equivalent of double track, between these two points.

While the new line is forty-two miles longer than the old line it has lighter grades and less curvature. Two branches, aggregating 63.7 miles, were incorporated in the new route and constitute nearly one-third of its length, and the existing line was double tracked from Wellton to Dome, Ariz, 18.3 miles.

Two mountain ranges and four rivers were crossed, the bridges comprising an important part of the new construction. Much of the territory through which the new line passes is undeveloped desert which entailed many difficulties in location and construction not often met in other sections of the country. The grading was light, however, as the land is generally flat.

The late Julius Kruttschnitt, one of E. H. Harriman's most trusted lieutenants, set forth the purpose of the new construction when he was Chairman of the Southern Pacific. He told the Interstate Commerce Commission at a hearing on the road's application to acquire the El Paso & Southwestern Railway that "the cost of constructing the new line will be offset by savings gained from eliminating local train service that will become necessary by short routing traffic from the mines near Magma and east thereof, and between Phoenix and Southern California and, most of all, by avoiding double tracking of the main line of the Southern Pacific, now imminent."

Commercial interests and the Public Service Commissions of Arizona and New Mexico favored the consolidation of the Southern Pacific and El Paso & Southwestern, but indicated in reply to direct questions by the Interstate Commerce Commission that their approval was contingent upon the construction of the new line.

The old line passes south of Phoenix, the Capital of the State, which has been reached by a branch thirty-five miles long, a situation causing delay to passenger and freight traffic and requiring heavy local train service. In the Casa Grande Valley and north of the Gila River the ne wline opens large areas of fertile land which are not now developed because of lack of transportation.

National Tea Co. Sales Rise.

November sales of the National Tea Company totaled $4,647,850, against $4,233,184 in November, 1925, or an increase of 9.7 per cent. For the eleven months the sales reached $48,457,822, as compared with $42,734,838 last year, or a gain of 13.3 per cent.

ALASKA RAILWAY CUTS ITS ANNUAL DEFICIT

Government's Loss in Last Fiscal Year Is $1,017,860, a Reduction of $557,289.

The Government's Alaska railroad was operated during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1926, at a deficit of $1,017,860, including its water lines. This deficit was a reduction of $557,289 from that of the previous year. Revenues from all sources showed an increase of 23.2 per cent., while expenses were reduced 14.2 per cent. The total deficit for all expenditures, including charges to capital account, is given as $1,690,751, a decrease of 18.3 per cent.

The Department of the Interior in a recently issued review of its work for the last three years stated that the railroad, which was completed at a cost of $60,000,000 in 1923, when President Harding visited Alaska and drove the golden spike, "is not a financial success," and that it had "soon developed that the road was not accomplishing the purpose for which it was built."

A reappraisement of the entire physical condition of the railroad and the commercial possibilities contributing to its financial operation was made two years ago. An experienced railroad operator was lent to the Government by the Pennsylvania Railroad for that purpose. Business principles were promptly applied to every branch of the road. Operations were reduced to conform with the traffic being handled. Subsequently this railroad expert was appointed general manager of the Alaska railroad. He now has supreme authority over the railroad's affairs.

DINNER FOR PETER J. BRADY.

Retiring President of the Printing Trades Council Honored.

Labor leaders and public officials paid tribute last night to Peter J. Brady, President of the Federation Bank and Trust Company, at a dinner in Cavanagh's Restaurant, 258 West Twenty-third Street. The occasion marked the retirement of Mr. Brady as President of the Allied Printing Trades Council of New York State. He had held office for the last ten years.

Marshall Pask, a director of the Federation Bank, presented a wrist watch to Mr. Brady on behalf of the officers of the institution and lauded his leadership in the task of founding it. Other gifts, including a scroll bound in vellum and a desk clock were presented for the Printing Trades Council by its members. E. W. Edwards, who succeeds Mr. Brady as President of that organization, was Chairman.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.
Yesterday—4½ per cent. for the best names. Wednesday—4½ per cent. for the best names.
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Dressy Coats Feature Suedes.

Suedes are favored fabrics in the higher grade offerings of women's Spring coats of dressy type, which are now being shown by the "inside shop" manufacturers. These cloths are quite light in weight and make up very well into Spring garments. Tan is an outstanding shade in the lines, which also feature the pastel colors. The silhouette in the coats is of the straight-line type with yoke backs and drop shoulders. Long haired furs are being used for trimmings, including baby fox, lynx and badger.

Denims Are an Excellent "Buy."

One of the reasons cited yesterday for the rapid sale of denims since the new prices were announced on them on Tuesday was that at their present levels they represent the best "buy" which the colored goods end of the market offers. Not only are these goods, with one exception, lower than at any other time in years, but compared with other coarse-yarn colored fabrics they are cheap, in spite of the recent reductions made in the latter. With 8-ounce tickings quoted at 35 to 40 cents a pound, and with 3.80-yard chambrays held at 38 to 40 cents a pound, according to dye, 2.20-yard denims look low at a little under 30 cents a pound.

Orders for Printed Silks.

An increasing amount of early business in printed silks is being placed by retailers. Crepes de chine are wanted mostly in the smaller designs and in the better grades. With the turn of the year the activity in the goods is expected to broaden. Despite the doubts raised by some in the trade about the Spring possibilities of prints, in view of the unsatisfactory developments last Spring, manufacturers regard the way the demand is developing as quite promising. One drawback has been eliminated this season—that of offering the goods too early—and overproduction is not likely unless manufacturers change their policy of caution.

Suit Lines for Spring.

In the lines of women's and misses' suits prepared for the Spring season manufacturers here are giving most attention to garments to retail between $29.50 and $49.50. It is within these ranges that the trade expects to have an active turnover, although some business will also be done in suits from $59.50 up. Jackets of the tailored styles in worsteds and tricotines range from 24 to 26 inches in length, and are either single or double breasted. Buttons run to two, three or four on the jacket, which is usually braid bound. Bright shades will be available in all lines, but staple navy is expected to hold consumer interest as well as ever.

To Sell $1,000,000 in Furs.

Raw furs valued at approximately $1,000,000 will go on show here at 9 A. M. tomorrow in the warehouse of Frederick Huth & Co., prior to being sold at the company's monthly auction. The sale will begin on Monday next and continue the two following days. Miscellaneous collections of skins will be sold on Monday, including muskrats, wolf, skunk, &c. A variety of skins will also be put up on Tuesday, among them beaver, mink, the marten group and several collections of foxes. The final day will again be given over mostly to "fancies," and the only offerings then will be Russian sable, chinchilla, silver fox and raccoon. The collection of silver fox is large, numbering 700.

Confirm Spring Gingham Prices.

Announcements were sent to the trade yesterday by Smith, Hogg & Co. of this city confirming Spring prices on Red Seal zephyrs, Everett Classics, Yomac ginghams, Berwick chambrays and other prominent gingham brands. The announcements further say that "with the idea of giving the operators confidence to proceed in a market that is rapidly turning to gingham fabrics, these prices have been guaranteed by Smith, Hogg & Co. to April 1, 1927—this guarantee to cover any unsold portion of purchases made from them for the Spring season of 1927." Their lines of Red Seal, zephyrs and Everett Classics are complete with plain shades, checks and plaids, novelty weaves and artistic color combinations.

Some Foresee Moderate Decline.

In some quarters the feeling is held that business, including the consumer demand at retail, during 1927 is likely to show a decline. No marked depression is expected, but an easing off of moderate proportions is thought likely. Aside from citing developments in certain major industries, which they interpret as unfavorable, the proponents of the decline idea seem to base their belief on a "psychological sensing" of a trend toward lessened activity. Meanwhile holiday business at retail continues very good and apparently gives no support at all to the belief that a decline in consumer buying even of minor proportions in due in the Spring. With the passing of the first month of the new year, it is expected that something more definite in the gauging of the outlook for the Spring and Summer will be made available.

Gray Goods Sales Broaden.

Trading in gray goods broadened somewhat in this market yesterday, although the total volume of cloths disposed of was not great. Sales of 39-inch 68-72 printcloths were made for prompt shipment at 7⅝ cents, as well as for January delivery at an eighth less. Small sales of actual spot 38½-inch 64-60s were put through at 6⅝ cents, while the same goods sold for delivery during the first quarter of next year at 6¼ cents. Other sales of 38½-inch printcloths included 60-48s at 5⅞ cents and 44-40s at 4⅝ cents. Business in 40-inch sheetings was done on 2.85-yard goods at 9½ cents and on 3.75s at 7¼ cents. Trading also took place in 37-inch 48-square, four-yard sheetings at 6⅝ cents. In the fine-yarn cloths there was a good demand for fancy shirtings, and sales of 100-60 carded broadcloths were also made. These goods sold for spot shipment at 11 cents, for February at 10⅞ cents and for March at 10¾ cents.

Silk and Wool Cloths Liked.

Combination garments of silk and wool for sports wear are regarded with considerable favor for the Spring season. Two-piece dresses of these fabrics are being particularly featured by manufacturers here, who report that the early buying of them by retailers has been quite active. Pastel and bright shades in a variety of color and pattern effects are outstanding. Mills making the silk and wool cloths have had an increasing amount of business placed with them and are adding to the production schedule mapped out some weeks ago.

Hanes Underwear Lines Priced.

Price lists covering 1927 lines of heavyweight ribbed cotton underwear were issued to the trade yesterday by the P. H. Hanes Knitting Company. The delivery periods covered are December to May and June to October, and the prices on the various lines for the respective periods are: Eight-pound shirts and drawers, $4.55 and $4.75; 10-pound shirts and drawers, $4.90 and $5.15; 11-pound shirts and drawers, $5.15 and $5.40; 12-pound union suits, $8 and $8.37½; 14-pound union suits, $8.62½ and $9; 16-pound suits, $9.37½ and $9.75. On boys' goods, 9½-pound suits are quoted at $3.25 and $3.50, "size 20, rise 50," and 11½-pound suits are priced at $4 and $4.25, "size 20, rise 50." "Random" goods in all cases are 25 cents a dozen higher.

CHRISTMAS TREES PLENTY.

Federal Bureau Reports Outlook for Surplus on Holiday.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16 (AP).—Plenty of Christmas trees are on the market. A report today from the Government Bureau of Agricultural Economics says shipments from Northern States and Canada have been arriving freely and supplies appear to be adequate.

The outlook is that primary receivers in large cities will have a combined surplus of many carloads on hand when the holiday arrives.

LIFE HANGS ON PUNCTUATION

New Jersey Court to Interpret Verdict by Which One Was Doomed, One Jailed.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 16.—Whether Salvatore Merra must die in the electric chair here for the murder of Theodore Conway in a Public Service Corporation hold-up in Newark, or, like Salvatore Rannelli, who was convicted with him, serve life imprisonment, depends on the construction placed by the Court of Errors and Appeals on the verdict returned by the trial jury.

The language and punctuation of the verdict are the points raised by Alexander Simpson, counsel for the two men, in asking the Court to set aside the death penalty for one.

In finding the two men guilty the verdict of the jury was expressed as follows:

"We find the defendant, Salvatore Merra, guilty of murder in the first degree, and the defendant, Salvatore Rannelli, guilty of murder in the first degree and recommend life imprisonment at hard labor.

Mr. Simpson contended that the recommendation of mercy applied to both men and that the imposition of the death penalty was erroneous. Prosecutor Bigelow of Essex County took the opposite view and held that the jury intended that clemency should be extended only to Rannelli.

Other errors also were alleged by Senator Simpson.

The Court of Errors and Appeals reserved decision.

HAT STORE ROBBED OF $200.

Three Men Force Manager and Clerk Into Rear Room and Escape.

Three men held up the manager and clerk of Long's Hat Store at 1,661 Broadway yesterday and rifled the safe and cash drawer of $200 and escaped. Michael Blankoff, the manager, was adjusting the stock at 9:45 A. M. when two of the robbers entered and asked to see some hats. Joseph Weinstein, another employe, was in a rear room. Blankoff was displaying the hats when the third man entered. As he turned to this man, one of his earlier visitors put a revolver against his body and commanded, "Stick 'em up."

The man with the weapon ordered the manager to the rear of the store. Weinstein, who was about to come out of this room, was ordered back and both were told to stay there under penalty of death for at least five minutes.

Five minutes passed and Blankoff peeped through the door. The store was apparently empty. He started out and was met by a man who had just entered the store. Blankoff became frightened again and started to put his hands in the air. The man looked amazed and Blankoff realized that he was a customer.

CASEY KNOCKED OUT AT BAT

Wallace Beery in Film Version Is Hit in Head by Ball.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 16 (AP).—The mighty Casey was corporeally knocked out here yesterday—not fanned out.

It happened in the filming of "Casey at Bat," starring Wallace Beery. He was at the plate under director's instructions. A final order from the director's megaphone, barked just as the pitcher completed winding up, caused the comedian to turn and he took a sizzling fast ball on the head, knocking him unconscious. He was revived in a few minutes, but production was stopped for the day.

Studio physicians said he will be able to go back to the screen diamond tomorrow.

SUES ON ROGERS HOME FIRE

Insurance Man Loses Case Against Waterproofing Company.

A fire in the famous loggia room in the house on the fifty-four acre estate of Colonel H. H. Rogers at Southampton, L. I., on July 1, 1921, was made the basis of a suit for damages in the Supreme Court in Queens yesterday.

The action was pressed by Charles May of 12 South Twenty-first Street, Flushing, insurance representative, to recover $5,150 paid by the insurance companies to Colonel Rogers for damages to paintings in the room. Mr. May charged that the Obelisk Waterproofing Company of Manhattan had been responsible for the fire which was caused by a spurt of flame coming from an air pressure kerosene tank used by that firm, which had been waterproofing the outside of the loggia room. The jury, however, brought in a verdict for the defendant.

The paintings had been executed by Robert Chase and required six months to be completed. It took Mr. Chase three months to restore the paintings.

STORE ON BROADWAY LEASED BY NATANSON

General Motors Corporation to Have Large Ground-Floor Space at 57th St.

The closing of a long-term lease between the Broadway Motors Building Corporation, Max N. Natanson, President, and the General Motors Corporation, for a large store in the new twenty-six story General Motors Building now nearing completion and covering the entire block bounded by Broadway, Eighth Avenue, Fifty-seventh to Fifty-eighth Street, was announced yesterday. The store was leased from plans and will have a frontage of thirty-seven feet on Broadway and will adjoin on the south for a distance of eighty-two feet, the new Broadway entrance being developed in this building, which has proven unique in construction and engineering circles inasmuch as twenty-three stories have been built from plans of Shreve & Lamb, architects, on top of what was formerly a three-story building covering the site.

Early this year Max N. Natanson, heading the corporation which he organized and which undertook the erection of this building, closed a twenty-one year lease with the General Motors Corporation for 200,000 square feet of office space, which it will occupy in April, 1927. According to a statement made yesterday by Cushman & Wakefield, Inc., the renting and managing agent, who negotiated the lease just closed, the building is now over 62 per cent. rented and present negotiations for space would indicate that on the opening date a new record of renting before completion will have been established. Announcement is made by the General Motors Corporation that its new store will be occupied next April by the Chevrolet division of the corporation as an automobile showroom.
